President's Message

from Bob Wells

It is once again time to elect your representatives to the Alumni Board. However, to do this you must be present to vote at the Annual General Meeting to be held on Thursday, May 13, 1993, at the Rix Club on campus. We are looking for Directors as well as Committee Volunteers.

What time commitment does it take to get involved with a committee? Let me give you an example.

The Casino Committee, formed last year, mailed an application to the government to request a charity license. The license was granted for two nights. Five volunteers worked each night, from 5:00 p.m. to 3:00 a.m. In those two nights we collected over $15,000 for our efforts. Matched with the government grant, we provided a total of $30,000 to the Student Campus Centre project.

This effort was not difficult nor time consuming for the volunteers. It however was rewarding! If you feel you can contribute in helping the Alumni Association to become stronger, then please contact Jackie Azar at our Alumni Relations Office, 432-8847.

This will be my last year in serving you as your president. I have enjoyed the experience and look forward to helping the next executive as best I can.

Alumni Giving Something Back...

When Michael Drever graduated from BCIT's Marketing Management Small Business program in 1986, he had the education that enabled him to start his own business—Pacific Northwest Cruiseship Centers Ltd., which franchises cruise vacation travel agencies. Currently, Michael has 13 franchises in B.C. and is expanding across Canada.

Michael credits the faculty and curriculum of the Small Business Program with his success and wanted to help out other students who are enrolled in the program. In this regard, he has established a $350 graduating achievement award which is given out annually at the BCIT June Awards ceremonies to a graduate who is most likely to start his/her own small business.

Thank you, Michael Drever, for your generous commitment!

— by Susan Walters

Congratulations

Jo-Ann Johnston, CGA, Alumni Board Treasurer, has been appointed to the Board of Governors of the Certified General Accountants Association of B.C. She sits on two CGA committees.

As well as her Alumni responsibilities, Jo-Ann is an instructor at BCIT. She resides in Port Coquitlam with her husband William and their three children.

Rix Club

All Alumni are members of the Rix Club, a luxurious lounge and dining room established by staff. It is located in SE2 adjacent to the Town Square Cafe.

The Rix Club is available Monday through Friday from 11:00 am till 6:30 pm and is a great place to dine prior to night school classes. The varied menu is reasonably priced.

Four BCIT Faces on National Soccer Team

Three former students and one former staff member are members of Canada's national soccer team as it continues its long march towards the 1994 World Cup Soccer Tournament in Los Angeles.

The team includes goalkeeper Paul Dolan, midfielder David Norman (Business Administration '90) and Geoff Auger (Administrative Management '91).

A fourth former BCITer to join the team is Carmine Morelli, the former Hospitality Administration Program instructor, who transferred with his program to Vancouver Community College's City Centre Campus two years ago.

Morelli, who is the national team's coach in charge of performance diets, coached BCIT's inter-collegiate soccer team while Dolan, Norman and Auger were all students here.

"It was a proud moment for me watching three of my players — who I coached at BCIT — play an international match for Canada," Morelli said.

Hams on the Air Again

by Tom Nowak
Basic Health Sciences

The BCIT Amateur Radio Club is back on the air. After losing its original club facility to much needed staff offices, a new location has been obtained and the club's station, with the call letters VE7BIT, now meets every Wednesday in Room 115A in the SW9 Building at the southwest corner of the campus.

The club is in its early organizational stages and BCITers who have an amateur radio license, or who are interested in obtaining one, are invited to drop in 12:00 noon on Wednesdays, or contact Tom Nowak, 432-5792, Dave Peppar 432-8624 or Colin Schmutter 432-8858.

The existing club equipment could stand some expansion and upgrading, so if there are any campus hams or alumni with equipment which isn't being used, it could easily find a home at VE7BIT.

New Programs Offer Variety of Training

First AST Grads

BCIT's new AST Program has produced its first graduating class.

It's called the Automotive Service Technician (AST) Program, but many of the courses have names like Math 1, Physics 1, Drafting, Communications, Accounting Essentials, Computer Applications and Marketing.

As anyone knows who has looked under the hood of an automobile recently, the automotive industry has changed — big time. The buzz words are "training," "customer service," and "computer diagnostics."

To meet the needs of this changing industry, BCIT has developed the two-year-long AST diploma program to produce skilled technicians who can diagnose and repair today's sophisticated vehicles, as well as to produce skilled administrative personnel who have technical as well as business training.

The first intake of students was in January 1990 and, two years later, the program has its first graduates — Elise Gouin, Leo Shum, Stuart Stulberg and Stuart Money.

Women in Trades

Lower Mainland WITT (Women in Trades, Technology, Operations, and Blue Collar Work — TTO/BCW) is part of the WITT National Network. The group is the new version of the former Vancouver Women in Trades group that was active in the late 70s and early 80s.

Members of WITT either work in or train for trades, technologies, operations, and blue-collar jobs. They also serve as advocates, and work to get more women into these fields. Their goals are (1) to support each other through regular contact and (2) to promote the idea of women's employment in TTO/BCW jobs to girls, women, business, government and labour.

If you are a woman training for or working in a TTO/BCW job — come and join WITT! The group meets on the second Tuesday of every month at 19:00. For information, call Kate Pelletier at BCIT at 432-8233.

Stuart Money is the top student academically and winner of a UAP/NAPA award. Elise Gouin is the winner of the BCAA scholarship for best all-round student.

Painting and Decorating

A new 20-week pre-employment program for the painting and decorating industry took its first group of students in January. Graduates receive a Certificate of Trades Training and have the skills to enter the painting and decorating trade as production workers or as first-year painting and decorating apprentices.

Program topics include basic paint technology, colour theory and mixing, surface preparation, coating procedures, paint failures and spray finishing.

The program is taught by Dave Lick, a 20-year veteran of the trade. He recently spent a year-and-a-half in industry helping with the installation of new equipment and instructing workers on the latest automated painting equipment.

Securities Course

A new agreement between the Canadian Securities Institute and BCIT will assist those interested in working in the securities industry in Canada.

BCIT has redesigned its security analysis course to articulate directly with the CSI's Canadian Securities Course. Now all students who choose the finance option within BCIT's financial management technology program will take this course. These students, upon successful completion of their diploma program, may also gain accreditation with CSI.

New School Created

The new School of Electrical and Electronic Technology, officially created on January 1, houses about 1,000 students and 80 staff and offers the following programs transferred from other BCIT schools:

From the School of Trades Training

Electrical, Electronic and Motor Winding apprenticeships; Technician programs in Electricity and Industrial Electronics; Electronics Technician Common Core; Automated Business Equipment Technician; Telecommunications Technician; Advanced Industrial Computing.

From the School of Engineering Technology

Electronics Technology: Computer Control, Process Automation and Instrumentation, and Telecommunications.

In the "Hot Seat" for Training

BCIT in partnership with the B.C. Ministry of Forests now owns the most advanced firefighting training theatre in North America. Opened in December, the 200-seat high tech, interactive laser disc theatre is a more ambitious version of a 20-seat facility in Hinton, Alberta. Central Florida State University owns the only other interactive laser disc training theatre in North America.

Two students play the role of firefighter chiefs with teams of men and air support at their disposal. The laser discs store enough fire scenarios to display any conceivable result of the players' actions. The theatre puts students into the hot-spot of a simulated fire and gauges their effectiveness at dousing the flames. It shows instantly the effectiveness of their decisions on-screen and keeps a running total of the costs incurred in the fight.

The combination of video footage and the sound of the flames plus direct communications with other role players gives the students a feeling of being there.

Besides training BCIT students, the facility will be open to B.C. forest service personnel, civic and municipal fire departments, other universities and technical schools and environmental groups.

BCIT Developments

Campus Renewal Surges Ahead

A multi-million-dollar plan to upgrade BCIT facilities is now underway. Highlights include an $8-million Technology Building featuring a multi-media presentation room, lecture hall, classrooms and offices; a $3.4-million Connector Building providing sorely-needed office space and meeting rooms; numerous trades shops have been re-clad and upgraded; the Maquinna student residences have received a facelift.

New roadways, covered sidewalks and a campus square have all been completed. Other renovations and new construction are continuing. In keeping with BCIT's determination to keep up with the times, the latest in fibre-optics technology is being installed to improve campus communications.

New Programs to Meet the Future

Recently, several innovative new programs and facilities have been unveiled:

- A B.C. Ministry of Forests-supported fire simulation theatre opened in December.

- Honda Canada opened a new training centre for its automotive mechanic apprentices.

- A new Langley campus opened in November.

- A cardiology program, the first of its kind in Canada, opened in October.

- BCIT and the Open Learning Agency are now offering joint degrees.

- An agreement with BC Tel allows its employees to take BC Tel courses and receive credit towards certain BCIT programs.

- A BCIT securities course that's now recognized by the Canadian Securities Institute.

Honda Opens Innovative Centre

An accelerated automotive technician apprenticeship program has been developed between BCIT, Honda Canada Inc. and the Apprenticeship Branch of the Ministry of Advanced Education, Training and Technology.

Traditionally, apprentices spend about six weeks every year for four years attending training at BCIT towards journeyed status. Now, as a result of a special agreement between the three parties, Honda Canada dealership service employees can complete their apprenticeship technical training in two years by attending classes at BCIT for 16 weeks each year.

This is one of three such arrangements with Honda in Canada. And to make it happen, Honda contributed $225 thousand in shop renovations, special tools, uniforms, manuals and several Honda/Acura vehicles. Thirty-two students started training this fall on the pilot project. Enquiries have already been received from other provinces.

The facility will be shared with other BCIT automotive students when Honda is not utilizing the shop. The agreement also provides special training of BCIT instructors in Honda technology thereby keeping them up to date in a quickly changing industry.

Two major donations towards the purchase library materials have been made to BCIT by BCHydro and The Real Estate Foundation.

In October 1991, Hydro pledged $100 thousand to establish the BCHydro Library Renewal Trust. The provincial government has matched the donation. Interest from the combined sums will be used to purchase library books covering a wide range of subject matter — now and into the future.

The Real Estate Foundation contributed $25 thousand for the purchase of materials to develop and update a specialist collection in environmental management of real estate, including land use conflict, waste disposal, zoning and planning.

BCIT Librarian Paula Pick said these are the first corporate donations the library has ever received. A special reception and plaque unveiling to recognize these donations was held on January 27th in the library.

The BCIT Library contains about 400 thousand books, periodicals, pamphlets and non-print materials.

Roadside Retailing on the Gulf Islands

Not long out of school, Mark Meredith formed a sales promotion company where he sold a promotional package to the merchants of Gastown, which was just developing as a well known Vancouver tourist attraction.

While working on his third sales promotion, Mark discovered arts and crafts that were developing as the resurgence of the "hippy era" of the '60s. Although he had never worked at a craft before, Meredith thought he would give it a try. His objective was to become a production craftsman and live on the Gulf Islands as a roadside tourist attraction, thereby leaving the corporate world behind.

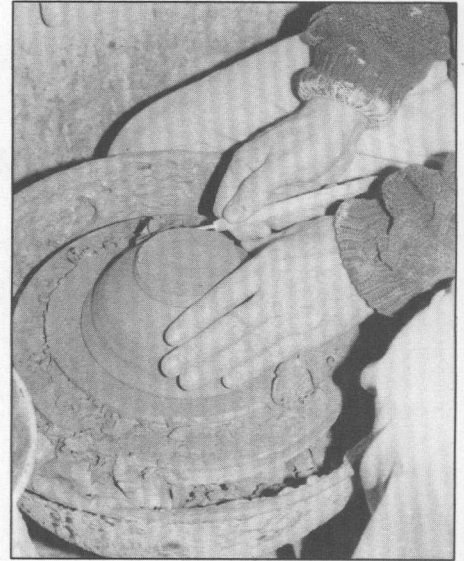

That was twenty years ago!

Today, Mark Meredith lives on Vesuvius Bay Road on Saltspring Island. He sells his island pottery in The Pottery Shack on the property. His clay, glazes, turning wheels, tools and kilns are in one building, gallery space in another, living quarters in another. His vision is coming together.

Meredith always wanted to make functional pottery — dishes and pots that could be used in the oven. Now he makes whole dinner sets, cream and sugar sets, teapots, mugs and even piggy banks. He wanted a distinctive glaze and has finally found it — a dark blue with black specks. He is known for this particular glaze and has been selling it for years.

Meredith is creating a gallery-cum-workshop so visitors will be able to watch him work. His vision of a roadside gallery has become an island reality!

Hands-on experience at the potter's wheel.

Career Tracks

There's an easy way and a hard way to do things in Brad Miller's business. Employees at Van Ingen Services Ltd. will do the job either way, at the specification of the customer, says Miller (Mechanical Engineering '86), plant manager.

Van Ingen, located in the Port Kells area, bends steel for almost any conceivable use - forestry, mining, construction, transportation, and the marine and tourist industries. The easy way and the hard way refers to the direction of the bend put on structural steel, I-beams, channel beams and flat bars. The whole point of the I-beam is not to bend. "The trick is to overcome that without destroying it," says Miller. The company's specialty is forming any type of steel in a curve or series of curves to create almost any shape an architect or engineer can imagine. The work ranges from airliner parts to bicycle racks, from roll bars for heavy equipment to underground mine or rail arches, or shaped steel for ski lifts.

Brad Miller started in sales with Van

Ingen 4-1/2 years ago; after three years he became manager. Despite the apparently wide applications, Brad calls his business a "narrow field" and a big part of his job is to market Van Ingen's service.

Some of their work includes decorative steel on the first SkyTrain stations, at Expo '86 as deck edge railings around False Creek, the Pan Pacific Hotel, the Victoria Convention Centre and domed atriums and fancy steelwork at malls in the Lower Mainland.

A non-traditional occupation in the latest brain scanning technology?

When Romanian-born Stela Parker was a child she remembers helping her father build and repair old radios. She was given trucks, trains and dolls to play with and later she was encouraged to become an engineer.

When her family immigrated to Canada just after she finished high school it was only natural to consider further education. She chose BCIT's Instrumentation and Control Systems program and when she graduated in 1976, she was only the second woman to do so. Since 1976 she has worked in the electronics and related industries and rarely meets other women. With her diploma in hand, Stela found her first job for a company at the Pitt Meadows Airport calibrating and repairing avionic instruments. Then she became the production supervisor for North Vancouver's Mesotech where they were building sonars and other underwater acoustic equipment.

In 1981, she joined CFT Systems, a medium-sized high tech firm in Port Coquitlam. Eleven years later, she has seen the company grow steadily to its present staff of 55. CFT Systems is involved in research and development into advanced brain scanning techniques. As production manager of the firm's electronics department, Stela often worked seven days a week to complete a project that could put the firm on the international map. She finds herself in a company where almost everyone has at least a two-year diploma and most have university degrees.

Trained in instrumentation, she now finds herself hiring, scheduling production, working with designers, shipping and even learning basic Japanese. If British Columbia is to develop a high technology industry, Stela says, it will need all the brains and skilled workers it can get.
