New food manager hired

SA takes over SAC food services

Richard Thé, the new manager of the SAC food services outlet operated by the Student Association.

Shinerama a four-month student organizing chore

Every year students from Universities and colleges throughout Canada go out to shine shoes to raise money for research in Cystic Fibrosis.

Here at BCIT students actively participate in shining, with little help from the organizers.

Starting just after the finals in May, the Shinerama directors get together to help make each year's campaign just a little better and a little more successful.

Our Shinerama Co-ordinator, Cathy McMahon, attends a conference in Ontario and brings back new and fresh ideas for the meetings held at BCIT.

With her assistant co-ordinat-Anna Vandenaker, Cathy chooses responsible people who will work hard to put it all together, then keeps in close touch to make sure that all problems are solved quickly.

To make sure that all areas are serviced by Shiners, Rod Bay,

You need a part-time job but you're tired of doing shitwork. Right? We have just the thing for

Publications is, as always, looking for people with more enthusiasm than talent to work or the LINK. Experience is not necessary for all the editorial jobs; all that is necessary is a sense of humor and a desire to stir up trouble and, if all else fails, report the facts of campus

Specifically, we need people to fill the following jobs:

•Reporters. People to snoop around campus, cover events and report on news from within their techs. It doesn't matter if you're not a star writer (we have copy editors for that), because we just need the information gathered. You will be paid according to the time you spend and the quality of your output, and the people who get really keen sometimes make over $100 a month at it.

Bennett on campus Sept. 15

Premier William Andrew Cecil ...er, William R. Bennett will be on campus Friday, September 15 to officially open the new Maquinna Residence at the south end of campus. It will be a gala occasion, representing the conclusion of six years of hard work by the administration and student association.

The LINK should have more details next week on the festivities. Students should plan to come over and mill around, because, as always, the school has not budgeted for the renting of a crowd.

By DON WRIGHT

The SAC Cafeteria is in the process of being renovated and will be operated this year by the Student Association.

During the summer the Student Association executive submitted a proposal, prepared by Operations Manager Rob Slavik, to the BCIT administration. In the proposal, the SA outlined the improvements to be made to the Student Activity Centre this year, including extensive renovations to the cafeteria as well as the relocation of and improvements to the liquor outlet.

The work to be done this year will cost approximately $38,000, of which $18,000 is coming from the BCIT administration. This would bring the total administration involvement to $21,000, or 28 per cent of the total funds spent over the past two years. The administration contributed $3,000 to last year's total of $38,000 spent for the initial improvements made to the SAC lobby and cafeteria.

Reasons for such a major expenditure are many, the first being that the old cafeteria was not meeting health standards where, among other items, a staff washroom was going to have be installed anyway. Other reasons include the overwhelming student response in favor of the renovations made last year in the SAC lounge area and cafeteria.

This impression is emphasized by the fact that students voted approval to a five dollar increase in the student activity fee to be put into the building fund. In addition, there are 250 students living on campus this year in the new Maquinna residence, and the need for improved food facilities is further underlined.

The $38,000 to be spent includes $13,000 in equipment for the new food outlet, $6,000 in eaulpment for the liquor outlet, and $17,000 for renovations to the SAC cafeteria and lobby. In the proposal as accepted the operation is not concerned with capital cost recovery, as all the capital costs (like equipment) were carried by the building fund. This is the reason the fund was originally established.

In order to ensure the proper setting up and successful operation of the new food outlet the proposal dealt with the matter of hiring a full-time food manager. ne person would be responsible for establishing and operating the food outlet. As the proposal states, "...the manager will make or break this operation.'

The person hired for that job is a young BCIT grad named Richard The. Richard was a member of the Hotel/Motel graduating class of 1977. Before, during and since his two years at BCIT he has worked in a number of restaurants, including being the manager of a Mr. Mike's and, most recently, unit manager of the Copper Kettle in Cloverdale. He left that restaurant in May of this year, with the intention of opening a restaurant of his own. However, he was unable to get the start he wanted, and found himself in the market for a job.

When the opening for a food manager for the new cafeteria presented itself, Richard jumped at the chance.

What follows are excerpts from an interview with Richard conducted about a week ago.

'I saw this job and thought it would be interesting. It's a brand new operation that has to be set up, which I was going to go through anyway if I had opened my own business, so it's something I would like to try.

.. my role as food manager is setting up the operation, including making a menu, doing the costs, lining up suppliers of food, is well as niring one or two tull time people and some part time people to work during the rush

'We would like to be open, initially anyway, from 7:30 in the morning to 2:30 in the afternoon; then we will review the hours to determine if we need to extend them or not...

'It will be a continental type breakfast-coffee, danish pastry I don't know how well it will go: it depends on whether students will come in at 7:30 in the morning or not.

'For lunch we will be serving natural sandwiches just like Honey's [in Gastown] in addition to the pre-made sandwiches. We will have a salad bar 'Keg' continued on page 2

Menu will feature salad bar, health sandwiches style—where you make up your own salad. We haven't really come to a conclusion as to how we are going to charge.... There are several ways of doing it. For example, it could be per plate for different sizes of plates or by weighing each plate and charging so much per ounce, or maybe even all you could load on one plate!"

The big question is how much s the food going to cost?

"Oh, well, I'm trying to keep the sandwich prices as low as possible, but the sandwiches are not really cheap ones.

"We are going to use special breads, the types of bread that

You may have heard that last year's yearbook

was unique and superb.

would be appealing to your health—you're not going to get your regular spongy white bread, you'll get sprouted wheat breads, grain breads and bio breads. There will be lettuce, alfalfa sprouts, everything. The price will depend on how elaborate you want your sandwich, because each will be custom made. If you want roast beef, you can have roast beef; there will be 13 different fillings.

"I'd like to add that I'm open to suggestion from the student body as to what they'd like to see in addition to what we've got to offer. The menu is strictly on a trial basis. We don't know what type of reaction we will get, but on the basis of trends, people are more conscious of what they eat now, so I think this will be a good change from the type of food previously offered.

"We'll have to rely on students' support, so if they don't like it, they should suggest what they think would be better. We'll have a suggestion box set up. "It's going to be a real experience for me, so I just hope people will try us!"

You will probably notice the renovations are not yet finished. This is due, according to Operations Manager Rob Slavik, to complications arising from changes to the plans ordered by the BCBC (BC Buildings Corporation), the people who are responsible for changes and maintenance in government-owned buildings. Apparently the plans were all set, contracts let and work started with the administration's approval, when BCBC stepped in and halted work, causing a delay while the facilities were redesigned.

ing shots of bum shows and other degraded gross-outs. Bring your own camera if you have one, and we pay by the picture or by the assignment.

•Advertising manager. Do you want to make good money knocking on doors selling advertising space in the LINK and for the yearbook? We have one position open for a keen individual who is looking to practice for a sales career and make good money doing it. Remuneration is by commission at the time the account is paid into the office. You get 25 per cent of all advertising sold in the LINK which, for a good person, should amount to around $75 per week (we request, however, that you sell at least an equal dollar value to the agency advertisements which arrive automatically into the office to collect that commission)

•Office help. One person to handle mailing, typing correspondence and invoices, keeping the accounts current and the office generally organized. Pay at $3.50 per hour and probably five hours of work per week.

Students interested in being reporters and photographers should see Dave Sherwood, Don Wright or Christer Myberg in the LINK editors' office (the little one next door to the main publications office in the SAC) as soon as possible.

Students interested in the typesetting, advertising and office jobs should contact Michael Kluckner in the Publications office as soon as possible. We want to fill, these jobs and get everything onto a regular schedule within the next week or so.

If you're sort of interested but not sure, we're going to be holding two workshops and discussions on the LINK. The first one is the day after tomorrow, Thursday, September 7 in the publications office at 12:30. Drop by, if only for a few minutes, and meet some of the staff and regulars.

The second workshop will be on style and content and will happen the following Wednesday, September 13, at 12:30 in the Boardroom (across the hall from Publications). It will be an editorial meeting and an idea exchange, and we will be looking for people to take on assignments and write columns. Come and bring your lunch.

Just wait until you see the 1978-79 'Son of Yearbok'.

Once again you have a chance to take pictures and win great prizes. It doesn't matter whether you're a beginner with your first camera or an avid photographer with the best equipment money can buy, as long as you're a BCIT student.

Last year's prizes included $50 cash, a professional 8 x 10 color photo of you, and a 30 x 20 blowup of the winning photo. Sounds great, doesn't it? Prizes for this year haven't been finalized but they're looking even better than last year.

Don't wait till spring to start snapping. Do it now. A great fall shot might just win.

Ticket booklet a first for BCIT

That ticket booklet you have in your hot little hand is something of a first for BCIT. Produced by the Campus Life Department, it contains 16 discount coupons for a whole, range of services and supplies.

Included are discounts on prescriptions, mufflers, windshields, tires, produce, general stationery and clothing. The coupons were sold and the booklet produced by second-year Admin. student Sarah Baker, working for the summer with the Campus Life depart-

Hopefully, this booklet is the beginning of a tradition which will see more bargains made available to BCIT students. Baker suggests that if the coupons are used, student cards are shown and the merchants get the feeling that, their money has been well spent, then it will be that much easier to produce a better booklet next

Be sure to show your student card when requesting the discount, and it's probably a good idea to take the entire ticket booklet with you when you're making a purchase.

You got the letter in the mail saying you'd be accepted. You jumped and clapped your little hands together in paroxysms of joy.

"Boy," you thought, "now I'm all set. People who go to BCIT get employed. A couple of years and I'll be set to take a run at anyone."

JUST WAIT ONE LITTLE SECOND, PREPPIE.

This isn't high school where they pass you just because they don't want to see you next year. And this isn't University where you can take 12 years to get a B.A. if you're a slow

You've got two years of concentrated work in front of you. And this is tough stuff. When (and if) you graduate from this place you should know enough to make it—right then.

But to make it you've got to work.

What's BCIT like?

Like any institution it has its good and bad points. Your instructors are generally a dedicated group of professionals who are ready and willing to pass on their knowledge. There are exceptions.

The administration is there to see that you get through with the minimum of hassle and fuss. The vast majority of them feel that they're around to help you. But, like in any large group, there are apple polishers, hypocrites and people who delight in putting obstacles in your path. Avoid them.

The services offered students at BCIT are extensive. Leaf through your BCIT Daze flyer (that's right, the one that came in the mail) and look them over. There is no lack of activities to take part in. Enjoy them (all work and no play etc. etc.)

Another thing—you're a member of the Student Association. You'll have the opportunity to take part in things like Shinerama and the Telethon. Take part. It's fun and you're helping people.

The Student Association executive was elected late last year to conduct your business this year. The look like a mature lot and we're looking for a good year, but if you feel you're getting the shaft on something, let them know. Tell your tech rep, tell your set rep, write a letter to the LINK, or accost them in the hallway, but let them know. This place is a democracy. So democ all you can.

Oh, and by the way, the LINK needs your help. We pay a little, but the big thing is satisfaction (see your name in lights!). Come down and talk to us about your ideas; we're interested (unless they're too wacko, like the guy who wanted to make the LINK completely pollution proof by printing it on processed cheese, in three delicious flavors: cheddar, Swiss...and rum and raisin. Yecch.).

Letters to the LINK

IN HIS OWN WRITE

by michael kluckner

Hello, sort of

A qualified hello, I guess, as we try to shake the cobwebs out of our cojones and struggle into production again for another 30 issues. Janice the secretary just wandered into the office with the news that her Mustang (containing one husband) had been totalled by some idiot. Smells like disaster in the air, eh?

Anyway, this is the third year that I've been sort of involved with (or should I say responsible for?) this travesty of a publication, and I suppose I should say that yes, we've always raised hackles, offended scruples and even bored high-brows to tears, but that I am not apologetic in the least for it and anyone (especially staff) who feels that we get out of hand is welcome to attempt to do better. Once a week (same as a sexually-active instructor?). Is that clear? No.

sexually-active instructor?). Is that clear? No.

Okay, from my point of view—which will cease to have any validity once I bail out to do Open House and 'Son of Yearbok'—we have a minimal commitment to hard news (as defined by the Glob and Flail and other such measured responses) and a maximum commitment to sensationalism, bad taste, good jokes, pranks, stunts, other juvenilisms, and yellow journalism per se. I would sincerely love some white knight (with or without Glad Bags) to come into the office and say, "Listen, what we need is a commitment to hard news and truth!" with "I'll do it for you" tacked on as a coda. But it never happens, so we struggle along mournfully having a good time.

Problem is, as always, that most people care about their studies, which makes sense, and about getting blotto on American pseudobeer and stale pretzels on the weekend, which makes for crappy reading. BCIT has always lacked rabble rousers (although there's never been a shortage of rabble) and newspapers like the LINK need such stirring news to keep going. The place is too workaholic, so we depend on the internal lunatic ravings of a demented staff to fill the paper. Is that clear? Good.

Last year at this time our first issue came thundering off the press with a big scoop on the "Summer of the Long Knives," alias the dispute between the administration and the student association over management and control of the SAC building. A couple of weeks later we had the biggest story in years over the fight between BCIT and the Ministry of Education over Bill 82, which I guess was declared meaningless to practically everyone shortly after. All the big news events continued through the fall with more SAC management fights and executive bickering. It was a good year for front page headlines.

One thing we did want to do was to get the staff (instructors and the like) more involved in the paper by giving them more of the kind of news they like—for-instance, Jackie O. stories, white slavery rings and Jeanne Dixon pre-dixons. They have generally steered clear of any sort of involvement in the past, probably because they think we suck or something, but we know that there are several closet Carl Bernsteins out there, including:

 Purchasing Manager Wayne Hepple, who tells a good joke and may get a comic strip dedicated to him if he continues with the Friday afternoon at the beergarden bunch

•Biological Sciences Senior Instructor Sid Andersen, who is a bit of a black sheep around these parts, especially after his attack on City Health Inspectors on BCIT stationery in the Sun last spring. Sid used to take some rather looping swings at bare-bummed foresters and the alleged uselessness of everything modern in past years, but he laid low all last year. We are anxiously awaiting Sid's return to the fray

•Information Services Director Dick Melville, a former Vancouver Sun editor, is going to be publishing his "Developments" news sheet twice a month starting very soon. We look forward to more theme issues this year (like the "fruit" one last spring, which featured stories on Ainslie Peach, Dennis Lemon and Anne Garden. Maybe he'll start the year with a "meat" issue, featuring the new Irish food services instructor Baron O'Beefe) and hope some of that produce will spill over onto us Broadcasting department head Lundy Sanderson, who actually looks more like a Steinway than a Bernstein, should give some demonstrations on How It's Done to all his Broadcasting students who insist on moonlighting on the LINK.

One noteworthy event which happened during the summer was Manpower counsellor Dave King and his wife winning the FM-99 "Bellingham Dirty Weekend" contest. A significant honor, and Dave's reason for why they needed a dirty weekend ("ever since we've been married we've had relatives staying with us") is typical of the good humor he's brought to this campus over the past few years. The reason that this paragraph is beginning to sound like an eulogy is because Dave and wife are taking leaves of absence this month for a year's travelling in South America. Good luck and we'll miss you, you rat.

SA constitution amendments proposed

The Student Association executive is considering amending the bylaws of its Constitution. The changes proposed specifically concern the Annual General Meeting Meeting.

Vice-President Internal Tom
Friedrich has suggested the following changes, which will be discussed over the next couple of weeks. The changes are:

"Bylaw 6 Meetings Section 2 Revise heading to read: "The Association shall hold one General Meeting per calendar year, the date to be set by the Council and the meeting to be known as the Annual General Meeting of the Student Association of BCIT."

Section 2e Delete

"Ten percent (10%) of active membership"

"Fifty current members of the Student Association."

This space belongs to you. It is your talk back, complaint and compliment space for everything we do and everything else that happens on campus. So, write a letter to the LINK. Deadline is Friday afternoon.

cover events and report on news from within their techs. It doesn't matter if you're not a star writer because we just need the information gathered. You will be paid according to the time you spend and the quality of your output.

"Photojournalists," as it were, to cover campus events and bring in the interesting shots of bum shows, fires, towaways, and other typical happenings. Bring your own camera if you have one, and we pay by the picture or by the assignment.

ADVERTSING MANAGER

You can make great money knocking on doors selling advertising space in the LINK and for the yearbook. We have one position open for a keen individual who is looking to practice for a sales career and make good money doing it. Remuneration is by commission—25 per cent of all advertising in the LINK.

GET ACQUAINTED THIS THURSDAY

Drop by, if only for a few minutes, around 12:30 and meet the staff and regulars. We'll be able to give you some idea of what you could best do for the LINK. s

WORKSHOP, WEDNESDAY SEPTEMBER 13

At 12:30 in the Boardroom (across the hall from Publications). This is going to be an editorial meeting and an idea exchange, and we will be looking for people to take on assignments and write columns. Bring your lunch.

Come in and see us—get involved!

ROCKPILE

by Don Wright

I remember all through school the teachers would always ask you on the first day back, "Well, what did you kids do all summer? Say, why don't you write it down and hand it in at the end of the class?

That was not a question, that was a demand. I don't remember ever handing anything in, though. Either I didn't do anything worth writing about, or I was careful to avoid giving any teacher the impression that I was going to do something just because they wanted it done.

Anyway, here I am at BCIT introduce myself.

now, and nobody is going to ask Like it says at the top of the me what I did this summer, let alone ask me to write it down. Well, for all you lucky LINK readers, let me tell you what I did this summer. But first, I should column, I'm Don Wright. I've had my yearly haircut, so no one will recognize me. I've actually already graduated once (E & E) (marketing). Some people actually think I like BCIT, others tend to think I'm a dedicated masochist. Anyway, I'm into rock, so anytime you want to talk to me about music, stop me in the hall or come down to the LINK office and wake Enough boring crap; this is a rock column. I'm gonna restrict myself to discussing the two best concerts of the summer—The Canada Day "Lighter than Air Fair'' and the more recent "Summer Sunday '78."

The Canada Day "Lighter than Air Fair," held on top of Grouse Mountain was probably the most interesting and enjoyable concert event I've ever attended. Featured over the two day festival were such artists as David Bradstreet, Ray Materick, Danny O'Keefe, Jesse Winchester, Jerry Doucette, Stonebolt, Cano, Paul Horn and Fosterchild. The stage was located at the bottom of Paradise Bowl (a shallow beginners' ski run) and was a massive rough wood structure with colorful murals covering the speaker systems. It was a well-designed and constructed stage, blending well with the natural surroundings. The atmosphere was really great, everyone was lying in the hot sun, absolutely buzzed, get-ting off on some mighty fine

The climax of the Saturday show was a short but blazing set by Vancouver's Jerry Doucette. This guy really cooks when he plugs his guitar in, and he performs numbers from his album far better live than on disc. He also does a lot of songs previously associated with Eric Clapton circa "EC was Here." Undoubtedly Doucette is headed for the top, a third single having been released from his debut album just a few weeks ago.

The second day of the concert was much cooler, and fog started filling the space between stage and crowd. The highlight was an inspiring set by Cano, which seemed perfect for the weather. Cano's music flowed like the fog that was rolling in and out. It was a really good deal at ten dollars for a weekend pass.

The other concert worth mentioning is the recent "Summer Sunday '78," the one which attracted 44,000 people to Empire Stadium. The fact that there are only 12 sets of washrooms didn't seem to bother anybody. The security was tight, very tight. We had to chug our win sack of whatever it was at the gate. When we got inside we found ourselves a spot in the field and sat down on the padded turf covers.

A few minutes later a group of people sat down near us. With them they had one of those large green stuffed dinosaurs, presumably won on the grounds. As soon as they had sat down they ripped open the beast and pulled out of the foam filler a bottle of Bicardi, then a bottle of Vodka, and another, and another; for a total of four 26ers and five mickeys! What a party they had.

Nick Gilder, last minute re-placement for the cancelled Atlanta Rhythm Section, opened the show. The half dozen or so twelve year olds in front of us who had spent the last hour smoking empty rolling papers jumped up in blind excitement. I estimate about 35 people clapped for Gilder. I can't say it was entirely his fault. The crowd had not come for him, and he was out of his league anyway.

Second in the concert was Bob Welch. Between Gilder and Welch they were able to play the entire 10cc album "Deceptive Bends," and that was one of the shorter waits between sets. Instead of the 10cc album, they should've put on Bob Welch's latest album and then gone straight into the Little River Band. That's how exciting Welch Little River Band was very enthusiastically received, as they always have been here in Vancouver. I expect the next time LRB hits Vancouver, they'll be headlining at the Coliseum. They performed all their North American hits from "It's a Long Way There," to their latest "Remini-scing." They put on a fine show, but it was not as long as I would have liked it to be.

After a third lengthy wait, Heart took the stage. It was obvious that this was the group 44,000 people had come to see. Heart, also a Vancouver favorite, sold out the Coliseum last December after being away from the city for a long time. In contrast to the mosre acoustic set performed in the Coliseum, they let out all the stops and concentrated on rocking the stadium like it's never been rocked before.

When Ann Wilsón belts out the monumental "Crazy on You" and "Magic Man" you can't help but feel the energy being let loose. The same goes for "Devil's Delight" and the old "Without You," one wonders if she might runture something the way she rupture something the way she seemingly drives herself to the point of exhaustion. Between Ann and the rest of the band, they put on a dynamic show.

Overall, the concert was satisfactory, however, I can't help thinking how much better it would have been had ARS been there. Anyway, the concept of using the stadium is great. Unfortunately, Erwin Swangard, who seems to talk as if he owns the stadium (maybe he does, I don't know) says on the news that there will not be anymore concerts in Empire Stadium because the noise level is too great.

He goes on to say that the new stadium will have a roof of some sort that will contain the noise. Piss on him, that stadium won't be ready for three or four years at least. What about all the football and soccer games played all the time? They're OK, but why not concerts; Vancouver has proved that a concert of that magnitude can occur without any problems at

The press reported that someone who tried to attend the concert was arrested for carrying a gun. Big Deal. Try to convince me that one out of 44,000 people doesn't carry a gun anyway. Oh well, I guess it's back to the damned Coliseum with its inherent poor acoustics and smaller capacity.

what's happening

Hopefully, something's going to be happening for everyone. If not, I guess you are just shit out a luck.

This corner of the LINK is your entertainment section. Every week you'll find out what band is playing at the pub on the weekend, what movie is playing in theatre 129, and what special attractions are coming our way.

At our weekend pubs you can enjoy everything from rock 'n roll to disco to country to nudity or ten-year-old girls, etc.... [editor's note: this is what he said, honest!].

Our beergarden is open every day of the week with solo entertainers appearing occasionally. On Friday afternoons we have a singalong with some honky-tonk piano (good for what ales [sic] you).

If you'd like to relax on Wednesdays during the three-hour break, check which movies you'd like to see and drop in to theatre 129 to watch it free, compliments of your student association.

Our fall lineup of films has something for everyone, as you can see.

Intramural leagues starting soon

This year we intend to have better balanced intramural leagues. Students must develop teams early as limited numbers will be accepted due to space and time.

Posters will describe levels of league and eligibility. The registration dates for fall programs are Thursday the 21st and Friday the 22nd of September, 11:30 am to 1:30 pm in the SAC lobby. Official team entry forms are available at Athletics Equipment Room.

If you don't have a team but want to play, an intramural notice board in the SAC building will have an availability sheet for teams looking for players. Sign up on that sheet and hopefully you will be contacted.

STUDENT SPORTS

REPRESENTATIVE

Miss Ellen Fowler, a Finance Management student is your representative on Student Council. She will be listening and working for you to improve the Athletics and Recreation program. She is also chairman of the Campus Recreation Committee which develops rules and activities of the program. So let her know your brickbats or bouquets. CAMPUS RECREATION

COMMITTEE

Composed of two representatives from each division and staff.

They are your first contact to the programs. They will try to contact all groups in their division and establish some communications, be it notice board or meeting area. They will be identified by marked white and red golf shirts on Wednesday breaks. They need your input so let them know your problems. Photos will also be placed in the SAC building.

Super hockey league organized

Do you like rough, full equipment, qualified officially-handled hockey? If yes, contact the Campus Recreation Coordinator Wally Rowan as soon as possible.

Ice has been contracted for a four-team league to play on Friday nights, 8:05 pm and 9:45 pm, except during exams, breaks, or long weekends.

Tentatively a division of players to register with this league would consist of:

Green Machines #1 Forestry #2 Engineering Red Wings Maple Leafs #3 Business #4 Health/Staff North Stars

Each team would register ten players from those areas and a selection committee of managers or coaches would assign a further ten players from a pool to balance the league.

Teams would practice for one hour on Wednesday noon with two teams on the ice from 12-1 pm and two teams on from 1-2 pm. There is no ice cleaning during these sessions so a rotation will give all teams equal opportunity to clean ice.

Coaches, managers and trainers are required for each team. Anyone interested in serving on the League Committee contact the Recreation Coordinator.

This all costs money and a lot of your student fee will be used hopefully to provide both playing and spectating opportunities. Each signed player will receive sweater and sox which he will own on completion of the season. Cost of 80 sweaters & sox $2000 Cost of 18 practice ses. $1080 Cost of 17 games & playoffs $3400 Cost of officials $1700 Cost of misc trophies

ATHLETICS

All about gym use

BCIT is blessed with one of the best gymnasia in the Province. During open hours, generally until 5:30 pm, the gym is readily available for casual use, so why not take an exercise break between classes? Other facilities include a weight room, table tennis, outdoor tennis and a fitness trail (watch for the grand opening with Wacky Bennett's favorite son, Bill, on September EQUIPMENT ISSUE. All kinds of equipment are available to BCIT students and staff at no charge; just provide your ID card and check out basketballs, volleyballs, frisbees, bats and balls, etc. However, breakables such as racquets and table tennis equipment must be rented at a small charge of 25c, which you may gleefully deposit into a vending machine to purchase a ticket for your equipment.

Soap and towels are also available for 25c. per use or you may purchase a yearly service for $15, which includes a locker. Only small lockers are available for any rental and lockers without towel service may be rented for $3 per year. All locker rentals require your own lock.

The SAC building will generally open at 7:00 am and equipment issue will commence at 8:30 am. Service will continue to midnight on weekdays and 10 pm on weekends.

FACILITY BOOKINGS. Bookings for challenge matches may be arranged during open sessions on Wednesday night and on weekends. See Earl at the equipment dispensary or phone 612. Bookings can be made only one week in advance.

TEAM SHIRTS. Intramural or various colors of team shirts. The team manager or captain only may sign for all the shirts. These must be returned on completion of each daily activity.

teams start soon

The BCIT varsity athletic program is totally funded by the school administration. Some 175 student athletes complete on a total of 10 teams, making the program the most extensive within the British Columbia college system. The black and gold-clad 'Cougars' compete in exhibition play with numerous local and American colleges and universities. In league play they are also avid contestants in the Totem Conference, comprised of nine BC colleges. Schedules of games will be posted soon.

BCIT has been selected to host the 4-West western province championships for basketball, badminton and curling on March 8, 9, 10 of 1979. In 1981, the national basketball championships will be held in our gym. So watch out for the future!
