VP Internal resigns

Link

In an unexpected move, VP Internal Tom Cosberg has found it necessary to withdraw from classes. Subsequently, the position of VP Internal is now vacant, and according to the SA Constitution, must be filled from within the council.

All council members have been requested to attend the regular council meeting November sixth prepared to elect a new VP Internal.

Tom was unavailable at presstime for details, but it is believed that personal reasons are behind his withdraw from BCIT.

Money

by Namina Dhanani

To try and survive on just a couple of thousand dollars a year is pathetic, isn't it? Most students find themselves in this situation why they decide to further their education on a full-time basis. Being on a 40 hour week schedule, as we are at BCIT, it is close to impossible to work more than just a few hours a week. Conclusion, we suffer a serious case of 'forever broke'. I am sure many of you can identify yourselves as being in this situation more often than you would care to think about. Right?

This week we would like to slightly remedy this condition by passing on to you a few tips on stretching your dollar and make the most out of your limited resources.

A. Saving While Shopping

1. Plan your shopping in advance—which means planning your meals in advance too. Make a shopping list to avoid impulse buying.
2. Check your newspaper for specials offered at supermarkets. Use coupons distributed through the mail.
3. Shop by season. If you have access to a freeze buy when supply is abundant (middle of season) and freeze it.
4. Try the store brands. Store brands are usually made by the same companies that produce the national brands, but they cost 15 to 30 percent less because they do not have the same advertising and distribution costs.
5. Put leftovers to good use.
6. Eat a good meal before you set out on a shopping trip. Studies confirm that you spend up to 17 percent more on groceries when you are hungry.
7. If what you buy doesn't measure up to your standards, take it back.
8. Be a shelf detective. The most popular items are usually placed at eye level—it costs the company more to have these items placed at eye level so look below or above...you may find a better buy.

B. Energy Savings

1. For each farenheit degree about 68° your fuel consumption goes up an average of 2½ percent.
2. If you permanently lower your thermostat setting from 72° to 68° F (22° to 20°C) you will save about 10 percent on your fuel consumption.
3. One leak per second from a leaky hot water faucet or shower head sends about 175 gallons a month down the drain. That's cash down the drain.
4. Cold air literally falls out of refrigerators so open the door as little as possible and close as quickly as possible. All the warm air you let in has to be cooled again.
5. Cover all foods being refrigerated, liquids in particular, otherwise moisture drawn into the air will condense into ice forcing the motor to work harder using more energy.
6. Air should circulate freely around food. Do not overcrowd shelves and never line with foil.

C. How to Save on Prescriptions

1. Ask your doctor to prescribe you drugs by their generic names i.e. the chemical content and not the brand name. Drugs sold under generic names are the exact equivalents of the brand names they replace, but cost a lot less.
2. What you should have in your medicine cabinet—according to the Medicine Show, a consumer reports publication, you can get by with:

- Asprin-pain reliever, for fever

- Nosedrops-relief for colds
 - Sodium bicarbonate-indigestion
 - Zinc Oxide ointment-for skin irritation, heat rash, sun burn
 - Petroleum Jelly-chapped hands
 - Milk of Magnesia-mild laxative instead of spending money on expensive brand drugs.
 - D. Inexpensive Entertainment
1. Check the Ridge Theatre schedule. Their rates are much lower and they have some good reruns. Rates:Canadian Pre-

- miere-$3.00; Double/Triple Bill-$2.75.
- 2. Every season BC Tourism puts out a calendar of events happening in and around Vancouver. You can send for it by phoning BC Tourism.
- 3. Check the James Cowan Theatre, Heritage Village. They offer special season tickets plus student discounts are offered on tickets by most playhouses (usually 50 percent).

hard to get you into a doctor quickly. We know it makes life difficult when you miss lectures. You don't need an appointment unless you want a physical. We feel that helps you to come in when you have a free moment. In one way you can really help us. Please bring your medical number if you wish to see a doctor. (Identity and Dependant Number). A lot of you just turn up and say, 'Oh, I'm covered under my Dad' and, that is great because you are getting the best rates you can, but that doesn't help us. The computer in Victoria just isn't interested, and chasing medical numbers is a time consuming business to do try to bring it on your first visit to the doctor. We shall look forward to seeing you.

A few weeks ago we discussed the fact that some of the instructors at BCIT are 'barely' qualified to teach. As you can see above, the Link has got to the 'root' of the problem.

Broadcast takes over the Legislature and holds for ransom...

Second year Broadcast Journalism students toured Victoria radio and television stations and the BC Legislature last week.

Thursday, nineteen students, with instructors Barry McMaster and Peter Munoz, visited the CHEK TV newsroom and spoke with newseditor Tony Cox.

The BC Legislature was next on the agenda. Broadcasters and newspapermen took time out from their day to explain the workings of the capital's press-room. The tour was conducted by James Losh of CFX and BC Radio News, and made possible by Terry Spence, news director at CFX radio.

Friday, the radio newsroom at CKVI, CKDA, and CFX were toured by the would-be-journalists.

Some of the students will be at the Victoria stations for their two week Christmas practicum.

...Thursday night the BCIT-ers visited Victoria waterholes Bartholomews' and Harpo's. (When has a student field trip ever been all work and no play...?)

Who Are These IVCF People??

Over the past weeks you have undoubtedly noticed an article headed up by "IVCF" in almost every Link. And when you have a closer look at it, it invariably has something to do with God, Jesus, Christianity, 'or something like that'. But who are these IVCF 'people'? Are they some frantic cult on campus trying to cram their beliefs down your throat?

Inter-varsity Christian Fellowship (IVCF) is simply a meeting of Christians on campus. The people of IVCF come from varied backgrounds and denominations, and what they have in common is that they go to BCIT, they are Christians, and they have a concern for the lost souls on campus.

The students in IVCF do not claim to be preachers--just ordinary people who have accepted Christ as their Saviour. And now they have the promise of eternal life in Heaven with Jesus, and want to share the peace and joy of this security.

Not everyone in IVCF has been a Christian all their lives. Many of us have only recently discovered the reality and truth of Christianity. Now we have practical answers as to why we are on this ear, and how we are to treat this life. The 'born again' Christian in IVCF wants to share the excitement of the life that they are experiencing.

IVCF submits these articles to the Link in hope of giving some 'food for thought' to those who have perhaps dismissed Christianity as a crutch for the frail and weak. It is hoped that people might come to view Christianity as it practically applies to life.

But the bottom line behind the IVCF articles is to you know that Jesus not only died for those people called Christians, but He died for you as well. We want to tell you that you can have the same joy and assurance we have--by simply turning to Jesus. Finally, the people of IVCF want to be friends and people who can be relied on. We are people who have a very real concern for your spiritual welfare.

Today the IVCF will meet as usual. There will be informal discussion at 11:30 followed by the regular meeting at 12:30. All are truly welcome.

Shaky start

A shaky start, but the BCIT Educational Council has finally become a reality. Although interest in the council has been somewhat lacking, with few contested positions, the people that are on the council generally appear interested in the future of BCIT in one way or another.

Unfortunately, with such a large and diverse group of individuals, representing virtually every faction on campus, even the most petty item on the agenda can take an inappropriate length of time to deal with.

The members of the administration all stand behind each other, which takes cares of one-third of the council, but everyone seems to have a mind of their own, which makes things difficult.

So, when everyone wants to get in their misguided two cents worth, the meeting tends to drag on. The firs meeting could have taken about half the time it did if some members had paid more attention to what was going on and used greater care in reading the motions that were presented.

As always, there was an underlying mutual distrust between many of the grups represented. The key to the success of the Educational Council however, will ultimately boil down to an ability of its members to work together towards a common goal. Whatever the common goal is, it should not just present an opportunity for the members to 'fight it out' on a new front.

One last note, a number of the members should familiarize themselves with good old 'Roberts Rules of Order' before the next meeting. That would certainly allow the meeting to flow much more smoothly .

There is hope yet.

A core group of rowdies

Dear Editor,

It seems to me a core group of two or three students in my 1st year 2nd term Psych' Nursing class have set an emotional tone which has inevitably affected and interfered with the mood dynamics of the rest of the class.

The behaviours and vocalizations from this core group of two or three individuals are at times so scandalously childish and embarrassing that I either seethe with rage or squirm with humiliation n being a memeber of a class that has already been labelled as 'radical misfits'. This particular core group are so belligerently vocal that they sound as though they are self-appointed spokespeople for the rest of the class. The basic complaints coming from these individuals are: exams are too ambiguous and don't examine what students really know, exams are scheduled without adequate notice, the Psych. nursing faculty want to 'mold' student's personalites into carbon copies of the 'ideal-kowtowing-type' of nurse maid who is devoid of personality and individuality, that faculty want us or encourage us to think for ourselves, and that faculty are not receptive to our needs and wants.

Jesus Christ! I am close to nausea and vomiting each time I hear one of our 'Baby Huey's' disrupt a class to whine and pine in demanding to have their own way about an issue. Discontent does not arise from just a single source of cause in one's life; discontent is often a generalized feeling state that affects all areas and aspects of one's life. If you are feeling confused or uncertain about life goals, discontent will colour your reaction in terms of what you perceive as leading you towards or thwarting you against achieving those goals.

It's damn difficult being a Psych nursing student; there is so much emotional stress involved in the processes of: 'Will I have enough money to get through this year?, if I fail this exam will I have to repeat my term?, how can I be warm, empathic, and respectful to patients when my own personal life is crumbling like bits of molded cheese?' I personally don't agree with all the concepts and ideas and method taught in Psych nursing yet I don't work myself into an emotional frenzy. I perceive what I'm learning as only acquiring a basic set of tools and skills to enable myself to utilize my own individual innate talents once I graduate. Once you've graduated there is not going to be an instructor over your shoulder saying: 'You must do it this way'. No one will be there to tell you to sue your tools and skills in a set manner. The analogy is similar in learning how to cook: Learning to boil an egg and how to mash potatoes is about as exciting as watching a peeled banana turn brown. Yet, the improvisations and the personal touches of genius in gourmet cooking can only happen after you have learned how to mash potatoes or boil eggs.

I have my moments of discontent; at times I walk into the class with an angry mind and a confused heart but anger and confusion do not have to whirl and eddy within one's psyche until an emotional tempest shatters the calm spewing forth feelings of anger and discontent. Rechannel that destructive turbulence into more constructive personal experiences. There's more to life than just school. I say to the group of two or three discontents in my class: re-examine your career goals and your personal aspirations. Do you really want to travel the path that Psych. nursing at BCIT is leading you? If you feel so strongly negative about education here, then perhaps it is time to look into other possibilities. Your anger and discontent, at times, is so all consuming. You're a talented, intelligent group of individuals; don't waste yourselves.

ARTS AND REVIEW

MUSICALLY SPEAKING

BY Doug Blackie
2nd Year Radio

Check your MacDonal'd's Rock Calendar

Don't judge Fleetwood Mac's Tusk by the title cut (you know, the alleged hit that sounds more like a primevil chant than that of 20th century music).

I found Tusk in about every record store in the Lower Mainland and southern Interior. The price range was anything from 8.98 at Kellys to $16.99 at some joint in PoCo. I'd recommend Kellys, but hurry, the price discount is part of their 'Rocktober' promotion and ends tonight.

When I first heard Tusk (the single) on the radio (3:30 am on CFOX--I remember it well) I was quasi disappointed/intrigued. The song, I felt, was terribly out of wack with any Mac I'd become used to (Rumours and others). I read one review in the PVI paper that said Fleetwood Mac had gone new wavel?! They haven't.

In fact, there's no reason 'Tusk' should even be on that album other than for 'something completely different'.

Fact is though, if some slob like Boris Cumbyechumchuk released a single called 'Tusk' it would be round filed...the name 'Fleetwood Mac' (the preceding was surrounded by a ghostly aura) has made 'Tusk' a hit.

Meanwhile back at the ranch...the rest of the record (with an exception or two) is beautiful. There are a lot more pleasing songs on it than the title cut. Being a two record album it would be too hard, and lengthy to list all the good ones, but every side of the 2 discs is great. Aside from 'Tusk' (the song) and one or two other 'New Wavish' venturings the album was well worth the two year wait.

Fleetwood Mac-Tusk. Warner 2HS3350. Suggested list-$16.99 or less. Rated-8 1/2

In every area of the world there are legends.

In rock music, there are many. Some are dead, most have split the scene, and some have hung on.

One of the hangers-on is Bob Dylan with his latest effort 'Slowtrain Coming'.

Following the relative ho-hum response to his live in Japan album, Dylan has followed up with a commercially accepted winner.

A lot more knowledgeable reviewers say Dylan's conversion from the Jewish faith to the Catholic one is quite evident in the songs of his new album. I agree.

The hit released at this time is 'Gotta Serve Somebody':

'You may be a state trooper,
Maybe the head of some TV network

You may be rich or poor,

You may be blind or lame,
Maybe livin' in another country
Under a different name,

But yur gonna have to serve somebody,

It may be the devil, and it may be the Lord...

But yur gonna have to serve somebody.

I like the title cut...and don't really enjoy some of his other cuts. He seems to be mumbling, and not attempting to carry a tune. The new Dylan? Maybe. Old Dylan? Most likely.

Bob Dylan-Slowtrain Coming. CBS FC 36220. Suggested list-$6.99 Rated-7

At the last minute I jammed out and went shopping.

I just couldn't bring myself to stand (or semi-sit) in a hockey coliseum, festival seating, amidst pot smoke, cigarette smoke, toilet paper, frisbees, fireworks, sparklers, lighters, neon tubes, flares...I think the Little River Band deserved a classier showplace. But you can't jam 20,000 people times $9.50 a ticket into the Queen E., can you Mr. Promoter? I'll just listen to my LRB records and pretend I was there.

There was a bunch of new releases last week.

Joe Jackson has a new album out and the single has been distributed to radio stations. Haven't heard it myself, yet. I bought Suzi Quatro's new one called 'Suzi and Other Four Letter Words', and I'll review it next week. Got hold of the new Stampedeers album called Ballsy (absconded from a radio station) and that too will be reviewed next week.

Talk about good stuff coming up locally. This week in the Body Shop...Fosterchild. People who know the group will love the show, those who don't are in for some excellent rock and roll.

For those of you with MacDonal'd's Rock Calendars, don't forget that during the month of November, you can save $2.00 off of the list price of any album by Canada's Burton Cummings. Last summer he told us he'd have a new album by Christmas...maybe we'll see it soon.

I have in my personal collection, the 'distributed to radio stations only' copy of two cuts from the new album. They're quite excellent (as a Cummings fan).

Read in the Vancouver Sun last week that disco is dying. Like skateboards, CB radios, James Bond, star wars, hoola hoops, LED watches, fender skirts....disco will be around, but (thank God) not as much...

Long live M-O-R!!

See you next week. Doug.

LRB gives energetic show

by Marj Preston, Bio Sciences

For those of you who missed it because you were waiting in line the The Knack tickets, here's a review of the Little River Band concert last Friday night. The concert was both excellent and disgusting.

An otherwise excellent concert what disgusted/infuriated/and embarrassed me was the audience. About twenty ass-holes decided that it would be all right to throw lighted fire crackers, sparklers and flares into the audience.

The warm up got really warm--at one point the Coliseum was set on fire. It was an embarrassment to me, as a Vancouver citizen, that other Vancouverites who were never taught that it is stupid and dangerous to play with fire were in an audience for such a fine band like LRB. Hopefully, when LRB returns for another performance they will either schedule it at the Q.E., like last year, or choose a date farther away from Hal-lowe'en.

As for the performances, both the warmup Messina and the main feature were top notch. Messina displayed a lot of spirit in his movements and voice. His band was versatile in their instruments, playing a lot of instrumentals similar to George Harrison's (eastern) and Russian folk music.

The Little River Band played for one hour and 40 minutes. The show was being recorded for a new live album, transmitted live on a local radio station, and recorded for TV.

They played a few new songs, a few old songs that I didn't recognize, selections from Diamantina Cocktail and their newest First Under The Wire album. For the Coliseum, the quality of the sound wasn't bad, and it was kept to a level just below the pain threshold. Special effects like a large projection screen as the backdrop, lighting, and a mirror ball complemented the energetic performance quite well.

 - Egads! It's Halloween and I'm scared shitless. Not of ghosts or anything, but I live in dangerous East Vancouver, and I didn't get anything for the little brats that live around me. I hope our house doesn't get torched.
 Have you been in the record stores lately? Holy congestion! I wish I had shares in A&B or Kelly's, I could retire.
 There are a lot of new releases around, but the two big ones are, of course, the latest from the Eagles and Fleetwood Mac. The latter, Tusk, is still 'a mystery to me'. (a little former album humour). When I first heard the title track I said to myself, 'far out, they've gone onto something new', but the more I hear of that million dollar double platter, the more it sounds like the old Rumour brand Mac. However, I can't say that I've listened to the whole album right through, so shoot me if I'm wrong.

The Eagles new one, The Long Run (A title, probably by Joe Walsh, that lends itself to silly radio intros) is good and bad. Some of the stuff like 'Heartache Tonight' is kind of second rate garbage that any one of a thousand bar bands come up with, while on the other hand, songs like 'The Greeks Don't Want No Freaks' is a neat change for the desert rats. All in all, a not too good, not too bad album.

Another biggy this Christmas is Cornerstone from Styx, but I wrote that band off after Equinox.

If you haven't noticed, there is a rash of new female artists to hit the FM airways. Caroline Mas, Lene Lovich, Rachel Sweet (sixteen year old ex-country lady), Ellen Foley (ex-Meatloaf, produced by Ian Hunter and Mick Ronson), and Pat Benatar, who is produced by Mike Chapman (a star-maker who did work with successes like the Knack, Blondie, Nick Gilder, and Exile).

All five are good. Lovich is neat; and Benatar is great, who by the way will be appearing at the UBC SUB Ballroom on the 25th of November. While I'm a it, Ian Gomm and Iggy Pop will be there on the 18th and 23rd respectively.

For once there wasn't a lot of concerts last week, Sammy Hagar and the Little River Band. Blackie was covering that one, but the last I heard, he sold his tickets. Perhaps he thought he'd try the simicast journalism approach. Anyways, I got Hagar, it was a good one. The Gardens again. (I'm even beginning to like that shit hole.) The music has been called 'suburban teen rock'. You can see by the song titles, just as you can with Ted Nugent, Van Halen and the rest of those bands.

I can't say I get off on Sammy Hagar Albums, but I sure do like him live. He runs, he jumps, he smiles, he has a good time. So you can't help but have a good time just watching him. It's not just him either, it's the whole band, especially the other guitarist, Gary Phil, who eventually stole the show.

It's good to see a band with a guy who can play as good as Hagar, and even better to have someone who can play beeter to boot. A fun Concert, equipped with three sizzling encores.

Last toke: Vancouver discos are not only ridiculous, but they're also racist. It's all on the front page of the Sunday Province.

'Read it in the Sunday papers' - Joe Jackson.
 Next week: Shit, it's November already.

Winner take all

Reflect back several months back to the long, lazy days of summer. Back to when the BC Lions, the Whitecaps and the Vancouver Canucks were all in first place. The Canucks had yet to lose a game. It was a sports fan's dream. And when the Whitecaps won the Soccer Bowl, well, one could allow a delirious Vancouver sports nut, hungry for victory to imagine the possibilities.

The Soccer Bowl, the Grey Cup and yes, even the Stanley Cup for Vancouver in one season! A glorious new stadium the envy of the continent, would be built. Vancouver would be the first city in history to host both the winter and summer Olympics in the same year! The city would be recognized as the sport's capital of North America. The likes of Scotty Bowman and Tom Landry would be begging to coach anything in our city. And, and...

Get ahold of yourself, girl. Come to your senses. The Whitecap victory is but a pleasant memory. The BC Lions are exhibiting their usual suicidal tendencies and the fight for the Grey Cup won't be nearly as interesting as the fight between Vic Rapp and Hugh Campbell. You've lived in Vancouver for years and should know better. You should be immune to disappointment by now!

It's not easy rooting for the local sports teams. It is certainly not easy to watch the Lions go down the toilet in Regina when the home field advantage for the semi-finals was on the line. I'm running out of excuses for the

I'm running out of excuses to tell those people who have abandoned the CFL ship for the NFL, Monday nights and Howard Cosell. (Now that's desperate).

The NHL season is only three weeks old, but I'm already talking Stanley Cup for the Canucks. They'll surprise a lot of skeptics and the mugs of poor dear Canucks will finally grace the pages of those hockey mags (Notice how those hockey mags have only two topics: Guy Lafleur AND Guy Lafleur.) A bit too optimistic? Of course. Understand though that yours truly believes in the power of positive thinking (sic) and even gambled half her life savings on the New York Rangers beating the Habs in four straight. That's why I needed the student loan.

Maybe when I'm older and wiser I'll acquire that certain cynicism needed to survive the long football and hockey seasons, but for now I'm your typical, hopeful, Vancouver sports fan, with disappointment my middle name.

THE FLOWER POT

by margaret

The Wonderful Jews

If you're not living in someone's basement with all the window boarded up, you probably have a good location for a wonderful Wandering Jew (Zebrina pendula or Tradescantia specie).

A Wandering Jew is one of the world's best hanging plants. It's trailing form also makes it a good specimen to drape over a coffee table or bookcase.

Description-The leaves are between one and ten cm (1/2-4 in.), entire-edged and alternate.

There are many different colours of 'jews' to choose from: plain green, green with red undersides, re-purple with silver racing stripes (honest), fuzzy white and green, green-and-white stripes, green-and-white-and-pink stripes, and almost solid purple-red. The brighter the light, the better the colour, in most instances.

Oh, and they bloom, too! Depending upon the variety, you may get either white, pink, or deep rose three-petalled flowers.

Care-Give medium light to direct sun. Water when the soil feels dry to touch, and use a houseplant fertilizer once a month. Don't hesitate to prune or pinch back the tips. The plant will grow nice and bushy. This plant doesn't suffer from many diseases or insects, and really the only extra care it needs is to have the older, dying leaves removed.

Get One Today-Two methods- 1. rush out and buy one, or 2. start your own from cuttings.

The first method requires cash, but not much. A small one shouldn't cost more than $1.50, and most department, grocery, and plant stores sell them. You can purchase huge hanging baskets, for quite a lot of money. I recommend you just be patient for a while, eventually your small plant can reach monstrous proportions. The alternative method of obtaining Wandering Jews requires that you know someone who's already. When they're not looking, snip off the tips about three inches long. Bring your cuttings home, remove a lower leaf or two, and show the lower inch into a moist potful or houseplant soil. (see diagram). Keep the cuttings out of direct sun, keep the soil moist. Within a week they should be rooted and growing like crazy.

Wandering Jews are colourful, vigorous, and easy to maintain plants. Isn't it time you got yourself one?

BEER MAKES IT BETTER

by Dave Pentland

This bold and revealing recipe is a sample of the type of recipes found in the National Nudists Cookbook. The book contains many delicious recipes cooked in various stages of undress. This cookbook should not be sold to persons under the age of 18 (minors), or cave sculptures over the age of 18 (majors); because they are groups most likely to spill hot fat on the spot were your average cook book tells you to wear an apron. This is not your average book!

I was compelled to search out a recipe containing raw vegetables, because the residents of my suite often cook in the raw, especially the ladies, they love raw vegetables. Real health fanatics!

So here goes this weeks brief beer buff bananza...Vegetables in the raw.

Vegetable in the Raw

- 3 tbsp minced cabbage
- 3 Tabsp minced carrots
- 3 Tabsp minced green pepper
- 3 Tabsp celery
- 3 Tabsp radishes
- 3 Tabsp onions
- 1 1/2 cups cheddar cheese, grated
- 4 Tabsp beer (you can drink the rest)

White pepper and cayne to taste.

- 2 slices of buttered toast
- 1 Combine raw vegies in a bowl. Spoon out 1/2 cup of vegies on each piece of toast.
- 2 In a double broiler, stir cheese and beer together, and heat cheese until it melts.
- 3 No step 3; but a good excuse to go to the fridge and embark on a fresh beer or two, or three, or four, or FIVE, or SIX?...???
- 4 Season (preferably fall) cheese sauce with white pepper and cayne to taste.
- 5 Put toast on a baking sheet. Spoon cheese sauce equally over the vegies.
- 6 Broil sandwiches for about three minutes or until cheese lightly browns.

Now you are ready to grab your favourite ungarmented partner (I hate clothes) and delve into this stark sandwich. Cheers/Beers

PS: Ode to ye barley sandwich crowd.

Here's to you, as good as you are; and here's to me as bad as I am. And as bad as I am, and as good as you are, I'm as good as you are, bad as I am.

The Link News Department

Here they are. The results of the LINK's survey of the masses have been tallied and published for your inspection.

It wouldn't be statistically correct to give broad generalizations as to why we think people answered the way they did. A person against an oil tanker down the BC coast might have a summer place on the water...or be an armchair environmentalist. A person for the legalization of marijuana might be a pusher...the person against, might simply prefer cocaine. You can see why looking at an individual example can distort generalizations that might sound good to us.

The best treatment of these survey results is to look at the percentages, and compare the trends with the current state of the issue. For example, 60 percent of the the students responding were against a new covered sports stadium for a downtown location. Yet, a domed downtown stadium proposal is being drawn up by the man hired to study the stadium question by the city of Vancouver, er, Paul Manning.

Eighty percent of the answers call for the 1988 Olympics to be held in Vancouver if the games are federally backed, whereas only 35 percent want the Olympics here if local sources have to pick up the tab. Last weekend, however, the Canadian bid went to Calgary...which is OK by 15 percent of the students, but doesn't make a bit of difference to 40 percent of you. It might a deep depression in the minds of the remainin 40 percent.

Thirty percent are against stricter requirements for Unemployment Insurance while only 25 percent are against stricter requirements for welfare applicants...is UIC closer to home perhaps? Whoops, mustn't generalize now musn't we?

So take a look at yourself, and draw your own conclusions. That way we're not responsible. Yes, well, we know we're not responsible, but we try hard.

Thanks to everyone who made the time to answer. And thanks to everyone who thought about answering. (We're not responsible - but we're friendly)

Basketball-Monday night action saw Marketing win over Gas and Oil, 70-36. This Marketing team has won its last two games by margins of over 30 points. That's really great team, but let's relax and don't be so tough on the other teams. This is a FUN LEAGUE, remember? It might be an idea if Marketing made two teams of their roster because of their strength.

In other basketball games, the All-Stars squeezed past Computer Programming 36-34. This was an excellent game, close and right down to the wire. Basketball players of the week are: Nick Hawkey (Comp. Prog.) for his controlling of the boards; Steve Whitton (All Stars), for his leading offense; Rob Gutjahr (Marketing), for good ball handling; and Jerry Heskettin (Gas and Oil) for his good effort.

Flag Football-we have been fortunate with the weather till this last Wednesday. It rained and the Forest products Mau-raders defaulted to the Circuit Breakers. (I hope it wasn't because of a little rain, fellers?) The two E&E teams (the Chargers vs The Jets) played each other, in this inter-tech rivalry match. Nate Kang led the scoring with two touchdowns. He was also player of the game. Rounding out the scoring were Brett Nelson, Mike Lagasse, Dean Greene, and Brian Nichol for the chargers. In the other game, Survey defeated Finance 1 27-7 in a game that saw Finance I dominate until the late second half. The game was broken with a touchdown by Martin Harehausen of Survey. The nail was put in the coffin by a touchdown interception by Steve Mitchell. Greg Dinsmore scored 12 points for Survey, Steve Jabro scored for Finance I.

Volleyball-Tuesday night volleyball is going strong now with four teams registered, the newest entry being a team from the Salish House girls residence. Now, that should make for a good turnout on Tuesday nights...In the four games played, all were ties. Hotel Motel tied Agri Man, Salish tied

Bio-Science, Bio Science tied Hotel Motel, and Salish tied Agri Man.

Wednesday noon break is continuously strong. Chem Met II is now the only undefeated team in the whole league. Rec Facs lost their first game to Env Health M by the scores of 11-12, 11-12. Ryan Mulligan was noted to have played a strong game. Another team that should be watched are the Ball Bangers. After tying their first game, they have gone undefeated in their last three. It is great to see Bryan Wooley back in his true athletic form. In the only tie, Building played Hot Springs to a stand still. The games scores were 11-12, 21-10. This week's volleyball players of the week are Gary Yates and Sandra Fung of the Bumble B's; Jacque Beltgens, Building; Tom Schmidt, Agi man; Barb Bochim Env Health B; and Bryan Wooley, Ball Bangers.

Intramural Hockey-Mauraders vs Lookouts, 11-3; players of the game were M. Shacker of the mauraders, and Mike English for the Lookouts. One Forestry team member (although we won't say who, we know who you are) insisted on be very unsportsmanlike--you got it, fighting! Campus Recreation Council

Meeting-Thursday, Nov. 1st
 Where- Campus Life trailer
 Time- 7:30 a.m.

Outdoors & Ski Club-many times I have heard the question 'What do you guys (outdoor and ski club members) do?' These members are involved with downhill skiing, cross country skiing, hiking, etc. Many members are interested in the activities of both clubs so for simplicity the meetings are combined (we're the only club with two chairpersons). The club has two annual trips: a cross country ski trip during the Christmas break, and a downhill ski trip during the Spring Break (to Big White in Kelowna). The executive for this year have a number of other activities planned also. Most of the trips are on long weekends or during the holidays. Our meeting has some form of entertainment, a slide show, a film or guest speaker and of course future trips are organized. The meetings are held every two weeks in room 2N-207.

On November 11th, the club will visit Lake Ann (the picture shows some of the view from the lake). During the Christmas break, the club is going to Hyas Lake near Kamloops for a cross country ski trip. Some of the members intend to do downhill skiing at Todd Mountain (a 35 minute drive from the cabin).

Before Christmas, there is a cross country trip for the 'hardy'. This 8 hour trip requires a reasonable amount of skiing skill and necessary equipment. From Christmas til spring break, everything is a bit vague yet (the executive hasn't finished their operations management course yet). However, the ski trip to Big White is definitely on and not that this is the only treatment available for BCIT-itis (always working). This trip is an annual event and always enjoyed by everyone who has gone in the past.

Just imagine...sunshine, spring snow, and the runs to yourself and your friends...after the days skiing, ski back to your condominium to relax in front of your fireplace (after the sauna that is, they you can dance in the discotheque. I should mention now that a representative from Big White will be at the meeting October 31st, room 2N-207, at 12 noon (that is today) with a film of the ski resort and to answer questions that you might have.

Short trips are often organized for some weekends but those trips usually depend on the workload we have.

If you are interested in any of the trips above, come to any of the meetings and we can find out how outdoorise we really are. Just remembering the last trip we took as long getting home as the hike itself!

We major in taste.

People sometimes forget. Labels never do.

It's easy to forget even the simplest things: a name, a birthday, a phone number. And most of the time it doesn't matter much.

But when it comes to taking medicine — how much, how often, even when not to take it — it really matters if you forget. A lot.

That's why all medicines — prescription and non-prescription alike — have the directions right on the label. So you can always be sure you're taking it right. To make sure your medicine works right for you.

What's more, a label can never forget.
So why trust your memory? Or anyone else's?
Read the label instead.

Don't trust your memory. Read the label.

Women take Bronze

The Womens' Field Hockey Team won a bronze medal this weekend as they finished third in a double round robin tournament which finished in the rain last weekend at Trafalgar Park in Vancouver. Vcc took first, Selkirk took second, and BCIT ended with third.

The first game was won against Cariboo College through a forfeit as they didn't make an appearance. The next game was lost 2-1 to Okanagan in a very frustrating game for players. Coach Kirlsley said 'the officiating was very poor and as a result the team was being penalized for playing the game correctly.'

'The girls should be commended for keeping cool and staying with the game plan'. Debbie Gittens scored the only goal of the game.

Although BCIT had eleven shots on goal as opposed to five by the opponent VCC(Langara), in the first half, BCIT could not score. VCC came back stronger in the second half to eventually win 3-0.

Even though we lost, the girls played their best game, the forwards executing good passing plays with captain Wendy Prochnavy spearheading the attack. Debbie Gittens, a versatile player on forward and defense, was very steady as halfback this game., as was Bonnie Hawrys who has played her best series to date.

Our last, but critical game for third place was against Selkirk. We came through winning 2-0 with goals by our most experienced player Pam Anderson on a superb shot off a short corner. The other goal came from the ever reliable Debbie Gittens. Shots on goal were 7-2 for BCIT at half time. The second half saw BCIT only get one shot on goal while they peppered BCIT with 12. We hung on-need we say more.

Throughout the Totem conference Tournament many frustrating moments were felt through-lack of organization and poor officiating. Hopefully next year a lot of the problems will be ironed out and field hockey will be bigger and better than ever.

The team has improved this year. The stronger players are often the ones an outsider notices first, but after this tournament, the younger inexperienced players like Mindy Dhaliwal, goaly Janet Cogg, Val Dickson, Jennifer Freeman, Sue Phillips and Laureen Popoff deserve a lot of credit.

SOCCER

On Saturday afternoon, the Cougars travelled to Naniamo and Played Malispina College in a Totem conference soccer match. BCIT won this game 3-1, with Mark Krehel scoring two goals and Bruce Johnson the other goal.

The Cougars played an excellent first half but lacked enough drive in the second half. All the Cougars scoring came in the first half while Malispina scored a very poor goal in the second half. 'I thought we played a great first half but we stunk the other half. However, I am overall pleased with this victory which now gives us a 7-2 record' said Coach Mitchell.

Next game is this Sunday at BCIT against VCC. With only a few games left in the schedule, this game will decide which team will win the gold or silver medal in the Totem Conference.

Rugby

On Sunday afternoon, the Cougars had shut out the grads 12-0 in a hard fought battle on the wet field at BCIT. This still keeps the BCIT Team undefeated. Next league game is on Saturday and Sunday at one oclock against Cariboo College. They should be interesting games, with the Cougars ready to walk all over Cariboo.

Basketball

The Men's team totally demolished the alumni 97-57 with Gregg Turkington getting 21 points and Brett Kokgski scoring 18 points, while the women's team defeated the grads by seven points. Both the teams displayed some promising signs for the new year. About 250 spectators saw this and the Whitecaps beat the faculty by four points. The BC Lions cheerleaders performed at half time.

Both teams play this Saturday night at BCIT against the Dogwood Squads. It starts at 6:30 and 8:15pm.

Get a handle on something great.
