

Hair salon will go, says Swain

SAC manager claims that administration will ignore council, not consult students

By KEVIN BARKER

According to a definition of the SAC building which, as a point of interest, was built and is presently maintained by the administration, it's designed to meet the needs of the Athletics Department and the Student Association's social activities.

Unfortunately, and this will be evident when the hair salon is ousted in May of this year to be replaced by the expanded physiotherapy services, the administration has the ultimate say in designating certain areas of the SAC for the purposes of either the SA or the Athletic Department. In a conversation with Derek Swain, Athletics Department head and (conveniently) SAC manager for the administration, it came to light that even though the Student Council voted to maintain the services of the hair salon, the physiotherapy services will go into that area regardless, at the wishes of the Athletic Department and the administration. The reason given is that the administration considers these services a greater boon to the student community.

According to Swain, the SA hasn't shown much input or interest in designating areas of the SAC for specific purposes in the past, so the administration has always made the decisions regarding this.

Jocks to return to campus this weekend

Homecoming is this week. The first annual event will be an opportunity for alumni to return to the BCIT Campus to meet and compete with this year's varsity teams. Come on all you stars of yesteryear! Play in the Grad game for your sport or, if numbers permit, join in a short alumni scrimmage amongst yourselves. For those inclined to a little less activity, give your arm a work out by drinking some suds with the teams. In the evening, swing your mate into the Homecoming Disco or mingle with the students.

Remember, Saturday October 29th—a big day for BCIT Athletics!

Saturday:

2:00--Soccer--Cougar coach, Jim Mitchell;

3:00--volleyball--Cougar coaches, Gary Shellbourne and Maurice Hulyd;

5:00--Women's Basketball--Cougar coach, Debbie Phalen;

6:30--Old Times Classic--Over the Hill Gang (faculty) vs Grads

7:30--Men's Basketball--Cougar coach, Derek Swain;

Jerry Lloyd (loc. 215) will select the Grad team for Basketball.

3:00-8:00 Beer Garden;

5:00-8:00 Snack Bar;

9:00-1:00 Homecoming Disco.

Tickets $1.50 advance, $2.00 at the door.

All proceeds support the BCIT Athletic Programme.

Sunday:

2:00--Rugby--Cougar coach, Gary Miller.

The Rugby game is held on Sunday to allow Grads to play in their own Saturday leagues. A beer-up will be held after the game and you are all welcome to attend the festivities on Saturday.

Private broadcasters woo students

By SHAWN WITTON

Last Wednesday afternoon three bigwigs from the world of British Columbia visited our campus. Don Wall, Manager of CJOR the "Talk Show Station" with such notables as Jack Webster and Ed Murphy; Don Hamilton, Manager of CKLG AM and FM; and Bill Elliot of CHAN TV, that includes the News Hour, Alan Hamel and other shows...all these gentlemen fielded questions for over an hour from a theatre full of Broadcast students. This is the second time in three weeks Broadcast students have had the opportunity to talk turkey with some of the moving forces in BC Broadcasting. Len Lauk, Director of Broadcasting in BC for the CBC was the first guest speaker on October 5 (check last week's Link). Last Wednesday the commercial Broadcasters had a chance to present their case to future employables. The discussion touched on all the bases. Everything from CKLG's computer planned music programming to CRTC regulations and restrictions affecting radio and

Broadcaster new Queen

By DON WRIGHT

"My English teacher told me to avoid cliches like the plague, but, here goes...! I don't believe it! It's a total surprise!"

So said Jennifer Wilson, shortly after being chosen as BCIT's 1977 Frosh Queen. Jennifer, representing Broadcasting, won it all at the Administrative Management dance last Saturday night. She and her two princesses—Cindy Nelson from Admin.

Man. and Pam Majoros from Psychiatric Nursing—were selected from 10 candidates. The judges for the Business Society sponsored event were: Principal Gordon Thom, SA Business Manager Phil Henderson, Athletics Manager Derek Swain, Student Services Director Jerry Lloyd, SA Secretary Janice Eden, TNT Manager Gail Byers and TNT staff member Lee Harrison.

The candidates were judged on their speaking ability, grooming and appearance, personality, ability to converse, responsiveness (intelligence) and poise. The judges listened to each girl give a short speech, and then mingled with the contestants. Once the judges had talked with each girl, they left to compile the results. The winners' names were put in a sealed envelope which was not opened until Saturday night.

Dave Frinton, as MC for the night, started the activities with the introduction of each of the candidates. They had to go through what would be considered by most girls a terrible ordeal—standing up in front of the cheers and catcalls of the male populace, and enduring Frinton's somewhat suggestive introductions. The candidates, much to their credit, remained composed throughout the entire proceedings.

Pam Majoros, the second runner-up, is a psychiatric nursing student here at BCIT. Pam is 22 years old, and graduated from the North Western Academy, Mosridge, North Dakota. She is an avid skier, and had lots of opportunity to practice while working up at Whistler Mountain for three years.

The first runner-up, Cindy Nelson, a 19-year old Admin. Man. student, graduated from Centennial Secondary School in 1976. Last year she attended SFU in the arts program. Cindy enjoys swimming, music and dancing, and drama.

Jennifer Wilson, Frosh Queen for 1977, is a 25-year-old Broadcast student. She graduated from Oak Bay High in 1970. From 1972-76 she was a licensed practical nurse at the Victoria General Hospital. For one year she was

Only SAC expansion will ease

dance crowding

By SLOANE HAMMOND

If your dances are crowded then do something about it. Put some pressure on the right people and you might be lucky to get a reaction to the problem. But who do you talk to?

Well, if you talk to the Student Association, they will probably tell you it is the fault of Student Services for not allowing the use of the gymnasium for the dances. If you talk with people from Student Services they will tell you it is the fault of the Student Association for not affecting a working relationship with the Institute to get the SAC Cafeteria expanded.

Whose fault is it? The people at Student Services have a good reason for not allowing the use of the gym for dances. The reason is that a gym floor can only be resurfaced three times in its entire life. This involves sanding the floor down to the extent of wear or damage and applying a varnish coat, and when the floor gets too thin, it has to be replaced. The replacement cost of a hardwood floor of similar quality could cost as much as $100,000-$200,000.

With proper care the floor should last many years. The floor in the War Memorial gym at UBC has needed only one resurfacing in the space of twenty-five years, and it gets a lot of athletic use. However, the floor in your gym has already had two resurfacings in ten years. This is because the floor has had a lot of abuse in the past. This came in the form of exams held in the gym, floor hockey, and dances.

The main causes of damage were from grit on street shoes ground into the floor, drinks spilled on the floor, and cigarettes dropped on the floor. Another area of damage is to the rubber underlay. With a great amount of use this will lose its elasticity and athletic injuries will increase. There are about four hundred people signed up to use the gym and possibly twice that number who just use the gym for recreation, so an increase in the risk of injury would affect quite a few people.

Nurses lead in Bleed-Fest

The Blood Donor Clinic in the SAC Lobby last Tuesday and Wednesday attracted 478 victims, a 29% increase from last year, when 370 gave the Gift of Life.

The largest turnout came from the Nursing Technology (no surprise, as they had 60 fearless donors), with Building a distant second, having only 30 people punctured, while Forestry students brandished 25 bare arms for the Red Cross volunteers.

Warren Allen, Activities Chairperson, would like to thank all those brave souls who turned out in aid of the present blood shortage at Lower Mainland hospitals.

Says SAC Building manager

Hair Salon will go

In the offing is a SAC Management committee, which will have an equal number of reps from the SA and Student Services and will be chaired by a member of the administration. In the event of a split vote over an issue such as the one concerning the hair salon and the physiotherapy services, the chairman will cast the deciding vote. The chairman is none other than Derek Swain, and you can guess which way he'll vote.

The agreement for such a committee, already drawn up by the administration's Student Liaison Officer Graham Fane, is yet to be signed by the student council. In this matter, the council has two alternatives—to put up or shut up.

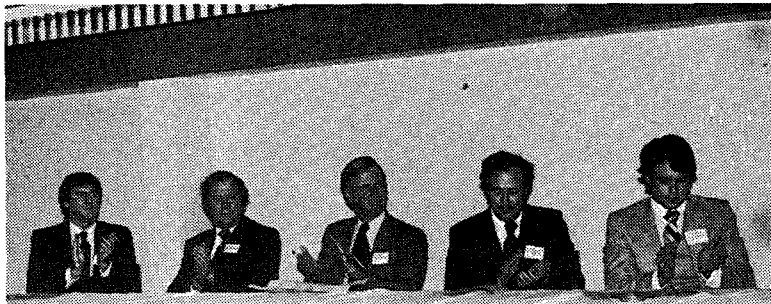

All of this is very distressing to Louise Talbot, manageress of the Total Emage Hair Salon, who considers her establishment a convenient and well-used service to the students here. She feels that she serves a broad cross-section of students whereas the physiotherapy facilities serve only the jocks on the campus.

On the other side of the coin, Sherri Clark, who will operate the new facilities, thinks that she serves just as broad a cross-section of students since anyone requiring physiotherapy is referred to her by Health Services. The main reason why she wants the hair salon area is because the athletics department has purchased a lot of new equipment, a whirlpool bath in particular, that won't go into the room that Clark is presently using, mainly due to the lack of plumbing there. An interesting point here is that the plumbing she would be using in the hair salon was installed by the SA at a cost of between four and five thousand dollars.

It seems strange that no one has asked the students on the campus what they would prefer. Derek Swain says that there isn't enough interest amongst the students on this matter and there's no way of getting their opinions anyway. Louise suggests that a petition be held through the LINK and the campus radio station to find out what the students think.

And that's not such a bad idea. What do the students here think? If you want an improved physiotherapy service on the campus, fine. But if not, it would be a good idea to let someone know. If you feel strongly about it, put it in writing and send it to the LINK.

television to BCTV's excellent news program, "News Hour". As well as other questions such as "Will Jack Webster quit next year?", "Is there anyway in the world CBC's Hourglass can regain its position as Vancouver's #1 TV news show?" The questions went on and on and might have continued for the remainder of the afternoon if Lundy Sanderson, Director of the Broadcast Tech hadn't called the session to a close. The three guests had businesses to get back to and they hadn't eaten lunch.

All fellow students I talked with felt the two-session series was very interesting and informative and the hope is that this "first" will become a yearly thing.

Job service here on campus

This article is about jobs and a place where you might just find one. The place is the BCIT On Campus Manpower Office in Room D204. Their main purpose is to assist BCIT day school students locate work related to their technology.

Last year, through this office, 631 people found permanent full-time jobs, 217 students found summer work, and 55 students found part-time jobs. That adds up to 903 students finding work and it could have been more as there were 1,533 jobs listed.

From now to next May, keep an eye on Manpower's job boards, you own technology bulletin boards, and the Link for notices about employers coming into the placement office and interviewing students for summer and permanent work. The Manpower Office encourages companies to conduct interviews on the campus. This On Campus Recruiting Program might enable you to find work before the summer or before you graduate.

What this article boils down to is that there is an On Campus Placement Office at BCIT. It's operated by a friendly staff that are anxious to help you find work and it seems that they are reasonable successful at doing so.

Dances in gym out

It is obvious that the gym cannot be used for such purposes, therefore, other alternatives have to be considered, such as expanding the SAC Cafeteria. The Student Association has a Building Fund for just such a purpose and maybe they could be persuaded to at least have a feasibility study done. Remember, it is your money that finances crowded dances and the costs of having large dances over two nights.

runner-up in the Miss Victoria contest. Jennifer enjoys riding, photography and numerous sports.

In talking with Jennifer at the end of the night, she expressed her surprise at winning the title. Jennifer figured that her age might make her less of a contender than the other girls, the student population being mostly in the 18-20 age group. The girl she thought would win didn't even place. As Frosh Queen, Jennifer looks forward to the rest of the year, especially the Telethon.

Her first duty as Frosh Queen was the drawing of two tickets for the door prizes. An 8-track stereo (courtesy of Noreesco Canada) was won by Linda Welter, a first year Admin Man student. The other door prize, a dinner at the Sheraton Villa (courtesy of the Villa) was won by some guy who was barely able to stagger up to the front.

The prizes the Frosh Queen received included a four-bottle case of Ste. Michelle wine, a dinner at Brannigan's and some records from Jack Cullen music. Both the runners-up received a TNT gift certificate and a cosmetic prize.

The other contestants were: Carmen Ozuba, Computer Tech.; Nancy Johnson, Marketing; Tami Worsley, Financial Management; Leslie Phillips, Nursing; Sandie Carlson, Med Lab; Cheryl Hallum, representing E & E; and Marj Herd, Hotel Motel.

Organizer Dave Frinton wished to thank all the girls who entered and all those who helped or attended. He also thanks John, the pub manager, for doing a good job and keeping the dance running well-lubricated.

SAC Expansion

The battle over SAC Management has just begun. Student Services (SS) and the Student Association (SA) don't appear to see eye to eye on a number of items. Mainly who should be in the SAC, and how much space each service deserves.

The problem appears to be that the SA wants to retain all the services presently available in the SAC and expand the building to adequately house any new ones. Student Services, on the other hand, feels that a couple of the services presently offered are not required and thus expansion is not needed.

The four services offered in the building are: the pinball machines, which take up the space previously occupied by the TNT store (these machines provide about $10,000 revenue per year which goes toward supporting intramurals, covering 2/3 of its $15,000 budget. If the pinball machines are removed intramural fees will have to increase drastically); a barber shop, located in the east end of the SAC across from the pinball room, which services 450 students a month at reduced rates, while bringing the SA $1,900 in revenue annually; a physiotherapist (Sherri Clark) who treats all injuries sustained by both intramural and extramural players, with both whirlpool and ultrasonic sound therapy to be offered as soon as space is made available; fourth, and probably the most important, is Health Services, helping 1,200 students per month, and offering the services of two doctors and a nurse.

More space is obviously needed for both Health Services and for the physiotherapist in order for them to properly service the student body. With the space presently offered not being adequate to support these four services one can only imagine what will happen once residence opens in September.

Student Services feels that both the barber shop and the pinball machines are unnecessary and not worth the space they occupy.

We feel that all services are valuable to the students, and should be maintained and improved. Nobody appears to be worried about expansion, which is inevitable with the residence being built on campus.

Make sure they get an idea of what YOU want in your building. Drop in to either the Student Association or Student Services and bend their ears. Or write us a letter. Don't let them decide without consulting you.

Letters to the LINK

Article disgusting

Editor:

On Wednesday, October 19 I picked up a copy of the LINK publication distributed on that date. Turning to page nine I found the most disgusting newspaper article I have yet seen. I am, of course, referring to the article entitled "Whatever happened to the Frosh Queen" and the accompanying photograph. Although this newspaper has never been noted for its good taste or decent language, this article in particular was in bad taste.

May I remind you that publication and distribution of obscene material is not only in bad taste but is also illegal (ss 159-160, Snow's Criminal Code, BCIT library)? Mentioning that this photograph is not original and the attempt to make this article humorous are hardly an excuse.

Not only did this picture offend me, the language used was also distasteful. Although four-letter words have become part of the vocabulary of many students (and most Link reporters), many students still prefer to read publications without them. Two examples of the language I am referring to are: the mention of Jesus Christ (that is, God) on page 9, paragraph 6, line 2, and, the mention of a word beginning with F in last week's publication (it is there!)

Do not continue to publish articles of this type with my money!

Sorry for the showers

The Athletic Department wishes to apologize for the poor condition of the Men's showers. The Department has been trying for over a year to have the system replaced. The Department of Public Works promised that installation of a new system would take place last August. It now seems that the earliest we can expect new showers will be Christmas.

We have done everything possible to remedy the situation and are continually harassing the DPW for better service. Again, our apologies!

Derek Swain,
Athletics Manager.

Oh, no, not again

The Editor:

Oh no, BCIT's future leaders of business and industry are at it again. Demonstrating to the world that in spite of any 'liberation' of the sexes that might be going on they aren't having any of it.

Lately there have been a few rumours circulating around the C&S department concerning Forestry students.

If you think you were shocked

If you were shocked by page nine of last week's LINK, allow me to relate to you what happened to me when I first saw it. It was Wednesday morning, just as I finished giving a presentation worth 40% of my Christmas mark. Immediately realizing the implications of the article and accompanying photograph I rushed over to the LINK offices for discussion of the matter with Michael Kluckner (author and publisher). In my haste I left behind a red leather club jacket. It bears a crest for the Renfrew Trojans Football Club and is of great sentimental value to me. The room I left it in was #303 in the 1962 Building and if anyone picked it up would they please drop it off at the publications office. If I could afford a reward I would offer one, but the best I can do is a hearty "Thank you" and possibly a couple of beer.

With the recall of the provincial legislature by our fearless leader Wm. Bennett rumours of a snap election are running rampant. Is Billy-Boy hoping that the province is still as polarized as it was in 1975, planning to streamline his party (i.e. dumping George Kerster, Bill Van der Zalm, etc.) and achieve another five year mandate from the people to mismanage BC?

A special note to the people in Broadcast Technology who rented that invisible boat for a booze cruise of Burrard Inlet: the Marketing Technology has an interest in the Queensborough Bridge and are very interested in negotiating a quick sale of said interest. We wish to contact you at your earliest convenience. Opening offer figures start at $500.

first year C&S is challenging first year Forestry to a castle building contest with empty beer glasses during the pub night on Friday November 4 (8pm). Incidentally, the rules require that you first consume the beer in the glass after you have begged, borrowed, stolen, or even bought it.

If any other techs, hopefully Nursing, want to get in on the fun, they are more than welcome. We expect a reply in next week's LINK. If there are no replies C&S will have the pleasure of knowing that they are going to college with a bunch of candy asses.

Reactionary reactions

Reaction to last week's sensational and stultifying scoop of the unseemly silliness surrounding the stupendously stupid saga of sexy sirens (first year department) was swift and shattering. Seventeen, staid, stolid, sad and sonorous survivors of the stoned, sickening sixties skated over the serious and sociologically significant segments of the scoop and selected the seamy steaminess seen in its scathing, scatological and sexsational sexpose.

So what else is new? Our straw poll (no Hungarians were available) indicated that most people couldn't have cared less, many were amused by it ("Hey, man! Dat was funny!"), a few thought it had overpowering social significance (more esses) and a few thought it was moronic, crude, unnecessary, childish, exploitive, belittling, obscene, inappropriate, disgusting, crass, Mickmouse or perverted (in that order, approximately). Final results will be published in my obituary, due out any day now. Or in the appendix (remove if rumbling).

The strange thing about the latter reaction was the motivation behind it (except for a couple of people who thought it was truly degrading): the fear was not one of personal moral corruption, but rather "What will people off-campus think?" No comment on that one.

Praise the lord that the October doldrums are nearly over. I swear there have been more breakdowns, blow-ups and freakouts over midterms and the sheer horror of BCIT's workload, plus rainy weather plus everything else tossed in. Now that everyone knows how bad it can get here it should be downhill all the way till Christmas. Ha ha.

Student Rev., part 2

The continuing saga of...STUDENT REVOLUTIONARY!

In our last episode, Student Revolutionary discovered the truth about the seething cauldron of emotions that is BCIT. This week he continues the battle to free the Students from the shadowy yoke of the Principal of Darkness, Gordon Thom.

I, Student Revolutionary, came to the conclusion last week that I can't save BCIT alone. As Batman has his Robin, Don Quixote had his Sancho Panza, as Richard Nixon had his Spiro Agnew, I, Student Revolutionary needed help. But where to look? A hint to the Principal of Darkness that I, Student Revolutionary

Name the Residence and WIN!

BCIT's first on-campus residence will be opening in September 1978, and we need a name for this low-rise student residence. You, as a student, can help us!

The faculty and staff of BCIT will provide the names for each of the five separate residence houses. These names will be of a historical nature, providing some recognition to technological pioneers in British Columbia.

We need you to provide a name for the overall development. We are seeking a name to emphasize the community nature of the new residences, and also emphasizing the fact that BCIT is a PROVINCIAL Institute of Technology—drawing students from all parts of the province.

The corner stone laying ceremony will be taking place this autumn, so a name is needed by early November.

The winner of the "NAME THE RESIDENCE" Contest will receive $200 CASH!

RULES

1. All entries must be submitted to the Housing office by 4:30 pm, Wednesday, November 2, 1977.
2. If there are two (2) or more entries of the winning name, the first received will be the winner.
3. Members of the Student Executive are not permitted to enter.
4. There is no limit to the number of entries a student may submit.
5. Judges will be made up of Residence Advisory Committee Members.
6. Only full-time students of BCIT may enter the contest.
7. If a suitable name is not suggested the judges reserve the right to select a name by other means.

was recruiting, and I would have as short a life as a full can of beer at a Forestry party.

I decided that the best approach was the most obvious. I would approach the first student I saw and ask him to be my fellow crusader.

Thus I met Mort. I found him in the Library Foyer. He told me he was an M & M man (not a candy coated chocolate goody as I first thought, but a Marketing Management student). Mort told me that as an M&M student he was forced by the rules of his profession to ask for a retainer (money) to work for me. He assured me that he was wholly behind my crusade and would work for a pittance. I offered a dollar a week, he countered with a hundred a week. We finally settled on seventy-five a week plus free lunches.

Mort promised me that he would work all his waking hours to ensure that students could live free. Unfortunately, he had to eat his free lunch right away and he had an exam to study for next week, but he said he would come and collect his pay at the end of the week and tell me when he would be free for freedom fighting. Meanwhile, I, Student Revolutionary would work toward the goals to which I have dedicated my life.

As to the picture on page 9 of last week's paper, I agree that it was in very poor taste and should not have appeared in the issue. However, I do see the rationale behind it and though I disagree with the method, I can see the point they were trying to make. Meanwhile, this column will continue in its vain attempts to put a little excitement into your worthless lives.

Basketball starts

The first basketball game of the year will be the Grad Games on Saturday, October 29. That is the date of BCIT's First Annual Athletic Homecoming. A program of varsity competitions with alumni will take place in Soccer, Volleyball, and Basketball. Rugby will be played on Sunday.

Women needed

The Men's Basketball team has been practicing regularly for over two weeks now. Twenty people tried out for the team but selections have narrowed the roster to thirteen players. The Women's team, however, has had problems. A vast majority of last year's team has graduated, leaving a lot of unfilled positions on the team. So come on girls, the Women's Basketball team needs you!

Have!
Haven't!
Have! He's on every afternoon from 3:00 til 4:00.
He's not really on then.
You calling TV Guide a liar? Mona...Mona, there's some guy out here looking for trouble.
Hey, hey take it easy. All I meant was that they tape all the shows and then televise them weeks, even months later.
Okay.
You don't pick up very fast, do you? Ponder this for a minute. If they tape those shows, it makes sense they'd do a bunch all at once...right?
Yeah.
The show originates from the BCTV studios on the Lougheed Highway. I knew that!
Well...that show always has an audience doesn't it?
Sure. I'm not paying money to see the guy, though.
You don't have to pay, it's free. All you do is phone BCTV, ask for Mary, and order some tickets. They usually tape three shows every Saturday, Sunday, and Monday evening. It's fun! Where else could you see Valdy, William Shatner, Phyllis Diller...he gets all kinds.
I just phone BCTV and talk to Harry 'bout tickets?
Mary! Phone Mary and get some tickets.
Oh...sounds like a good idea...You think they'd let me bring my wife?
Hey Mona...Mona...

The Admin. Man-Frosh Queen dance Saturday night broke the record as far as bar sales go. Would you believe that the total consumption was 1,593 bottles of beer, 181 bottles of cider, and 65 bottles of wine (34 imported and 31 local). That sounds like quite a lot of alcohol. The dance was sold out—approximately 400 people were squeezed in. Let's see now, that works out to about four bottles of beer each, half a bottle of cider and a glass of wine. Hmmm, I think I missed my glass of wine. Oh well, maybe next time. —Don Wright

Save a record buck

If you read my last column you will remember me bitching about the great price differences between various record stores. I also mentioned that the only way to make sure you don't spend too much on records is to trade in your turntable on a good FM receiver. Well, after writing that column I got an idea that would help you save on albums without having to scrap your turntable. My thought was to go back to the Granville Mall area and make up a list of ten albums, then record the prices being asked at the different record stores. I chose the Mall because it seems to have the greatest concentration of record outlets, and the less wandering around I have to do, the better. I hadn't decided on which albums to put on the list yet, so I went into A&A Records and Tapes to write one up and list the prices.

Before I had completed listing the prices a big clerk came over and kicked me out. "I'd rather that you not do that," he said, or words to that effect. After that traumatic experience (I'll probably have nightmares the rest of my life), I headed over to the Kelly's store across the street. Half expecting to be given the boot once again, I kept one eye on the lookout. No such harassment. The rest of the afternoon continued without any trouble at all.

As it took a week to sort out my list, the prices are not necessarily current. However, they are a good indication of who generally has lower prices than the rest. A&B Sound seemed to be the most competitive, as well as having one of the better selections. People I've talked to usually agree that record prices have drastically increased over the last few years, i.e., gone are the days of the $2.00 record (you're right Mike, nostalgia's no fun). They also usually agree that A & B does have lower prices. Because of this, you'll almost always find a line up at the counter stretching down the aisle, another indication of their popularity (or is it that they just have slow cashiers?) Maybe not so surprising is that A&B is the only record store on the list not right on the Granville Mall, yet it has lower prices. It is because rent on the mall is more than the rent one block south (east)?

The list in no way reflects my personal tastes, it is just a list of the first ten albums that seemed to represent a cross section of what is available—new and older releases. The blanks just indicate that I couldn't find the album in its spot or on display. If I had more time I probably could have asked if the particular record was in stock.

You'll probably notice that the Barbara Streisand record is the most expensive one at five out of the seven stores. This is partially due to the fact that sometime earlier this year (back in the spring?) the record companies raised the suggested list price of certain albums to an unprecedented $7.98. Unfortunately, it now seems to be the trend of many record stores (and record departments) to charge as close to the MSL as possible. Fortunately there are a few stores offering good prices on albums. Usually stores will put new albums on sale to attract customers, but be careful you don't buy any other albums or you will likely be paying too much.

Another unfortunate aspect of record prices is that if you happen to like some obscure or long forgotten artist you will be forced to pay the highest price for the album, the record not being in demand, and so not worth putting on sale. Sort of puts those supply and demand curves I had to learn in business all out of alignment.

For what it is worth, the preceding was an attempt by a lowly Engineering student to do some market research (if I may be permitted to use that term). I won't know whether I was successful or not until I am either assaulted in the halls by an insulted Business student, or disowned by my own technology, or both. Oh well, maybe someone will save himself/herself a dollar or two after reading this, and after all, that's what this is all about. This is starting to bore you, right! OK, I'll try to have something interesting next week. Bye.

BOTTOM OF THE ROCKPILE

Well, here I am. It's 12:30 and the deadline for publication is 12:30. What I wanted to do for this week was a review of the Crosby, Stills, and Nash concert. Unfortunately, due to circumstances beyond my control (too many exams), I haven't had enough time to write very much about it yet. I did actually write up a page or two during a couple of slow lectures, but time has run out. I won't be able to finish. One of the editors has just kicked me out of his chair as I scribble these few lines on the back of an exam someone left on the desk. 42 out of 100. Hmm, I hope that isn't an omen of some kind. Anyway, unless a thousand letters arrive before Friday telling me to forget about it, I promise I'll have a write-up on the CS&N concert, and maybe something on their latest album, in the next issue of the Link.

STOP THE PRESS!!!

They fooled me. Apparently, the Pink Floyd show at the Planetarium will actually be showing right through till sometime in December, and tickets are being sold in advance. If you want to know more about the show or ticket sales, give the Planetarium a call.

ENTERTAINMENT

In the past few years the music scene in Vancouver has undergone a striking metamorphosis which has brought it from dull mediocrity to a vivacious throbbing mass of life. Lately, Vancouver has played host to the top names in musical talent. The sellout crowds at the Coliseum, Gardens, and Queen E are an obvious indication that Vancouverites are into audio stimulation in a big way.

In between visits by live talent, people feed their habit in a number of ways. Albums and tapes by top artists are sold out as fast as they hit the shelves. Stereo equipment stores manage with kathy zeigler

to easily squeeze a few hundred dollars out of every customer who ventures into these shops of technical wizardry.

Vancouver's live bands are many, and struggle as best they can with their brassy guts and intermittent genuflections to the CRTC Canadian content ruling. But, nevertheless, they do give us live music which can't be imitated by even the most sophisticated stereo systems.

When one tires of sitting stoned by the stereo or listening to a band with limited selections there is the biggest and currently most popular alternative of all—the Disco. And does Vancouver have Discos? Do birds have feathers? Discos come in all shapes sizes, colors and moods. For the young and old, simple or sophisticated, innocent or decadent. With flashing colored scenes of people ordering over-priced alcohol, unable to talk above the latest from the greatest, discos are the churches of the devout worshippers of such gods as KC and Stevie Wonder, to name but a few.

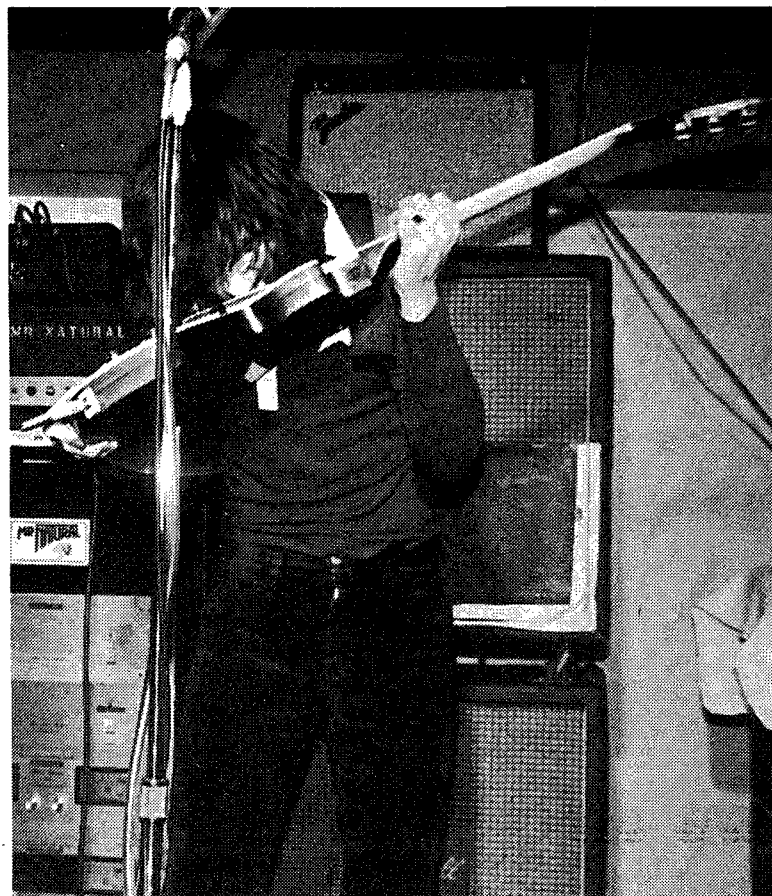

A concept which has combined the mobility of the live band and the sound and mood of the downtown disco is the recent appearance and growth of the mobile disco.

Like a live band the mobile disco will go wherever wanted. Like the downtown disco, it provides the mood and music for the perfect disco atmosphere.

Mobile discos may be relatively new in Vancouver, but they have been catering to London crowds for years. One of these is the Midnight Oasis Mobile Disco which, after two very successful years in London, England, has crossed continents and cultures to infiltrate the Vancouver scene. Now, two years later, both they and Vancouver have a close working relationship.

The power behind the Midnight Oasis Mobile Disco are two young energetic entrepreneurs who arrange their own bookings, choose their own musical selections and are the disc jockeys at every gig. Together for the past two years, they have developed their own original innovative style, bringing to each engagement the very best they can offer; and it is the best.

Their sound system could rival those of many downtown discos for its technical finery which produces true, superb sound. All parts of their sound system have been imported from England. Although this is a lengthy process they justify its worth by saying they want the best and would not feel right using less.

Their supply of music is endless and about half a dozen filled record cases accompany them on every gig. These contain everything from the current popular disco songs to the easy listening sounds dating back to the late sixties. All of their selections are chosen with careful deliberation from a host of discs they receive every month from record distributors. Performers who survive the reviewing are such artists as Stevie Wonder, The Temptations, Isley Brothers, Marvin Gaye, KC and the Sunshine Band, Silver Convention, and Wild Cherry, to name only a few.

Midnight Oasis has played at SFU, VCC, King Edward College and at our own BCIT. The Midnight Oasis is one of the most entertaining and enjoyable happenings in quite a while. They produce a mood and feeling that totally immerses one into the high of disco music.

For anyone interested in contacting the Midnight Oasis, the number to call is 434-8370.

NOOZE OF THE WORLD

link staff reports

No wonder he makes you itch

As Johnny Carson goes into his sixteenth year as a talk show host, one begins to wonder if poor Johnny's case of fleas hasn't gotten quite out of hand.

They attack as soon as he comes out on the stage. Johnny uses the excuse of showing the audience his jacket lining to shake out some of the unwanted varminths.

About 53 other times during the show he pretends to straighten his tie. This again is a blatantly obvious attempt at extermination of the prolific buggers.

A further ploy is the quick stroking of the side of his nose with the index finger. In Johnny's case it is usually the left side of the nose with the index finger of the left hand. What is he doing with his right hand you ask? Well, his right hand holds a sharpened pencil used to kill the fleas that wander or jump from his jacket onto the desk. The lead point stuns them and the eraser squishes them. Then to get them off the desk, Ed McMahon is told to laugh hard enough to send the poor corpses flying from the desk.

Have you ever seen that shiny metal object that hangs down from the ceiling? Don't let anyone tell you it's a microphone. It's not; it's a Shell No-Pest Strip.

The airlines should publish their own dictionary. Over the years they have been responsible for so many priceless gems of mispronounceable and misspellable words that it begins to make one think of giving up flying.

When I get off a plane, I get off a plane. I do not "deplane." What does deplane mean? It sounds obscene. The dog deplaned on the floor. They deplaned in the washroom. If deplaning is getting off the plane then what, pray tell, is getting on a plane called? Boarding? I thought that was a two-minute penalty in hockey. Take-off? I thought that's what one did when caught rolling a joint in a no parking zone. Taxiing?

That's a cab driving down a street. I always thought a pilot was the first show in a 13 week series. Last and certainly far from least; what the hell is a skytrain? Why not a sky-bus, a sky-car, a sky-fly, or a sky-van? There is a considerable difference between a drain and a plane—a plane goes faster than a train.

Then there are those people who wear Pierre Cardin shirts. Everytime I see a guy with a shirt on, it has this funny little shape embroidered on the pocket. The first time I ever saw that little design I thought that perhaps all the people wearing those shirts belonged to an elite club. I was right. They all believe they have great bodies and proceed to show them off by wearing tight-fitting shirts with little designs that draw attention to the left side of their chest. Why the left side I'll never know. Do you?

A group of Marketing girls recently concluded a very informative research project on the sexual proclivities of the male population of BCIT. Due to the tender details of their project they do not wish to be identified in the pages of this tabloid, but we certainly feel that they deserve commendation for their pursuit of scientific veracity. It can truly be said that they laid down on their jobs and put their backs into their work. Thank you ladies.

As to the report, it demolishes many of the myths clinging to the halls of BCIT with the exactitude of scientific investigation.

Forestry seems to fare worst, having long held a very "macho" image at the school. In fact, it seems as if Forestry can't even get it up and of those few poor souls who do manage, they don't seem able to keep it up longer than the time needed for a deep sigh.

Mechanical Engineering was given points for great determination but was greatly hampered by the exceedingly small size of their tools. They did rate better, however, than Admin., who seem to have no tools at all, although until now they didn't seem to have noticed.

The girls apologized that they were not able to gather any data about their own Marketing Technology since they were not able to find anyone who did it, heterosexuals proving to be in extremely small supply in that technology. But then again, the girls should have known that from the beginning.

The only technology that came through unscathed from the report was Op-Man., which was rated as "big, meaty, and bouncy" (and soft—Ed.).

Once again we must offer our congratulations to the girls who are now resting after the exertions of their comings and comings. Christer Myberg

The province of Quebec agreed today, to stay in the Canadian Confederation on the condition that Canada got rid of British Columbia, Toronto, and John Diefenbaker.

An attempted hijacking ended in a flaming crash today. An Air Canada 747, taken over by Western Canada Liberation Army, crashed while attempting a refueling stop in Fernie. It was later discovered by Vancouver Air Traffic controllers that Fernie doesn't have an airport.

Hot news from the Middle East today: temperature in the Sinai 97 degrees.

Prime Minister Trudeau announced a cabinet shuffle today. He moved the teal cabinet with the sliding doors to beside the window, and moved the black walnut bookcase to under the picture of the Queen. Opposition sources refused to comment.

Typographical errors have inundated next week's copy of the Link. For one week only the paper will be called the TCBI Inik.

Mrs. M. Grovel of Chemainus was asked for her reaction at winning Loto Canada's big $1 million prize. She answered by spending the entire million on one hundred thousand more tickets. "I just love winning things," gushed Mrs. Grovel.

Food services has happened on a unique way to prevent spoilage in foods that are loaded into the dispensing machines (see "No Charge For This Protein," Link, Oct. 5, 1977). From now on, all food will be manufactured from polyethylene and wood pulp, compliments of Forestry.

Our own principal has decided to follow the lead of SFU President Pauline Jewett, who ran for the NDP nomination in the Federal Burnaby riding. In a news conference Thursday, Thom announced his intention to run for the bus during the next federal election.

John Diefenbaker has been awarded the Jiggling Jowls award by the Canadian Association of Plastic Surgeons. He receives a certificate redeemable for a face-lift at any major Canadian Hospital. Diefenbaker was reported to be initially disappointed as he thought the award was for "Clown of the Year."

Prime Minister Trudeau today gave permission for Quebec to secede from the Canadian Confederation on one condition—that the rest of the country can go with them. The new country will be called Canada and will be run on the British parliamentary system.

CAMPUS RECREATION

Registration Fee Refunds: Teams or individuals that registered for intramurals and have not been able to get on a team or league are asked to pick up their refunds from Campus Recreation Co-ordinator.

Chess Club: Meets 11:30-1:30. President: Stuart Carmichael. Mondays Rm D303; Tuesdays Rm 301; Wednesdays Rm D303; Thursdays Rm D421 and Fridays Rm 102.

Drop in for a game! Books on how to play chess are available at Campus Recreation Co-ordinator's office. Sign one out and learn the game.

Mini-Molstar: A ski-fit event—an indoor slalom race with jumps spaced into the pylon course. This event will be held in conjunction with Ski-Day, Wed. Oct. 26, from 12:00-1:30 pm. This is a co-ed event. First prize for gals and guys is a Mini-Molstar Trophy. Second and Third Prizes are Canadian T-shirts and visors. All competitors win a Molstar event button.

Come out and try this course. Have fun getting ready for the ski season. This course could be used indoors or outdoors for overall ski-conditioning on a continuing program. Give it a shot while touring the ski-day display today in the SAC Building.

Outdoors Club:

1. We have a notice board near the Athletic Equipment Room in SAC Building. This is where you get your information.
2. Outdoors Club meetings are held in Room D207 on Wednesdays at 11:30 am.
3. Contact Les Novotny (435-0220) if you have had mountaineering experience and would like to practice on the SFU climbing wall. It is available for BCIT.

Sky-Diving Club: will hold a meeting on Wednesday, November 2, at 11:30 in Room 239. First-timers are welcome!

Cougar Hockey Tryouts: Saturday October 29th 6:05-8:30 pm at Columbian 4-Rinks (blue). Wear full equipment and bring your own sticks. Report to timekeeper box for helmet ID.

This will be the session that coaches will be looking for skating, shooting, hitting and goaltending. Be ready to turn it on. Be on time. On the ice at 6:05 pm.

Tennis Club: The final chart for the Tennis Challenge ladder has been drawn up. There was a meeting on Wed. October 18 to discuss the rules. For those who were not present, the rules and the chart are posted by the Athletic Equipment Room.

The main rules to note are:

1. You must play within two weeks of being challenged or drop one place in standings.
2. Winner must report results before Friday, each week. Sheets are at the Athletic Equipment Room desk.

The ladder will continue until spring, weather permitting. Sometime in the spring there will be a tournament to decide the top player. The success of the ladder depends on you, to challenge regularly. Please Note: you may compete outside of BCIT depending on arrangements with your partner. In this case, you may decide how many sets to play. At BCIT we have two courts reserved for challenge ladder players only. Depending on court demand you may only play eight games or tie-breaker at 8-8.

Volleyball: Just a super day of action—most teams are really having to work for their wins.
