Few nominations for S.A. executive

By Jon Ferebee

Nominations are slow coming in for the up coming Student Association elections. During Monday's meeting of the Student Association Andrea Bartlett, vice president in charge of administration and finance, reported that only three nominations had been received to fill the eight S.A. positions.

Bartlett says any student who is interested in what goes on at BCIT, and wants a say in student council decisions would be a good candidate. Bartlett began last year as a member at large and moved up to the vice president's position this (school) year. She says her two years on council have been rewarding and practical as her interests include the administration and finance fields.

The executive makes decisions on spending and school activities and services and runs several business operations, including TAPS, Growlies, SAMS, the TNT stores and the new computer store. It is also responsible for such programs as Shinerama and a soon to be initiated campus cleanup campaign.

During Monday's executive meeting Bartlett, who acts as Chief Returning Officer for the elections, appointed Engineering division chairperson Jack Nelson as Deputy Returning Officer for the upcoming vote.

The positions available are those of president, vice president for administration and finance, vice president for public relations and marketing, vice president for student affairs, campus recreation chairperson, business society chairperson, health society chairperson, and engineering society chairperson. Nominations will be accepted until 11:30 a.m. March 4th. Nomination forms may be obtained from the S.A. general office in the SAC building.

The elections are slated for March 26th and 27th.

Changes expected in student aid money

By James Roberts

Some of the harshest critics of the provincial government's policy on student aid are saying they expect more money will be put into the aid program and changes will be made by next fall.

Canadian Federation of Students researcher Suzanne Moran predicted an announcement by the minister responsible for Post Secondary Education, Stan Hagan, slated for February 28, will provide more funding.

"We're certainly hopeful there will be a lot more emphasis on needs based student assistance and that there is going to be some kind of funding increase for student aid," said Moran.

BCIT Financial Aid advisor Kathy Schweers agrees that the tone of the government indicates there will be changes to the student aid program following a review of submission made to the minister via and advisory committee set up last fall to look into student aid.

"The tone seems to be good. They are reviewing all the submissions and they seem to be supportive to a lot of the recommendations," said Schweers.

The predictions came shortly after a report released by Simon Fraser University Financial Aid director Vern Loewen. Loewen predicted the student debt problem will grow worse unless improvements are made to B.C.'s aid program.

Saying the average debt load being carried by SFU students ranges between nine and thirteen thousand dollars Loewen said future grads will owe more money because they have been in college or university at a time when there were no grants offered by the government.

A student aid advisory force has reported to Minister Stan Hagan including recommendations from student councils, student aid advisors and other education community people. The Ministry of Education has in turn approached the Treasury Board for money and the results of the request are expected to be announced by Hagan on February 28.

Volleyballers on top

This past weekend, the Totem Conference completed its volleyball season with a flurry at Castlegar, B.C.

The BCIT women's volleyball team entered the tournament as the number one team on B.C. with a 10 win 2 loss record. They also entered the tournament ranked as the 9th best team in Canada. One game behind them was Caribou College, previously ranked 8th in Canada, with a 9 win 3 loss record. When the dust finally settled in Castlegar, BCIT and Caribou College emerged as league co-champions, each with a 13 win 3 loss record (Caribou College in fact receives 1st place due to tie breaking procedures).

BCIT began the day by downing Malaspina College 15-8, 15-8 to knock them out of playoff contention.

BCIT then played what was labelled the most exciting game of the year against Caribou College, the match for 1st place. BCIT started slowly, losing the first game 4-15 but rebounded with a 17-15 score in the second game. With the score tied at 14-14 in the 3rd game, Diana Chow (one of BCIT's leading players) was severely injured and was taken away by ambulance. BCIT subsequently lost 2 points and lost the match 4-15, 17-15, 14-16. Diana returned later on with a severely stretched quad muscle.

BCIT rebounded quickly from the defeat, beating Trinity Western University 16-9, 16-14 and downing Selkirk College 15-13, 15-12.

With the end of the season came the selections to the all-star team. Karen Nickel of BCIT was the leagues leading vote getter with 21 votes and was named to the Totem Conference all-star team. Karen, who was being scouted by several national level coaches, was also selected as one of two all Canadians in B.C. As a result, she will now be asked to tryout for the Canadian national Team later in the year. Tami Koneski, also of BCIT,

C-c-contest winners

Link Staff Report

Last Friday students were dashing into the This & That Emporiums to deposit their Catch the C-C-Contest entry forms before deadline. The final draws were to take place that afternoon.

At 3:30 p.m., TNT staff gathered in the main store to watch the drawing of the last six names of the four week contest. The grand prize television, the second prize stereo system, and two telephones and two portable stereos were given away. (The first two telephones and two portable stereos were drawn and awarded two weeks ago).

"We had 4078 entries," said Colleen Knox, TNT assistant manager. "The odds of winning a prize were approximately one in 400. It averages out to nearly one entry per person on campus, although I know a lot of people entered many times, the names Howard Chan and Jeffrey Moore kept showing up while I was counting entries."

The contest was sponsored by Coca Cola Bottlers, and entry forms were given for each purchase of a Coca Cola product at the TNT stores.

The big winner was Bernard Kragt, who gets to take home the television. Next in line was Martin Webb, who gets a new stereo to listen to. Both Francis Cheung and Tyler Galb won telephones, and portable stereos go to Wilson McKenzie and Wayne Chang.

Prizes may be picked up at the TNT main store.

Cooperative Education Coordinator Ernst Wilmlink drew names for the TNT C-c-contest last Friday.

S.A. wants to clean up

By James Roberts

With a new president and one new executive member the student executive met Monday evening and are looking forward to next year wondering who will run in the spring elections to replace this year's group.

While Pat Carroll is just settling in at the president's position and Carol Hess is learning the job of v.p. student affairs the v.p. administration, Andrea Bartlett, reported that there are only three people signed up to run for positions this spring. Bartlett promised an ad campaign will appear in the Link newspaper and she urged members of the executive to get the word out to prospective politicians who may be willing to take on the always rewarding and sometimes difficult challenge of running a student society.

Remembering difficulties, the name of past president Grant Sidnick was raised at the meeting in connection with money owed to the S.A. Sidnick has promised to pay back just over $300 to a discretionary fund and now owes another $107, the balance due back from an expense account he received to attend a meeting on behalf of BCIT students. Sidnick will be notified by S.A. business manager Phil Henderson and asked to return the money as soon as possible.

Henderson reported to the executive that the deadline set by the provincial government for the S.A. to take advantage of money offered to needy students is now the end of March. Under the program the B.C. government is willing to match funds collected by the S.A. up to a maximum of $14,000. The S.A. has been using several methods to collect money for those students on campus who find themselves in severe financial difficulty. Currently the S.A. collects Scholars Dollars, holds special pub nights and turns some video game revenue over to the fund, and there are plans to place specially marked cans around campus asking for donations. All money collected will be distributed through Financial Aid.

In other news, the executive plans to make changes to the constitution and those changes will be published in The Link for a second week (this issue) then be voted on by council on February 23. Students with concerns are urged to speak with executive members prior to next week's vote.

Students seeking work on campus next year may have more to choose from if a proposal to take over some of the janitorial services on campus passes S.A. and administration approval. A first year Administration Management student will present his idea to the S.A. Business Liaison Committee this week. Executive member Steve Neil says the student is serious about the proposal which includes student jobs in janitorial work on campus.

S.A. president Pat Carroll urged the executive to think about ways that students can get involved in the campus cleanup. He said it's important the S.A. develop a good working relationship with the senior administration on campus who "wants us to feed them some ideas".

Athletics and recreation chair Ray Richard offered to chair a committee on the campus cleanup and health division chair Terry Gaetz offered to work with the committee.

Executive members complained about the state of the campus, saying "the janitorial service in the 1A building seems to be non-existent". Richard said he had attended an alumni meeting last week where one alumni rep said, "nobody will support the proposed new campus center if they see what a pigsty this place is". Richard added, "We need publicity on this thing, it's student garbage."

Valentine deliveries benefit Telethon

Link Staff Report

If you were on campus last Friday you may have noticed a lot of people wandering around with red and white balloons or bunches of flowers. If you were lucky you may even have received a balloon or flower delivery yourself.

It was all part of a fund raising effort by the Student Association in aid of the Variety Club Telethon held over the weekend. Cheryl MacNaughton, vice president of public relations and the member of the executive responsible for the balloons and flowers, said the one day 'Valentine' delivery service raised $600 for the Telethon.

"It was very successful and well received by students and the administration. The flowers and balloons put a smile on everyone's face," said MacNaughton. She added that the students who helped with the event made over 150 deliveries to unsuspecting students, faculty and staff on campus.

"I'd really like to thank all those who participated," added MacNaughton.

missed being selected to the all-star team by one vote.

BCIT now plays Vancouver Community College in the B.C. playoffs. With this one victory, BCIT is assured of at least a silver medal in the B.C.'s and a berth to the national championships in Red Deer, Alberta, from March 24 to March 28. BCIT has beaten VCC twice during the season. The B.C. championships are being hosted by Capilano College at Handsworth High School in North Vancouver on March 7.

New computer store opens

By Jon Ferebee

The Student Association's computer store is now open. The store, funded by the Student Association, is designed to make computer software and hardware accessible to BCIT students at reasonable rates.

Store manager Dan Brunt says students and faculty alike have been very supportive of the new store. He adds that the library foyer location has proven ideal and the prices unbeatable.

The store carries a line of IBM compatible computers called JMI (Jackel Microcomputers Incorporated). The line was designed by former SFU computer student Gary Jackel upon request by that university for a cheaper but reliable IBM compatible computer for use at SFU.

Brunt says SFU found the computers to be of the highest quality and are now using more than one hundred JMI units in their computer department. Simon Fraser University and Malaspina College in Nanaimo are also selling the JMI line in stores on their campuses. Brunt says the JMI is roughly half the price of an IBM personal computer. He also says his store offers software at about twenty per cent lower than average prices.

Director of Computer Resources and Systems Morven Wilson is pleased there is a store on campus to help supply student demand for computer products. He adds that technologies are changing and students should be aware there are other products on the market.

It's your choice

Student elections are almost upon us: just as the current student executive has settled into their jobs, learned the ropes and made some accomplishments, it's time to pack up the office files, write some thank-you letters and then ease the new executive into their new posts. The new executive is, of course, you.

At least the old executive is hoping a sizable contingent of the student body politic will seriously consider running in the upcoming elections and represent next year's students. On good authority we're told the jobs are at least rewarding, at best exhilarating...with a touch of frustration thrown in.

The bottom line though is best discovered by a review of the positions now held by people who were past student executives: a great many have gone on to successful careers in business, politics and the arts. Many of these say their work as student executive members formed an integral part of their way upward.

Several of this year's executive are available with office doors open to describe their jobs, their feelings and what might be expected. Take advantage of the offer.

A business story

It's a horrific tale of destruction, death and general chaos: It's the story of what capitalist and socialist business practices have meted out to the earth's environment. This week one of Canada's leading business members warns a committee in Winnipeg that Canadian business must begin to recognize the totality of what is happening. Long time Liberal Maurice Strong could have been speaking to the future business leaders now studying at BCIT.

Checking our own files under "environment" the following newspaper stories tell the tale: This week a Washington Institute warns, "the pressures of population growth and economic expansion are starting to exceed the ability of the earth's natural systems...on the same day the Globe and Mail reports, "Acid rain is killing off the ducks of eastern North America...we are changing the basic chemistry of Eastern North America...something that has not been done in human history"...in the Sun this past week reports that low levels of lead in the air cause stunted development in children. 13 per cent of lower-mainland motorists fuel cars designed for unleaded gas with the leaded product...and the list goes on and on and on...and we've only looked back one week into the files.

It seems Mr Strong has a point. Our ears should be open.

Beliefs to be surveyed

Editor, The Link,

A look at any bulletin board tells us that BCIT is a prime example of the pluralism of Canadian culture. Individuals pursue widely differing interests, adopt various codes of behaviour and centre their lives on assorted "prime directives". One example Glenn M. Hardie pointed out for us two weeks ago in his letter is that humanism and Christianity; rather than being two mutually compatible aspects of the Canadian identity, are in fact two entirely different - even opposing - world views.

In light of this recent discussion of spiritual and philosophical issues, we in Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship will be conducting a survey concerning the beliefs of BCIT students on Wednesday, February 18th.

We hope that people will be willing to spend a few minutes sharing their honest opinions on issues we consider significant. Assuming that we can obtain a sampling of the BCIT population, we will publish the results of the survey in an upcoming edition of the Link.

Spare a few minutes...

Editor, The Link,

Please mail a letter to Ottawa (postage free) and ask a simple Nuclear related question. You have only to invest a little time and paper.

1) Why is it necessary for the U.S.A. to continue Nuclear Tests when it causes the U.S.S.R. to resume testing? Tests of "smart" electronics guidance equipment is reasonable, but Nuclear detonations at the rate of twice a month seem pointless and foolish.

2) Why does Canada fail to join with Australia, New Zealand, Sweden, Iceland, and other nations to press both the U.S.A. and U.S.S.R. to end live Nuclear testing and world pollution.

3) Submarine launched missiles can not be stopped by SDI or "Star Wars" technology. These low flying weapons escape radar detection in most cases. Why must tax dollars from Canada be used on a project that has no defensive value or use?

If you simply ask for one general aim such as peace, you are not likely to get any reply. If you ask a question of your own or if you use one of the above, you will very likely get an interesting official letter in reply.

You are not alone! The volume of mail to Ottawa for Nuclear sanity is growing. Join in! Please do your part! Your Ottawa letter is important and will help prevent a Nuclear Winter. Address is House of Commons, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A-0A6

Rugby team planning trip

The BCIT rugby team is going on a road trip this year, but not to the U.S. or anywhere in Canada. They're going to New Zealand, Fiji, and Hawaii for 21 days.

The team leaves on May 30, the day after school ends. They travel to New Zealand first for two weeks and play three games against local third division (21 and under) teams. They also have tickets to a couple of games of the World Cup of Rugby, so the team will see history in the making. Then it's off to Fiji for four days and Hawaii for three. Strictly for pleasure.

Trips like this aren't unusual for our rugby team. Every year they generally take a trip somewhere. They've been all over Canada and the U.S., but this is their first time off the continent. It's a lot of hard work funding these excursions. The Cougars run concessions at tournaments, hold barbeques, raffles, dances, and have even done the security for a Corey Hart concert, and (believe it or not) for WWF wrestling. The Student and Alumni Associations have also kicked in for some much appreciated funding.

Our rugby team plays in a senior men's division three league. They are currently at six and three, and coach Gary Miller feels they are improving all the time. The Cougars are younger than most of the teams they play, so they use youth and quickness to make up for their lack of experience. It seems to be working. In the eleven years that Gary has coached the squad, they've played in nine championship games, winning the title four times.

Now, how does the coach feel the Cougars will do against the New Zealand teams? Well, rugby is like a religion down under, and Gary is hoping to gain some experience and have a good time. Knowing rugby players, the latter will be no problem.

And I'm sure they'll do well on the pitch.

The rugby team has several fund raising events coming up. At the end of February, they'll be running the concessions at the Lower Mainland Basketball Championships here at BCIT. On April 14 and 15, they're holding the annual Cougar Classic, a rugby tournament at Burnaby Lake, and there will be a dance. And every Friday for the foreseeable future, the team will be running a barbeque just outside the SAC from 3:00 pm to 6:00 pm. There are also raffles and all sorts of things. So don't be afraid to buy a ticket or a burger, it's for a good cause.

Ski BCIT

As you noticed, SKIBKIT was a little wet last Wednesday. Well, don't be discouraged. Keep your skis out and hope that next Wednesday the 25th is a little colder and a little whiter. Your tickets are still good for it, and if the weather really co-operates, there are still lots of tickets available that can be bought on the day itself.

Shisei-Kai Karate Club

Membership is currently at 20, including a BCIT instructor and a lawyer. Everyone is starting at their White Belt level under careful instruction of Sensei James Johnson, 4th degree Black Belt and one of Shisei-Kai's chief instructors. We have had 3 visiting instructors, all champions in Canada, the Commonwealth, and world competition. Instruction at BCIT is highly professional and very interesting!

Members from BCIT Karate Club will be assisting at the BC Provincial Junior Championships in Burnaby from April 4th to 5th.

BCIT Karate Club members visited the Shisei-Kai Shiai Tournament, held February 7, 1987. Members observed events involving Kata (pre-arranged defence moves) to free sparring at the Black Belt levels, seeing what training and perseverance can do for people who want to try.

The Club is now training in the 3A building coffee room on Mondays and Wednesdays from 8:00 pm to 9:30 pm.

People are welcome to join us! Fees are only $20.00 per month. You are invited to watch or take part in a training session for free on Mondays or Wednesdays! Call Anthony Gurr at 437-3934 (evenings).

Cougar ruggers mauL Lions

The BCIT Cougars Rugby Club made it two in a row on Saturday by beating the older and more experienced Richmond Lions by a score of 8-0.

This was a classic match pitting the 10 man style of the Lions against the full team concept of the BCIT Ruggers. The score sat at 0-0 at half time with the Cougars hungry to play and the opposition looking to end the game content with a tie.

The Cougars drew first blood 10 minutes into the second half the Richmond forward had won their set scrum and spun the ball to their backs only to be stapled by the hard running BCIT backs the forwards won the ruck and then mauled the ball 35 yards down the field to score - newcomer Ken Burgess scored his first try in rugby.

The second try of the game was the prettiest try of the season for the Cougars. Coach Gary Miller said, "We won a clean ball in the set about 40 yards out and attacked the blind side on a set call our eighth man fed rookie scrum half Jim Markum who sped 20 yards for the try breaking over the Richmond fullback in the process."

The Cougars next game is an exhibition game in Mount Vernon, Washington, against the Skagit Valley R.F.C.

Total Loss of Control Terry Crawford

Be forewarned, this album isn't for the squeamish. There isn't a song on the album that doesn't smack of friendships, commitment, love lost, love found, or about being there when you're needed. So if you're just coming off a broken relationship, the chances of good you won't get through side A without a handkerchief. If your love life is tottering on the brink, the sentiment expressed on Total Loss of Control might be enough to push you off the ledge.

For example: "How Do I Get You On A Night Like This" when "I'm Standing in the Shadows of Love?" The "First Step" is to "Live Without You" for a while because "We're Just Friends". But "I'll Be Back" around "Christmas" "One Night" when it'll be "So Nice To See You". Sound familiar? This, my friends, is Terry Crawford's latest album: ten songs, ten buckets of tears.

Affairs of the heart may be good subject matter for sad songs, but an entire album of them? You'd think the world would have had enough of silly love songs. Not so here. Writer/producers Joey Feeney and Tom Thorne and guitarist Rick Johnston's contribution of trite lyrics has given new meaning to the word bland. Take Johnston's "So Nice To See You" for example. "You turned the pages of my past / You, you tell the stories make me laugh / You, you are my cure, you ease the pain / It's so nice to know that after all these years some things never change".

Believe me, it gets worse. Most of the lyrics on the record are completely forgettable. It's like they were constructed from Rock and Roll's paint-by-number school of worn-out clichés.

However, thanks mainly to the songwriting prowess of Motown giants Holland/Dozier/Holland, Crawford's rip roaring cover of the 1966 Four Tops hit, "Standing In The Shadows Of Love" lends some much needed variety to an otherwise mediocre set of songs. Crawford's certainly in no danger of eclipsing the Four Tops version, but she hammers out a solid effort just the same.

On "Christmas (Baby

Please Come Home)" - a song originally performed by the Ronettes - Crawford shines her brightest. "Gonna sing and deck the halls / But it's not like Christmas at all / 'Cause I remember when you were here / And all the fun we had last year". Crawford reaches down to the core of her existence for this one and draws out every ounce of soulful energy from her rough-cut words, especially when she stretches out the words "Baby Please Come Home". I love this cut it's pure emotion.

"I'll Be Back" features a searing sax solo by Earl Seymour of the Arrows, a group whose production is similar to that of Crawford's recordings. Both bands, the Terry Crawford Band and the Arrows, subscribe to the big-bang theory of sound: production with all the sonic subtlety of a nuclear blast. Is it any wonder "Total Loss of Control" was recorded at Enorm-us Sound in Toronto?

"I'll Be Back" is the first single from the LP, and regardless of Can-Con regulations, it merits radio play. "One Night" is also aimed at the commercial Top 40 market and should do well on rock radio formats.

Nominated as most promising female vocalist at the 1982 Juno Awards, this pretty Montreal-born singer has plenty of talent. What's lacking in Terry Crawford's repertoire is almost forgotten by the quality of her passionate and husky voice. She's a stylist who can turn a lyric with the best of them even the insipid lyrics on "Total Loss Of Control".

The Whole Story Kate Bush EMI Records

"The Whole Story" is twelve top twenty hits and five top ten albums in Britain in 10 years for Kate. Unlike other women in rock she is the consummate artist. She has made her mark as a singer, songwriter, instrumentalist, producer, choreographer, and director (of her videos).

This record is a greatest hits package that chronicles Bush and her Fairlight synthesizer, from her first record (the single "Wuthering Heights" which went number 1 in England) through her "Hounds of Love" album. It also contains a new song called "Experiment #4".

This is a good record full of well thought-out, finely crafted pop-art rock. For anyone not familiar with her work this is a good introduction to the reigning queen of British rock.

One Step Closer Gavin Christopher Manhattan Records

Gavin Christopher aspires. "My aim is to party the country," his bio says. What this would mean if it happened is not clear, but the country is safe from being parted by this album.

Fortunately the album is not as idiotic as vocalist Christopher's proclamation. Its music lies in that fuzzy area of rock-soul or pop-soul or dance-funk where people like Rufus and Chaka Khan also operate. In fact, Christopher has written songs for and sung with Chaka Khan.

On this album, Christopher is credited with six of the nine songs. Lyrically, they are ordinary if competent. He can rhyme chance and dance, desire and fire, groove and move. All the songs move along the deep rutted route of broken hearts and destined love.

There are rhythmically interesting openings on several of the songs, notably the title cut, "Are We Running From Love", and "Love is Knocking at Your Door". But after the opening, the beat tends to go disco.

The album has to stand on the strength of Christopher's voice. His voice is high, and to my ear a little thin, but he can make it move around. On some cuts he is reminiscent of Boz Scaggs.

Christopher was born in Chicago and turned professional singer at age 12. He moved around the country until 1983 when he settled in New York City and began to produce records for people like the Ritchie Family and Grandmaster Flash. He shows this influence with a rap bit on the album's "Are We Running From Love".

Christopher co-produced this record with two other producer-songwriters, Evan Rogers and Carl Sturken. The production is crisp and bouncy, heavy on the programmed drums and the bass line.

Overall the album resembles the funk of George Duke but it isn't nearly as exuberant. The occasional guitar solos by Paul Pesco stand out. A pleasant enough effort if you tolerate this sort of pop. Reasonable background music if you must have a party.

Bad Pumpkin Fetchin Bones Capitol Records

Yet another record produced by Don Dixon (REM, Guadalcanal Diary, Smithereens, etc.) "Bad Pumpkin" is Fetchin Bones' first record for a major label. Hailing from Charlotte, North Carolina, they have the potential to be more than cult favorites.

Like a cross between Siouxsie and Banshees and Jason & The Scorchers, Bones play a chaotic brand of rock that sounds like it will fall apart any second. With comparisons to bands that are that far apart in the world's realm of music, it shows what a hodgepodge of ideas these people are a part of.

They possess a real thrashy, unwashed spirit in their music. Hope Nicholls' vocals fit right in, as she sounds like a candidate for psychiatric care.

A volatile and interesting record from a weird band. While not good for eating, "Bad Pumpkin" is alright for your ears.

Life's Hard then You Die It's Immaterial Siren Records

Is this a posthumous release? Is that a bullet hole in the middle of the record? Apt title, they must have had a tough grind through life, cause they sure sound dead!

They have no redeeming features. They are not particularly profound or deep. The music is not particularly interesting. You couldn't dance to it, hell Grandma couldn't dance to this!

Sorry guys, if you are still alive somewhere you must be mortally wounded.

Shelter Lone Justice Griffen Records

Maria McKee of Lone Justice may have the greatest range and most expressive voice of any woman in rock today. This was much in evidence on Lone Justice's sketchy, self-titled debut album. However, "Shelter", the band's second record is much more consistent and focused, demonstrating that McKee is maturing into a songwriter to go along with her vocal talent. This time some of their songs are getting airplay.

Labelling them a roots rock outfit is much too limiting, as roots rock is a generic term for a type of band that gets back to the stuff they grew up with (in most cases country rock) and in the meantime breaks no new ground, and doesn't stray from the path they've followed for years. The difference between Lone Justice's first and second records is light years. For this reason you cannot call them roots rock.

"Shelter" is basically a showcase for McKee's voice, but behind that is a solid band supplying mid-tempo pop-rock that is laced (lightly) with a country flavour.

However when Lone Justice and McKee decide to let go of the reins, the result is magic. She has more emotion and power in her voice than a Whitney Houston or Madonna will ever know in their Park Avenue lives.

If the improvement continues, their next album should be a huge success. In the meantime "Shelter" is highly recommended.
