Employers more selective, says technical council

Over 80 per cent of job vacancies for accountants, engineers, scientists and data-processing staff are for specialists, according to the Technical Service Council's quarterly survey of 1,700 employers from coast-to-coast. The Council is an industry-sponsored personnel consulting firm and placement service.

"Most employers no longer seek, for example, a mechanical engineer, but rather insist upon someone with very specific experience," according to Neil Macdonald, the president of Technical Service Council. "In most cases, the knowledge and skills the employer is seeking can be obtained only through work, not in a university."

"The increasing complication of technology has been intensifying this trend for about 15 years. Today employers are under such pressure to reduce their costs that they are more than ever interested in people who can be productive right from their first day of employment."

A typical opening, which offers up to $40,000 per year, is for a maintenance planning engineer. The company is seeking a mechanical engineering graduate with two to five years in plant engineering, preferably in a process industry, supervisory ability and experience with micro-computers.

The survey showed that employers are becoming more selective as well as more interested in communication skills, supervisory potential and a knowledge of disciplines other than the one in which the person trained. Graduates who cannot express themselves well have trouble finding positions.

This selectivity reduces each employer's choice of candidates. So too does the reluctance of many professionals, even those unemployed, to leave the city in which they live. An estimated 60 per cent of professionals have spouses who work, further reducing mobility.

Candidates, meanwhile, have become more security-conscious because of the small choice of jobs and continual news of layoffs.

The survey also noted a tendency towards flatter organizations, with fewer levels of supervision. For the employer, this trend reduces operating costs and improves communications. However, opportunities for advancement are decreased at a time when the number of 'baby-boomers' has already intensified competition for

In order to get an interesting, high-paying job, you must first get an interview. In order to get an interview, you must be able to communicate effectively in writing. The written word, as presented in your resume, form and your application form, gives a prospective employer a first impression of you. Here are some points to remember when completing an application form. Remember, most employers who recruit on campus will request that you complete the standard application form supplied by the Canada Employment Centre on campus.
1. If possible, take your application home to complete on your own time and in your own words.

Volunteers needed for Variety Club Telethon

B.C.'s annual show of hearts rolls around in just three weeks. It also provides an opportunity for BCIT students to show their hearts, by volunteering to operate the phones on stage (and on camera!). Every year, dozens of BCIT students do participate, and this year will be no different.

Sign up at the Information Booth in the SAC.

The Variety Club Telethon runs February 15 and 16.

Thieves hit U of M watering hole twice

The BCIT Student Association is not the only student group being hit by a rash of break-ins - the University of Manitoba student pub was broken into twice during the first week of January. The first break-in at the 'UMZOO' occurred on January 3rd, although apparently nothing was taken.

The second break-in occurred the following evening, when thieves forced their way into the manager's office and the bar. The office was left in a mess and an assortment of promotional items and some wine and liquor was taken.

According to a report in the Manitoban, the student union wants the university to increase security during holiday periods, when the University Centre, where student operations are located, is left vacant.

The BCIT student food and beverage operation was hit twice by thieves in the past few weeks. The first robbery resulted in the loss of $1500 worth of kitchen equipment, the second break-in netted thieves $1000 worth of food items.

supervisory jobs.

Ontario reported the largest number of vacancies, followed in order by Alberta, Quebec, British Columbia and Manitoba.

Job opportunities for systems analysts and computer programmers are more numerous than any other kind. However, total vacancies were only one-eighth of those during the peak year of 1981.

Also in relatively strong demand were mechanical sales engineers (with opening concentrated in Ontario and Alberta), plant engineers (mainly in Ontario and Quebec), and manufacturing engineers (Ontario and Quebec).

Chemical process and project engineers were in short supply during the 1981 resource boom. Today vacancies in these fields are at one-twelfth of these peak levels.

Over half of the 100 specialties surveyed reported fewer than five openings each. In mid-1981, over 100 vacancies of some specialties were noted, and only 13 areas had fewer than five openings each.

The demand for petroleum engineers and oil-field specialists is expected to be increased by recruiters from firms in Libya, seeking to replace Americans who are leaving.

A separate survey by Bryce, Haultain & Associates, executive-search consultants, showed that vacancies for executives decreased 14 per cent during the last year. Most of the openings in the survey are in the $50,000 to $150,000 per year salary range.

As usual, financial executives were in greater demand than any other kind, accounting for 27 per cent of openings. They were followed by vacancies for sales and marketing executives (18 per cent), presidents and general managers (15 per cent), scientific and engineering managers (10.8 per cent), data processing managers (11 per cent), credit, traffic, public relations and other business managers (7.3 per cent), personnel and industrial relations managers (6.6 per cent), plant and manufacturing managers (6 per cent), mine and mill managers (1.1 per cent), purchasing and materials managers (0.7 per cent).

The Council anticipates little change in the job market during the next year. Small shortages of specialists are expected to continue as are surpluses of other kinds of personnel.

The Technical Service Council is a unique personnel consulting firm and placement service run by industry.

The TSC specializes in the placement of accountants, executives, engineers, scientists, personnel, data processing and sales staff and technologists. Over 45,000 men and women have received job offers through the Council at no cost to them.

The TSC has offices in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver.

Lockers not very secure

Editor, The Link,

Vandalism and theft has once again occurred in the change rooms. If you were renting a locker check and see what belongings you can salvage from the remains. Apparently the theft took place the week of Jan. 6th.

It is realized that round the clock security can not be maintained, and so it seems that there is none what so ever. Almost every locker was pried open with a crowbar or some such tool and it all went unnoticed?

Just what are we paying for when we rent these lockers? No mention of frequent break-ins was made to me when I was paying my rental fee. I have seen the one sign posted on the way in to the change rooms so I guess the management protected themselves from any legal hassle. There was no notification given as to the current status of the change room, you just get to find out by yourself, surprise!

Thanks for nothing Rec Services. I think all rental fees should be refunded to anyone suffering damages. Also it would be advised that you store your effects some place else and use the change rooms only when you are engaged in some immediate activity.

Students stuff stuff

Editor, The Link,

On Thursday Jan. 16 at 5 p.m. in the SAC Boardroom, 46 people got together for a party. The theme of the party was sign, fold and stuff.

As part of the process leading to Open House 1986, Tim Bramwell, the Open House Coordinator, invited all within earshot to the 'stuff-a-thon', bribing them with beer and pizza.

The fifteen thousand letters the 46 participants signed and stuffed are now on their way to the alumni of BCIT, inviting them to participate in the upcoming Open House.

The following are thanked for their help:

FUTUREWATCH

Predictions Perceptions Predilections

- Nathan Rees -

POLITICS by 1986-1987

Prior to Christmas of 1986, terrorism against the Western World will bring the world closer to actual war than at any time since the Cuban Missile crisis. Libya, Lebanon and Iran will all have a hand in destabilizing the confidence of free travel and select targets that have the greatest fear factor over the general population. The aim of these acts is to create chaos and animosity between existing allies and to try to aggravate the United States particularly into police action creating further loss of trust amongst the European and American power base.

Pink capitalism in Russia and China. The Chinese government has been applying widespread reforms and attempting to bring sectors of Chinese industry into a position where it can become a net exporter of consumer goods and some industrial products. China will look to Europe and North America for continued joint ventures for a good return on investment and Russia will apply the Hungarian formula and modify it to fit the Soviet model. Marxist purity will be modified to deal with the reality of the national balance sheet.

CANADIANA by 1986-1987

Watch for September to roll around because it is then that British Columbians will head back to the polls to bring in a newly elected government. It will be a tight race, a close finish and a coalition government will be the result.

Canada will experience renewed and moderate growth through 1987. B.C. will finally emerge from its hibernation and start following the rest of the country into a moderately more healthy economy.

Small Business will be the watchword for the balance of this decade. It will be small business that will create over 70 per cent of all new jobs in British Columbia. A new breed of entrepreneur is emerging after having been tested through the dark years. The benefits of the experience in surviving B.C.'s second great depression will start to be seen by these street smart business people.

LIFESTYLES - 1990

For the balance of the decade, marriage and it's more traditional elements will return to the sphere of normality as was seen in the 1950's. People will be older when marrying and opting out to have no children or the maximum 1.8 children per household as is affectionately described by our statistical moguls in Ottawa.

MONEY - by 1990

Look for an upswing in the Canadian dollar by 1987 to a level close to 80 cents as the Canadian economy levels to acceptable performance and the national debt starts to be reigned in.

Better value for your buck in clothing, furniture and other consumer products. The greying of the babyboom generation will see consumers demand and receive a greater emphasis on higher quality and more attention to detail, in both products and services.

Look for an orchestrated default by South American and African countries against the International Monetary Fund. This will be a political ploy to force the IMF and its supporting banks and governments to develop a 'Final solution' to the world's debt crisis. Look for a collapse and severe trade restraint which could precipitate panic in world currencies and lock out virtually every exporting country due to excessive protectionism.

The Link - an owner's manual

You are holding The Link, the official students' newspaper of the B.C. Institute of Technology. The Link 'closet' is located in the Student Activity Centre (Building 4A) across the hall from the free phones.

According to reliable sources, The Link was born sometime in 1966. An early mast head featured three chain links joined together. The rest, as they say, is history.

Over the past twenty years, the Link has been irregular, then monthly, then bi-weekly, and finally, for the last ten years under a full time manager, weekly.

The Link has grown in size and circulation with BCIT. In fact, the Link falls in line behind B.C.'s three universities, with a printing run of 5,000 every Wednesday.

But above all, The Link is printed for you. Aside from giving students the latest on campus news and sports, entertainment and campus affairs across the country, we provide several services especially for you, the student.

Here are some basic instructions on how to make the most of your campus newspaper.

ADVERTISING

Local and national advertising is solicited for The Link by Publisher Don Wright (432-8757). With an audience of some seven to eight thousand students, faculty and support staff, advertising in The Link can be very effective. If you are interested in advertising in The Link, give Don a call or drop by the office and he'll fill you in on what you need to know.

WHAT'S ON

This events and activities calendar on page 2 is a regular feature of The Link, which covers both on and off campus events, including tech dances, fund-raisers, sporting events and meetings.

If you have an upcoming event you would like publicized, simply type (or neatly print) your submission on 8 1/2 x 11 inch paper with your name and phone number and slip it into the Calendar tray in our office. This is a free service, make the most of it.

LETTERS

The letters section is the forum set aside for students and members of the community-at-large who think they have something to say.

Letter submissions should be typed, double-spaced, signed, and include printed name and phone number. The Link reserves the right to edit letters for brevity, and may refuse any letter that is libellous or contains attacks of a strictly personal nature.

TEAMS/CLUBS/ETC.

Generally game schedules, scores and reviews, and club meetings and events should be channeled through the trade, services to offer or whatever, ads must be in writing and prepaid. Watch for the special Valentine ads issue when tender messages are run for half-price.

PSA

Standing for Public Service Announcements (borrowed from 'radio' talk) these are short items from (mostly) charitable or otherwise non-profit organizations wishing to contact or involve students in something. We run a few each week as time and space permits.

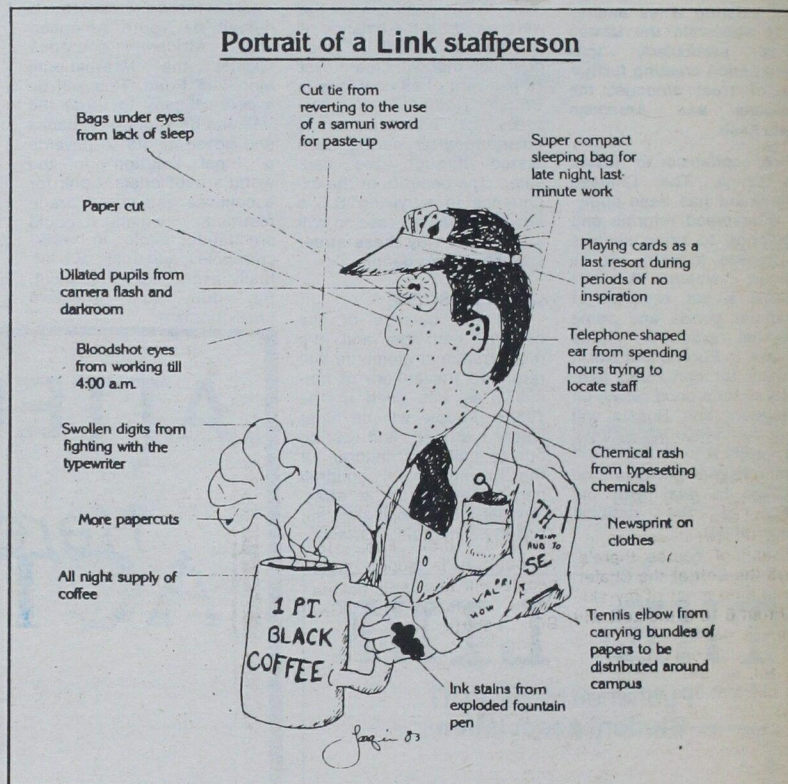

Submissions should be typed or neatly printed, and be no more than about 100 words in length.

WEEKEND

This is The Link's entertainment section (complementing Rok Vox, which is prepared by broadcast students up at CFML). Currently Weekend is very small, (in fact, there isn't one this week!) but it is ready to expand. If you catch a good, or bad, movie, play, concert, show, etc., let your fellow students in on the contenders and disasters. It's not that hard to write a review once you organize your thoughts, and once you see your name in print, it may be the start of a whole new career for you!

NEWS

Most news stories are generated by a Link staff person, but stories are always welcome from any member of the campus community. The Link is interested in stories of on campus interest, or local, regional and national stories touching on such topics as education, employment and technology, to name a few. If you have an idea, bring it down to The Link office and run it by the editor.

HELP!

It is almost impossible for The Link to cover what takes place on this campus completely. If you're aware of an event or story you think would be of interest to students here, don't walk, run to our office and clue us in.

If you have any questions or queries about The Link, drop on by.

The Link is always in need of photographers, writers of every description and general hangers-on.

Whether your interest lies in the arts, or covering rugby games, there is a place for you at The Link.

DEADLINES

The deadline for everything is Friday noonish. Material arriving late (i.e. Monday morning) will probably run, depending on workload. Material arriving after noon Monday, does so at great risk. Be forewarned!

ETC

There are many ways to contribute to, and benefit from, The Link. Take advantage of your campus paper. You'll be glad you did.

With apologies to the U. of Calgary Gauntlet, for stealing material from their owner's manual, and to the Cord, for the staffperson graphic, above.

What is SKI BCIT anyway?

-Randy Derrick-

On February 19, the first SKI BCIT takes place at Grouse Mountain. You've probably seen the posters, the piles of snow in the courtyards, and heard it whispered in the halls. But what exactly is SKI BCIT? Well, now that the big day is drawing near, here is a brief rundown on what to expect.

Skiing gets underway at 11 a.m., and you can ski your brains out until 11 p.m. under the lights. For the Podbor-ski's, there will be ski racing at the Labatt's ski racing course from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. There will also be all kinds of prizes awarded. Sign up for this event at the top of the hill.

But you can't ski? No problem. Rent some skis and flop about for awhile, or partake in some of the many activities. There will be a snow croquet competition (not for the faint of heart), a snow sculpture contest and a tug of war. All events can be entered at the hill except for the snow sculpture. 12 teams will be formed from the various technologies, so contact your Sports Rep to enter.

For those in need of sustenance, there'll be an outdoor beer garden and burger pit (weather permitting), and of course there's always the Loft at the Chalet where I'll do most of my skiing. From 6 to 8 the Loft will feature a pasta bar for only $9.95. An awards presentation for all the events will take place at 9 in the Peanut Bowl after the tug of war. And then it's back to the Loft! By the way, the Loft only holds 300, so its first come, first serve.

Tickets are available from the Recreation Office or through your Sports Rep.

At the side is a list of events - a map will be available at the mountain so you know where to go.

Now for the price - which is a pretty good deal. A lift pass for the day costs only $12 and for those of you without equipment, rentals are $10. For non-skiers, $4 will get you a Skyride to the mountain and all the events. SKI BCITers will have to find their own way to Grouse, although if you can get 48 people together, a bus could be chartered to take you to the mountain for only $250. Contact the Recreation Office before Jan. 31 if this interests you. Tickets will be available until Feb. 18, although it is hoped most people will buy their tickets before January 31st. SKI BCI t-shirts, rugby shirts, sweat pants, turtle necks and hats are also available at the Rec Office.

This is the first SKI BCIT event and it is hoped that it will become an annual event. Judging by the reaction so far it will be! The price is definitely right, and it is going to be a whole load of fun for the skier and non-skier alike. So buy your ticket today and get ready for what promises to be the biggest school day of the year. Then get down on your knees, clasp your hands firmly in front of your face, bow your head, and pray fervently for pile upon pile, drift upon lovely drift of snow!!

Going skiing?

Some advice!

-Iqbal Parekh-

A recent Dutch study, completed last month, indicated that the safest and best skiers aren't those you'd expect. Skiers who'd had something to drink before hitting the slopes for some reason were less likely to have an accident. Skiers were also proven to be less hazardous if they'd not had a full night's sleep. The study also showed that people without a university education were better skiers than the more educated ones, and that people who wear expensive outfits tended to be poorer skiers.

So...get out those jeans, slug back some brandy, and hit the slopes after a night of partying and you're sure not to get hurt!

SHOULD BCIT AMALGAMATE WITH BCVS OR... WHY BUGGER UP A GOOD THING?

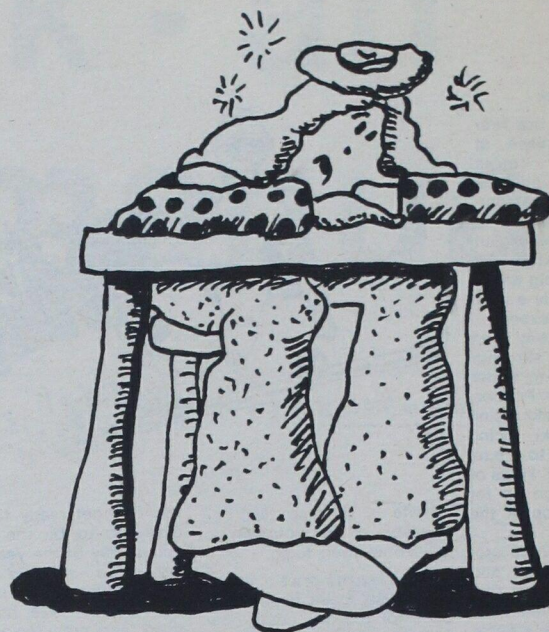

BCIT is currently undergoing numerous studies to determine the feasibility of amalgamating with BCVS. This may be a great idea from the Government's point of view, but we sincerely hope that the boys in Victoria give everyone a chance to state their views.

Joining the Administrations will probably save a small amount of money each year, (although this seems unlikely due to the fact that the plan calls for a president to act as a common authority over both institutions) but is it worth what we have to give up? We will eventually get a great deal of program melding between the two institutes and students of both schools will be forced to learn even more irrelevant material than they do presently. No amount of accounting in the world will teach a welder to do his trade any better... and I don't know of any computer programmers who have a great desire to learn more about bricklaying. Extreme examples they may be, but perhaps the truth is not too far away.

BCIT is expanding every year now, and BCVS is expected to expand to about 2000 full-time students by 1975 also, it seems that by combining these two institutions, the problems created will outweigh any of the more obvious advantages anyway. These 7000 students probably would have a better chance of obtaining a job through a BCIT or BCVS diploma than through an amalgamated institute that no one really knows anything about. It is obvious that the present system really works, so why bugger around with the "system" and possibly screw up the chances of obtaining a job for every student in BCIT & BCVS.

Then again, perhaps we're being too pessimistic for it may be the best thing that every happened to BCIT. The combined campus may give us the added influence we need in dealing with the bureaucrats in Victoria. The expanded Advisory Committee could be given some real power and be well on its way to becoming a Board of Governors for both BCIT and BCVS.

Fight that hangover!

-James E Morrow, RN-

Prevention is the watchword in treatment of all diseases and the hangover is no exception. Just don't drink or, at least, drink moderately.

Know what you're drinking, too. Ethyl alcohol is almost odorless and tasteless. To make alcoholic beverages of a certain type, such as wine, gin, whiskey and the like, 'congeners' must be present. These congeners provide taste, odor, flavour, and aroma, and are present in all alcoholic beverages along with ethyl alcohol and water.

Most congeners enter the beverage through the grain used, others are drawn from the containers used, especially the wooden ones used in aging. However some congeners are toxic. Vodka is the purest form of ethyl alcohol and contains the fewest congeners.

Alcohol causes many chemical and physical changes within the body. It is diuretic (increases urination) and, therefore, a person under the influence of alcohol is losing water and various salt substances. Alcohol also dilates all the blood vessels in the body, manifested by a flushing of the face and an increase in the heart rate. Dilation of the blood vessels in the brain is what causes headaches.

Dehydration associated with drinking alcohol can be corrected by large intakes of non-alcoholic fluids. Some of these fluids should contain salt, such as a salty broth and salted tomato juice. This will correct the fluid loss (dehydration) and the loss of salt (electrolytes).

Coffee can reduce the dilation of the blood vessels in the brain and aid in reduction of the headache. An upright position will also help. Honey is rich in fructose, a nutrient that increases the metabolism of alcohol, so one should eat honey prior to going to bed after a bout of drinking. This is best done by eating a tablespoon of honey spread on a slice of dry toast. In order for the fructose to help, however, vitamin B must also be present, so take a vitamin B-complex tablet as well.

The following morning all the above mentioned steps may be repeated: fluids, salty broth, salted tomato juice, coffee and honey-toast. With a little time, the body will correct all the deficiencies and one will recover from the hangover.

The importance of application forms

This series courtesy the On-campus Canada Employment Centre.

In order to get an interesting, high-paying job, you must first get an interview. In order to get an interview, you must be able to communicate effectively in writing. The written word, as presented in your application form and your resume, will give a prospective employer a first impression of you.

Here are some points to remember when completing an application form. Remember, most of the employers who recruit on campus will request that you complete the standard application form supplied by the Canada Employment Centre on campus.

1. If possible, take the application home to complete on your own time and in your own surroundings.
2. Read this form over carefully before attempting to complete it. This will help you avoid entering information in the wrong section.
3. Under the work experience section of the application, do not put 'student'. Begin with your most recent job and continue to list them in reverse order.
4. Most forms request narrative comments on your extra-curricular activities, the type of work you desire and any additional information relevant to the field of work for which you are applying. Remember to keep it simple and to the point. Now is not the time to write your autobiography.

5. Review your application form carefully. Grammar, sentence structure and spelling must be perfect. No exceptions may be made to this rule.

6. Remember to sign and date the application. This is the most frequent omission noted by employers.

Now that you have completed the application form, make a copy of it. This will help you save time when you complete other application forms.

get your application in on time! Most job vacancies will have an application deadline. If your application is late it will not be considered for an interview.

Good luck. If you have any questions or need help completing your application form, please come to see us at the Canada Employment Centre on campus, 2N204.

The film for Canadians

- Kurt Hansler -

Samual Lount should be required viewing for all Canadians. Witnessing this film is almost an act of patriotism in itself. If more books and films had dealt and concerned themselves with similar subject matter, Canadian myth and legend would be developed enough to sustain what Canada lacks most: a cohesive national identity.

Instead, our forefathers chose to cling meekly to the apron-strings of a domineering, anti-democratic mother, while a republic blossomed to the south. This republic, burgeoning with individual freedoms and rights, scared early Canadians (and some former Americans referred to as 'loyalists') into the fold of the colonial matron's gown.

Ever since, Canadian identity has been muffled, and because of Canada's proximity to the United States, it is, essentially a cloned copy. The only difference being, Canada has more royal visits - although even this number is becoming similar. More films of this nature, and quality, would definitely enhance the Canadian psyche as well as the domestic film industry.

Samual Lount is a Canadian who saw the light, and with Lyon Mackenzie's Reform Party, set out to scare elected officials into acting on behalf of the people, rather than the aristocracy. Because of Samual's pacifist convictions, he intended it to be no more than a show of force. For three days in December 1837, Lount and Mackenzie led a group of Reform Party rebels on an unsuccessful march to Toronto, Upper Canada's capital. Poor organization and planning led to the protest's dissolution halfway to its goal. On their return, while peacefully encamped, the British militia attacked - effectively ending any further efforts to influence or change Canadian government.

The producer, Elvira Lount, great great niece of the film's subject, succeeded where her uncle failed, and was able to influence the CBC, the Government television network, that her project was worth developing. 'Samual Lount' cost $8 million and spanned a period of three years from inception to first screening.

Elvira describes herself as a "bit of a rebel who identified with Samual," explaining why she produced the movie. Laurance Keane and Phil Savath were hired to research and write a script, based on Lount family folklore and historical records. It became a key, opening the door to the CBC and Telefilm, the government's film development corporation. All agree, the CBC's production assistance was invaluable. Only one minor disagreement arose, resulting from an inherent difference between film and television. Laurance relates that it occurred because television is like radio (if the sound is turned off the story can still be followed), and the CBC people were afraid to let the picture tell the whole story in certain scenes, and would want dialogue or other audible information to accompany the picture.

Samual Lount is a splendid example of the type and quality of film that can be produced in Canada. F.W. Thomson is a convincing Lount, with the rest of the cast provide just accompaniment. It will probably be of interest to foreign audiences, having the ability to spearhead Canadians and their films onto the world stage, a la the Australian experience.

If you missed Samual Lount's recent run at the Ridge, you can still catch it this spring on the CBC. Some other movies made with the cooperation of the CBC and Telefilm are: 'My American Cousin', 'Joshua Then and Now', 'Bayo', and 'One Magic Christmas'.
