Conversations with a shore dweller

THE CLAM

I had found a shellfish in the tide. The shell was huge, at least 20 cm across. It was opened. There was something very un-usual about this shellfish. I picked it up and began to study it, turning it round in the fading light. I turned it so I could see inside the shell, which strangely had not closed.

blackness - no matter how I turned it, I could not see anything. Then I froze. Through the darkness of the shell pierced red, burning eyes. They were staring into my own, as though studying me. The thing I held was sentient. It had a mind. I was holding a Clam Being.

There, while I held it, the Clam Being's eyes glared with fear and challenge. It did not want this confrontation, and I had come to a resolution.

Tentatively, I spoke to it. 'Calm yourself' I said, and instantly the eyes became bright with reproach. Some time passed, and over the sea the light faded. The Clam Being frowned. Then Slowly the words came. 'I will impose a wish upon you,' it began. 'You will take me with you when you leave this shore.' The began. 'You will take me with you when you leave this shore.' The moments passed, measured by the rythmn of the waves. 'Impossible' I said. But it wasn't listening. 'I hear the eternal din of the sea - the crashing and exploding - of rock ground into sand. Now I wish to know what lies beyond here. How is life on the dry land and in the forest? Why did your kind leave the sea, and what have you done since then? Will you take me with you?' 'I can't' I said again. 'Ten feet beyond the highest wave, and you beyond the highest wave, and you would die. You belong here.' Again it looked at me, this time without reproach but with a softer light. It began to close its shell, and slowly I placed it back on the

The waves were getting bigger.
Colours rolled across the Clam Beings eyes. It started slowly again. 'Oh, that horizon out there, out to sea, lies the end of this shore. At that point there is a cliff that descends forever into blackness. There are lights in the depths of that abyss, but unlike the stars they cast no light but are cold and dead. There are beings bearing the lights but they are not even as you and I are.'

The Clam Being talked on about its world, all the while the shifting colours rolling across its eyes. Lesser waves advanced and receeded. On the horizon was a large swelling and this would be the wave to bear the Clam back to

'I always find myself drifting under force of the sea toward that ridge. And I make my way back to this shore, back to the sun. Just to drift out again. And the sand forever shifts me toward the abyss.'

The waves crashed on, while the high wave came closer. The Clam closed its shell by three-quarters and sighting the highest wave, it prepared itself for the sea's embrace. I backed away from the water, still watching the

Clam Being.
It's last utterance was that tomorrow there would be no sun. Then it tumbled and disappeared into the great crashing wave.

As I watched, the sea became calm. Twilight filled the sky and the sea shone iridescent. Eventually the stars appeared and the sea luminesced green becoming violent again. A stiff wind blew in from the west so I took to the cover of the hills.

The Villains - May 8 -Commodore. Most definitely an excellent experience in British SKA.

The Stranglers - May 14 - Commodore. The Stranglers are finally coming to Western Canada, after years of rumours, cancellations and legal complications. The Stranglers have one of the most unique and individual sounds around today and are truly among the world's greatest bands. The Stranglers are touring in support of their latest album, The Gospel According to the Men in Black featuring the haunting single, Thrown Away. The new LP is a further expansion of the electropop sound coupled with the arrogance and menace that is uniquely their own.

Joe Cocker - May 23 and May 25 - Commodore, It's been a while since we've heard all the Crocker classics.

Nazareth, Chilliwack & Krokus - May 23 - Concert Bowl. After a three year absence, Nazareth is back and proudly showing off their latest album (their twelfth!) The Fool Circle. Vancouver's rock 'n' roll institution, Chilliwack will appear shortly before. And opening the show will be Krokus, a hard hitting, heavy metal band from Switzerland, not to be confused with Winnipeg's Crowcuss.

Link sinks...into the sunset

As we all struggle to reach the end of another year the Link in its last issue is about to sink quietly into the sunset.

We as students have all come a long way. We were attracted to this school by something called 'The Real World'. Now it's time for some of us to leave for that 'Real World'. Are we prepared?

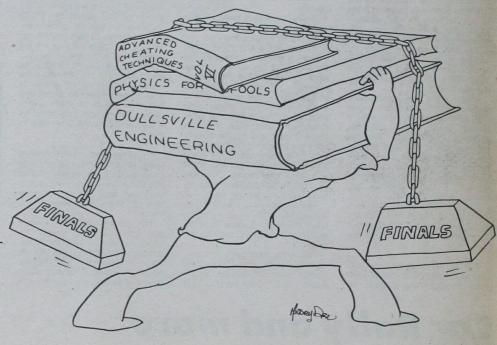

It's a ponderous question. No doubt we've had to cope with many obstacles. Budgets. Deadlines. Strikes. Threats. Exams. Success. Failure. Etc. Ad infinit-

And while many of us may not be satisfied with the conditions we've met here we are aware of the problems that exist. And despite such conditions given the despite such conditions given the circumstances we could solve many of those problems.

But we still find ourselves grasping at straws when we try to realize what 'The Real World' is. Our views are shaped by our experience but when we get there we'll have the questions and most of the answers! of the answers!

WANTED: ONE LINK EDITOR

The editor of the Link does more than write the weekly editorials (although this is an important part of the job).

Essentially the editor assumes responsibility for the content of the paper, and then works with the Publications Manager until the paper is distributed on campus. campus

During the week, the routine generally follows this chronology: ASSIGNMENT:

Delegate responsibility for sections of the paper, ensure that important' events and issues are going to be covered, including photographs. Part of this job is to establish deadlines and to enforce them, (remember, every law is meant to be broken and that I didn't say that)

LINEUP.

Give weight to information and determine what is important and how important it is. Then give this appropriate space and place in the Link.

'A SYSTEM'

The job of editor is defined by the nature of the Link 'system'. On Monday morning cull submitted copy before it is typeset. There is no point eleaborating here, because this step involves editorial (read personal) decisions. Make a list of information that 'has to be in this week's Link.' Get any information that isn't available for typesetting, (use every device available, plead, cajole, placate, demand, and seduce if you have to.)

As material is typeset, negotiate with the Publications Manager in a spirit of co-operation, until the paper arrives at the printers. NB., the paste-ups should be read and re-read as many times as possible by Link staff to eliminate typo's, libel and junk.

For the 1981/82 school year APPLY BEFORE MAY 30, 1981

For more information contact Donald G Wright, Publications Manager, in the SAC.

SPORTS

It was a good season for the BCIT Cougar Rugby Team. They have won three major tournaments: The Totem Conference, the Fraser Valley 2nd Half, and the Fraser Valley Playoff Championships. They are third in the province in the 3rd Division, senior rugby. Coach Gary Miller told the Link that they still invite potential players, no experience necessary.

The team record is 26 wins, 1 lose, and two ties. 'We just keep going until we lose' said Miller. 'This team wins on hard work and a feeling of comradary that is not present in any other team at the school - their attitude is so very important'.

Starting Wednesday, May 6, Rugby Team members will take cash or any refundable bottles or cans in trade for tickets. They will be in the SAC each day.

Prizes include five $10 prizes, two $50 and 1 $100 prize, as well as $25 per goal prizes.

Album: Don't Say No Artist: Billy Squire Label: Capitol

Who can say no to a musician with the credentials of Billy Squire? His studio work has had him with greats like Queen, Electric Light Orchestra, Donna Summer and Led Zeppelin. And a lot of that exposure surfaces in Don't Say No.

that exposure surfaces in Don't Say No.

This album is as technically perfect as you can get, but there is a definite lack of originality. The Zeppelin percussion styles and Queen vocals had me reminiscing of a Sher Heart Attack or sections of the classic Stairway.

Putting aside my originality quirks, Billy Squire has put together an impressive selection of songs. Don't Say No contains The Stroke, In The Dark, My Kinda Lover, and Whadda You Want From Me. These songs reach back into Squire's life and bring his experiences alive.

The Band started to take shape in 1977 when Kim McAuliffe and Enid Williams formed a band called Painted Lady. The group was extremely album (Demolition) in June, 1980.

Successful tours with heavy metal groups like Uriah Heep and Black Sabbath, makes Girlschool one of the new generation of top grade heavy metal bands. Hit And Run is certainly heavy metal with an interesting cockney approach. The highlight has got to be Race with the Devil, where the girls let loose and give it all they can muster. We truly have come a long way since Diana Ross and the Supremes. Hit And Run isn't kids-stuff, but then neither is Girlschool. Three stars (***), let these little lasses seduce your music tastes. Or put down your tea, and pick up a pint!

Well that does it for the 1980/81. season, but my records will keep turning. Believe it or not, the record industry doesn't stop production because BCIT stops for the summer. You see, it's this way -- I made a deal with the Link. If I quit writing, they quit printing. It's just a coincidence that the paper closes down for the summer. So come rain, lost believes a solution of the summer. sleet, hail, snow, goats, ankle-whoppers, ping-poms, smoosh-shling, dingle-dorks, out-house in London and pee-pee -- I think that's how it goes, I'll be back in September. #### The cave...no more

By Lydia Neufeld

For forty-three years The Cave has been sitting on Hornby Street, and on July 15th "it will be destroyed. Also on that same strip, the

Also on that same strip, the Devonshire Hotel was closed only last week. Sometime before that, Misty's was shut down. So what's next on the list of demolitions? Well, word has it Gary Taylor's Rock Room and Sugar Daddy's will go once their leases expire - or earlier if their leases are bought out. So what's to go in place of these night-life extravaganzas? Office towers - and in place of these night-life extravaganzas?

Office towers - and in place of The Cave, there is going to be a Bank of BC.
I asked the manager and leasor
of The Cave, Stan Grozina, if there was anything that could be done to prevent the demolition. He said there wasn't much he could do. His lease had run out and the propertyowners wanted an office tower in that space. in that space.

As what usually happens in ases where nothing can be done, be innocent suffer the most. This time it's the up and coming musicians... the young bands who have yet to establish themselves.

And also those of us who enjoy listening to these local bands. The Cave features a fair amount of local talent mixed amount of local talent mixed with the odd big name. Loverboy, Bryan Adams, David Raven & the Escorts, Shari Ulrich, the B-sides, Mitzi Gaynor, The Supremes... are all names that have been billed at The Cave. So where will these groups go after July 15th? There really isn't any other place in Vancouver where these bands can perform, except perhaps the Commodore Ballroom. But it's a place for dancing - not somewhere where you can sit back and just listen.
The interior decor of The Cave is exactly that -- the inside of a cave. The stage is clearly visible from any seat in the house. It's cozy but still leaves room for a dance floor if you catch the boogie-bug. The Commodore doesn't come close to the atmosphere that develops in this

Gary Taylor's 'rock Room is much smaller than the Cave but also caters widely to local talent. Gary Taylor's takes chances with no-name bands and tests them on their crowd. A golden opportunity for any group that hopes to go places. But then, that opportunity won't be around much longer than one more year

Stan Grozina has hopes of beginning a new club in Vancouver. Nothing as spec-tacular as The Cave, simply because there isn't a big enough affordable space available for that kind of project. But he says, it will be a place which can only try to fill the gap that will be left after July 15th and the destruction of The Cave.

Maybe if people who cared would band together and rock the city council's boat --something could be done to save the Hornby strip. It's Vancouvers live entertainment energy center every night; It's been around a long time and is part of the city's history. But then again, judging from the present condition of our city, it isn't blg on images. But if you're in the area, The Cave does have a petition...

Skipped a beat too many

When a band is good they're really good but when they're bad... and when you're in the really good but when they're bad... and when you're in the mood for good music and you go out on the town, nothing is worse than walking in on a seemingly no-talent band. It's great, when you hear a new band for the first time and they play stuff that's all their own, and you like it. Or even if you don't like it. Or even if you don't like it. - you get an idea of what their own personal sound is like and you can rate them on that. But if all they play is cover tunes --where's their identity?

Heartbeat (aDenver band) was at Frams - Fraser Arms - this weekend. My first impression of them was good. Flashy start; good lighting and a high energy sound. They even looked good. Not just because they were in tight black leather pants, but they bounced around the stage and really entertained the audience. They were exciting to watch and looked like they knew what they were doing.

Heartbeat was great up until they imitated a tune I used to like. Maybe I'm being too critical, but if it's a good song by an excellent group, nothing is worse than poor imitation.

Crazy little thing called love. by Queen will never be the same again. But Heartbeat didn't stop there... they continued and butchered Billy Joel's Sometimes a Fantasy, I'm a man by Joe Jackson, and others.

Right about this time I figured I had seen and heard enough and fled for higher ground. I guess Heartbeat saved their worst for last and counted on an inebriated crowd to cheer no matter what was thrown at them. But by being a slow one-beer drinker I was able to gather the sobering facts. Advice from an amateur, but nonetheless, an opinion -- is for Heartbeat to hightail it back to Denver and put together a few originals and come back and give it another go. After all, that's how Loverboy and all the others did it. Right about this time I figured

Pure hell to sit through

By Graham Stone Entertainment Editor

It opened. It closed. Back to the editing table for Cimino and his movie Heaven's Gate. It opened again and what's left is a movie that needs more work.

Moviegoers were looking forward to this film after being impressed by Cimino's The Deerhunter. Unfortunately what worked to make The Deerhunter deffective does not work in Heaven's Gate.

The problem in Heaven's Gate is that Cimino takes too long to establish any conflict. Two thirds of the movie concentrates on establishing the characters in the movie. If this establishment is done well as in some European done well as in some European films it can be very impressive. But in Heaven's Gate this charac-ter development seems to drag on ter development seems to drag on interminably.

Cimino's movie follows Kris Kristofferson as a Havard graduate turned sherrif who goes west to Montana in the lates 1800's. Kristofferson finds himself competing with Christopher Walken for the love of Isabelle Huppert who runs a brothel.

The conflict that the movie

The conflict that the movie finally arrives at is that Walkin supports the Cattlemen's Association which issues a hit list on 125 immigrants who have stolen cattle. Kristofferson supports the immigrants.

Cimino attempts to make a statement when we learn that the Cattlemen's Association has the support of the Governor and the President of the United States.

President of the United States.
But his attempt at symbolism is lost in just another western.
What the movie amounts to in the end is little more than just a shoot out. The dialogue is at times so stilted with such lines as 'Well I meant to ask' when Hupport tells Kristofferson that Walken has asked her to marry Walken has asked her to marry him. There are many more spots in the movie where the dialogue is weak but let's just say you want to forget them as soon as you hear them.

The movie ends with an unfirtunate transition from the western setting of Montana to a shot of a sailboat. On the sailboat we see Kristofferson twenty years later. The flashback in his mind tells us how he wishes it all ended in this love triangle. The sailboat scene is so startling that you'd almost think you were watching another movie. On second thought maybe you should!
