Throw a pie at S.A. President

This Sunday students (and the general public!) will have an opportunity to throw a pie at Student Association president Antoine Van Dierendonck. Antoine joins several local media personalities who are coming on campus for the Crazy Celebrity Challenge this Sunday, February 19th. According to organizer Antoine Clark, the whole project is a 'carnival to raise money for the Variety Club Telethon.'

The day of events starts with a pancake breakfast at 10:30, followed by events during which Vancouver area celebrities will challenge each other. CFUN and BCTV have already publicly challenged each other to a game of volleyball. Others who will take part in celebrity challenges include participants from the B.C. Lions and the Sunshine Girls, and CFOX radio.

After the Celebrity Challenge, spectators will be able to throw chocolate cream pies at their favourite personality. Antoine has volunteered to be a target for this part of the carnival. Other activities running through the day include an obstacle course, a car smash, and something many are looking forward to: a kiss-o-meter, which measures your pucker-power!

As an added attraction, BCIT's own campus radio station CFML will be on location.

The Crazy Celebrity Challenge, Sunday, February 19th at BCIT, starting at 10:30 a.m.

S.A. to improve resume service

- John MacGregor -

Students who have been waiting to have their resumes printed by word processor will be happy to know there's some relief in sight. The Student Association resume service will soon be purchasing another word processor. The new system will cost $7000, and is expected to be operational before the end of the term.

Currently, for a $10 charge, a resume is keyed into a word processor, and 3 copies are printed. However, the service has proven so popular, that the S.A. is looking at a second processor. The new equipment would eliminate the 2 to 3 day wait students now experience.

According to the Student Association, the resume service does lose money, but the organization wants to help students find work by providing low cost resumes.

Decision on ski cabin due soon

The Student Association will be making an important decision in the next few months on the fate of the ski cabin at Whistler. The lease on the land from the B.C. Government expires in 1989, and it cannot be renewed. The government has set the price on the land under the BCIT ski cabin at $84,000, a non-negotiable price. The S.A. must either buy the land for that set price, or lose their investment in the cabin, which has amounted to $55,000 since 1969, when they entered into the original 20 year lease.

According to sources in the Student Association, the council is likely to approve the purchase of the land, so that they would be able to sell the land and cabin in the future to recover their investment.

If the S.A. does purchase the land and keep the cabin, they will have to invest at least another $6000 to bring the cabin up to 1984 fire standards.

And, if the Student Association does decide to purchase the land, they will have to either take money away from the S.A. Fees set aside for the SAC addition, or else raise the fees an additional $4, bringing the total activity fee to $69 per student.

Council is expected to make its decision within the next 60 days.

LATE FLASH!!!

Just as The Link was about to go to press, VP Public Relations Antoine Clark reported that the BCIT contingent at the Great Northern Toboggan Race has returned particularly victorious. Complete details weren't available, but apparently the BCIT team won awards in several categories, including fastest time.

The BCIT group was up against 40 other teams, including engineers from UBC and SFU.

The Valentine's Dance last weekend attracted all kinds.

The celebration has begun

Committee reports in

- John Leech, Co-Chairman, 20th Anniversary Committee -

'Kick-Off week' for BCIT's 20th Year Anniversary celebration proved to be a tremendous success.

Starting January 16th the events during the week included a visit on campus by BCTV's Jack Webster, a presentation by President Gordon Thom to the Vancouver Kiwanis Club, an interview with Thom and Toni Clark on CKVU's Vancouver Show, the video taped debut of Terry Garner's production, Discover BCIT and a superb wine and cheese festival sponsored by the Staff Social Club.

The week also saw the unveiling of special 20th year banners, the introduction of new BCIT letterhead which incorporates the 20 year logo, historic pictures of BCIT placed in the lobby of the administration building, an interview between Gordon Thom and CKNW's Barrie Clarke and on January 30, Thom appeared on CBC radio and CJOR's Rafe Mair's program.

A total of 35,000 copies of the 20th Anniversary calendar have been published and distributed to all BCIT staff, students, alumni and other friends of the Institute. The This 'n That stores are selling 20 year memorabilia, including coffee mugs and a 20 year tie in the works.

'Anniversary..1' is the first of several reports from the 20th Year Anniversary Committee. Throughout 1984 we will provide you with an update on our planned activities and invite your comments and suggestions.

The Anniversary Committee, which met for the first time last fall, broadly defines its objectives as using the 1984 anniversary year as a vehicle for increasing and enhancing BCIT's profile around the province while encouraging fun and social events.

The 21 member committee is made up of representatives from all sectors of BCIT..staff, students, alumni and administration. We will strive to coordinate established events with special programs designed to highlight our 20 years. We hope to get all parts of the BCIT community involved. Naturally, we expect to accomplish our objectives with minimal expenditure.

The only major expenditure to date, and one that is expected to reap significant rewards for the Institute in terms of the goodwill it will generate, is the 1984 commemorative calendar which cost approximately $11,000 to produce. In reaching the decision to print the calendar, the committee believed it was necessary to do something that would serve the practical needs of publicizing special events scheduled for the year, all the while keeping BCIT in the public eye and giving the campus community..students, faculty, staff, administration, alumni..a sense of our history.

Dean of Development Dave Brousson, who also sits on the committee, strongly supported the calendar as a public relations vehicle. He believes it will generate a great deal of interest in BCIT which in turn will help the task of fund-raising for the Institute.

All departments involved in the 20th year anniversary celebrations are being very innovative at finding materials at very little or no cost. For example, the large wood banner which is to be installed on the front of the building was constructed from materials donated by a number of the Board of Governors.

The Committee is now working together with the Student Association and others in the BCIT community on the upcoming Open House. We encourage the fullest possible support for this event which represents the only single occasion at which the general public can actively participate in during the 20th year celebrations.

Student coordinator for Open House, Melanie Mahlman and her enthusiastic committee are working very hard and putting in long hours to ensure that this year's Open House is the best ever in BCIT's history.

The Committee is pleased with the progress made to date and welcomes any questions, comments or ideas. Don't eat with your left hand

- From the Office of the International Student Advisor - This week we'll take a look at the Middle East. This area includes Iran and Saudi Arabia.

There are some things about Arabians that a lot of westerners would never imagine. For instance, eating with your left hand is considered very bad manners and a dinner conversation will cool very quickly if this happens. It makes you wonder what happens to those Arabians unfortunate enough to be born left-handed.

Something that westerners would find it hard to get along without is insurance, but Saudis manage. No insurance of any kind exists in Saudi Arabia...the life, home, fire or valuables, the people there believe that 'God's will prevails. What will be will be.

If you are invited to dinner in a Saudi's home, the wife will serve you. She will not, however, eat or speak with you. Saudi Arabian women do not participate in the business or social activities of their husbands. Some of BCIT's more militant feminists may not agree with this.

And while you're over for dinner and admiring a certain decoration or piece of art, be careful. If you're not, you may end up being given the object in discussion! Turning down a gift is bad manners in Arabia, more so than here. Make sure to point out how perfect that carving looks in its present setting.

Next week in the Link, a few do's and don'ts to keep in mind when visiting in Iran...and if you don't make it that far you keep them in mind when meeting the many Iranian students here at BCIT.

Guess which applicant had his resume copied at SA Media Services?

You can't really tell. But resumes -

Some 60 employees to lose jobs when DTUC closes

- Ross Klatte -

Unless the provincial government reverses its decision of the May 1 closure of David Thompson Centre in Nelson, workers there and at the other campuses of Selkirk College, DTUC's manager, face an internal scramble for remaining jobs at the college.

'There's going to be bumping within the union...that's the unpleasant prospect', said Steve Geller, an officer of local 26 of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, whose 150 members include the support staffs at DTUC and all other campuses of the college.

'The conflict of interests within our people now is enough to make them multiple personalities,' Geller said.

'On the one hand, we're fighting the closure,' he said. 'On the other we're helping to dismantle the place (DTUC). And on top of that, we've got to look for jobs somewhere else or, if we have the seniority, have the chance of jobs at Selkirk but only at the expense of fellow union members.'

Geller was referring to the general union practice that allows workers with high seniority, after a layoff, to 'bump', that is displace, those with low seniority. If DTUC closes, there's certain to be bumping for jobs at Selkirk's main campus in Castlegar and at the college's vocational school in Nelson.

'Bumping is a protective union device to give longtime employees some job security,' Geller explained. 'But it makes for a rather harsh or agonizing situation, depending on your position on the seniority list.'

The college has warned that some 60 workers are to be cut from the support staff, Geller said, including the 43 DTUC employees and approximately 20 more from Selkirk's other campuses.

Besides the Nelson and Castlegar campuses, there are small centres in Trail, Nakusp, New Denver, Salmo, Grand Forks and Midway. The indication from management, Geller said, is that the smallest centres may be closed along with DTUC.

He and other members of the PPWC executive currently are negotiating with the college regarding seniority rights, including bumping procedures and severance pay.

Geller said that apart from the educational, economic and cultural costs of the closure, he's looking at 'the human costs'.

'I don't want to see the layoffs or the bumping happen,' he said. 'That's one reason I'm fighting to save this place.'

He declined to comment on proposed bumping procedures while negotiations with the college are still in progress.

The key to your future is a C. G. A.

Financial management is an exciting and challenging field, attuned to the needs of the 1980's ... and beyond. Financial decision-making is becoming increasingly complex and the demand for professional accounting skills has never been greater.

Through the C.G.A. program of studies, you can acquire the specialized financial expertise which will open new doors along your career path. And when you have completed the required courses and earned the right to call yourself a C.G.A., you'll have achieved a professional standing which is second to none.

You can continue to earn a steady income, on a full-time basis, while studying for your C.G.A. The program is especially set up to integrate course material with relevant working experience.

The C.G.A. program was developed in cooperation with the Faculty of Commerce at the University of British Columbia. Students may attend lectures at either U.B.C. or the University of Victoria or courses may be completed by correspondence.

CAMPUS BEAT

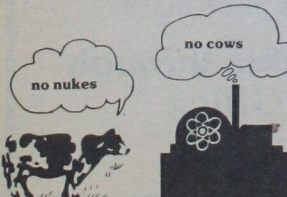

The library is 'on line'

- Kim Rogers -

The On Line Search system has been available at BCIT for almost ten years but few people know what it is or what it can do. On Line is a system that utilizes a computer at the BCIT library. It can be hooked up by phone and screen to gain almost unlimited information from Data bases around the world.

BCIT's system is run by several specialists in the library who take student requests for searches, feed them into the line and access information from large data bases. Campus computer wizzes probably already know exactly how the system works, and that outside BCIT, each search costs the searcher money. All the rest of us need to know is our subject or search topic. The computer, along with the Library searcher is able to gain reference notes needed to research the topic, if the subject is clear and we know what we are looking for. By keying in only a few words, a list of articles suitable for the student's topic can be shown. The student can then narrow his topic down so that 1500, 500, 5 or 1 article can be listed with author, title, pages, and often even a summary.

Saving time is a major advantage to using an On Line Search. No more late hours looking at the small print to find suitable articles in reference books. No more searching through the magazine stacks to find the library doesn't carry the issue you're looking for. Unlike most things around BCIT that we must pay extra for, the On Line Search system is a rare gift.

LETTERS TO THE LINK

Couldn't $2500 be better spent?

Editor, The Link

This letter is in response to the S.A. report in the February 8th issue of the Link.

I really hope that the $2500.00 for new wood panelling in the boardroom was a joke or maybe even a (Heaven forbid) typographical error. If the present executive feels that they can not work without newly finished table tops and now new wood panelling, maybe it's time to replace the executive rather than the walls, it would certainly be cheaper!

When they asked for my hard earned $65. at the beginning of term I gave it happily, I knew that it would be used for the good of all the students at B.C.I.T. Your report has made me wonder just how good an investment this was. With cash being so hard to come by these days, I would hope that the executive could find a better place to use my money, rather than papering their walls with it.

The two members that voted against the motion should be congratulated for voting with the student body as a whole, instead of just the very few people who use the boardroom. It would be nice to have the names of the other six members so that I can ensure that they do not get my vote if they are candidates in the next executive election.

Sincerely,
Alfred F. Pratt, Term 1 Gen. Nursing

OUT @ ABOUT TOWN

Of gold, jewelry and graves

- Kim Rogers -

If you're expecting a turn of the century western as the promotion for Skullriders suggests, you'll be surprised, for this play is not your average western. Set near the end of the 19th century, the scenery, and most of the clothing tells us that the characters are cowboys from the back hills, but occasionally very colorful bits of clothing and props will appear, making the cowboys seem more like Bob and Doug McKenzie. Yes, that's who they remind me of, except that there are three, sometimes four hozers on stage.

Skullriders should be more appropriately named Skullraiders, since characters

Elmo (Gordon White), Morley (Stehen Miller) and Jonny Cat (Alex Diakun), have an occupation of robbing graves. However, robbing graves is not the ridiculous part, because they do find gold teeth and jewelry, but working for the bone china company is a little on the absurd side, since animal bones are not what these strange three are digging up.

The story centers on the three cowboys who work together, but not really side-by-side. Morley is a hypochondriac and is always sick and Jonny Cat is the boss and such a con artist that he manages to do little work. Elmo, however, is afflicted with the grave business and through the play he becomes an aspiring killer, thinking the more people he kills and more graves and bones he will be able to dig up.

The three are stupid, possibly not entirely, but pretty darn close. The thrust of the play is their attempt to escape 'Scratch', a fearless bounty hunter out to kill them. They are aided by a weirdo named Earl, who supposedly has been hit by lightning and can use his visionary powers to get the three cowboys away from Scratch to safety in paradise.

I cannot explain just how absurd Skullriders is. Many people in the audience loved the play's strange and slapstick humour. Lines like: "Life is like a skunk urinating on the stink of it's own wind" or "One man's turd is like a flies ice cream", even get a chuckle from me, but understanding it all is a different matter.

Skullriders is at the Vancouver East Cultural Centre.

Kids in America

- Sam Corea -

A near perfect teenage girl gets involved with a not so perfect boy. When they get together they're Reckless.

This movie is very basic, but it's entertaining. The good girl is Tracy (Daryl Hannah of 'Blade Runner') a cheerleader. She gets good marks in school, obeys her parents and goes out with the quarterback. The bad boy is Johnny (newcomer Aidan Quinn). He's a rebellious football player who comes from a broken home.

The two are an unlikely pair, but Johnny is persistent and Tracy is tired of being so good. They start seeing each other, and after reeking the school's office one night they engage in a hot encounter in the boiler room. Johnny thinks he has it made now, but Tracy is still unsure about her feelings, so she tells Johnny to get lost.

The rest of the story is very predictable as the old saying of 'true love conquers all' comes into play.

This story line, of course, is nothing new, but it's handled adequately in this movie. There's some interesting photography - colorful night scenes and a few thrilling sequences with Johnny on his motorcycle racing down the highway.

Both Hannah and Quinn turn in decent performances. The actors are still quite young and I'm sure they'll have a lot more to offer in the future.

Reckless is an okay movie...and a fun love story.

Soft Rock show 'delicious'

- Trevor M. Moat -

If things could have gone wrong for recording artists Ralph Towner and John Abercrombie last February 7th, they did. None the less, they maintained sufficient composure to recite nearly four hours of scintillating classical/jazz duets for guitar.

On their arrival at the Soft Rock, they found that the CBC had decided not to record their show for FM Broadcast after all, and worse, sound problems were evident through the first set - feedback crept in whenever certain notes were sustained, and stage monitors malfunctioned. It was discovered later that a spill glass of water on the mixboard was the source of grief. 'If it's for me, I'm not here', Abercrombie hollered without disturbing his fingers, when a phone rang in the near-by office.

There ended the trouble. Audience and musicians fared well through the remainder. Amazingly well. Towner even commented afterwards how well he felt they had played, and how patient everyone was. The performance had opened with a free improvisation which led into 'The Juggler's Etude', a beautiful study conceived by Towner, from a recent album by Oregon, with whom Towner has played for the past decade. 'Beneath an Evening Sky' was the logical quiet follow-up. It was during this piece that the phone rang.

Towner alternated between two twelve steel string guitars and a custom made classical six, while Abercrombie demonstrated a late sixties Gibson Les Paul and a bizarre instrument he calls the 'Piccolo guitar'. It looks like your standard Telecaster, but the neck is considerably shorter, missing the lower E and A strings with the remaining four tuned an octave higher. Abercrombie is the first to use it, and he loves it, indicating that the closeness of the upper frets is its only pitfall, making it hard to play. Towner echoed his partner's sentiments, saying he 'never liked the sound of electric guitars, until now'.

Throughout the show, the contrast was present: acoustic to electric; Towner the economical guitarist, his fingers drifting effortlessly through chord changes, rolling from riff to riff, to Abercrombie, lightning fast, fingers furiously flying over the fretboard, never missing a split second of expression. Though very different in approach, they both showed how well they are in tune with the physics of their instruments: Abercrombie's head back and eyes closed, completely engulfed in the moment, Towner hitting harmonics everywhere, and tuning on the fly.

Of his relaxed appearance on stage, Towner says he tries to stay as physically alert as possible. 'Poised; to maintain intensity; intensity without becoming tense. The fingers must be more rigid than dish towels, yet more flexible than sticks.' Abercrombie too appeared very at ease, especially for one who hasn't been to the West Coast in five or six years.

'Ralph's Piano Waltz', written by Abercrombie, and 'Half Past Two' by Towner concluded the show. The encore was a delicate and very expanded interpretation of 'Timeless', the title track from Abercrombie's third album, and a very descriptive conclusion to the evening.

The problems at the outset of the show were unfortunate, but provided the ironic positioning of the not so good with the astounding, which helps transform a show into memory. Positioned well, too, were Ralph Towner and John Abercrombie, immensely different talents blended together to bring the better of both worlds; smooth as the cream on a Soft Rock sherry trifle; not just Tasteful, Delicious.

Identical Islands is good, and bad

- Elaine McKay -

Picture Robin Williams as 'Mork', miming his way through a 'Temptations' routine. If you can imagine that, you're prepared for some of the highlights of Identical Islands Axis Mime Theatre's production currently playing at the Firehall Theatre.

Identical Islands stars three aliens from the planet Blanziflor: Pandersneep, Smelki#T, and Mmmblach. In their first earth performance, they do a cabaret act, and a historical piece, adapted from the annals of 'The Histor D'Blanziflor.' The cabaret act is a treat, but the history, as with many similar 'down to earth' dictums, is too long, tedious, and overblown with its sense of self-importance.

Let's look at the positive side first. The opening of Identical Islands is delightful. The three aliens enter the stage, wearing bizarre space costumes, and making equally bizarre space moves and noises. No one knows exactly what's going on, but everyone enjoys it. The mimes' creative moves, like juggling their tongues, and seemingly alien sounds, have a natural sense of whimsy and comedy, reminiscent of slap stick. The audience obviously appreciates this, and doesn't mind the fact that no one here speaks Blanziflorian.

However, when the Blanziflorians discover the communications gap, they are quite disturbed, and commence an hilarious series of tests to find out what language this earth audience speaks. When they finally settle on English, they act out some translations to demonstrate the differences in approach of earthlings and Blanziflorians to such everyday acts as eating, kissing, and having babies.

Blanziflor is not entirely different from earth, though, and that's proven entertainingly by the mimes' hysterical impressions of Michael Jackson, and other earth stars.

This point is also made repeatedly throughout the history of Blanziflor, and this is where Identical Islands loses its touch. As our heroes go through the rise and fall of their people, the audience is yanked into the realization that Blanziflor is very much like earth...both planets are filled with insecure people who go to war because they are afraid of each other.

The problem here is that the play becomes too concerned with the moral of the story, and forgets the vehicle for telling the story: the mime. The moves that were innovative and interesting at the beginning of the evening, become repetitive and redundant.

This is unfortunate, since it certainly doesn't reflect the abilities of the Axis Mime players. Peter Anderson, as Pandersneep, is particularly charismatic, and both Melanie Miller, as Mmmblach, and Kim Slody, as Smelki#T, retain incredibly high levels of energy throughout the play. If the play itself had the same momentum, the second act could have been saved.

Identical Islands is not perfect, but it does make for an interesting evening of theatre. If you are unfamiliar with mime, this energetic, generally funny, play might make a good introduction. If you like mime, be prepared to accept the good with the bad.

Identical Islands is at the Firehall Theatre until Feb 18.

Silver Star Madness 'a mobile party'

- Vince Taylor -
It was billed as Silver Star Madness' and they weren't far off the mark. It began when 29 hearty souls left BCIT on Friday afternoon, shortly after 2:00 p.m.

The $100.00 fee included bus transportation, two nights at the Best Western Hotel (POOL AND JACUZZI AND TWO LIFT TICKETS. Not surprisingly, the bus became an instant mobile party. For the select few who came along in hope of some quiet R&R and a little skiing, well, at least the skiing was good.

The bus ride was an adventure..with the music blaring, people dancing and very few sleeping. You could feel the excitement in the air. Excitement wasn't the only thing in the air, thank god there wasn't a smoke alarm on board.

By the time we arrived in Vernon at about 10:00 p.m. however, the bus was pretty quiet. But party preparations soon got going and energy levels returned. It was off to the village Green to destroy more brain cells. Most people were back in their rooms by about 3:00 a.m., just enough time to catch an hour or two of sleep.

Saturday morning, about 8:30 saw a lot of red eyes hiding a lot of good intentions. However, most everyone made it to breakfast at Bino's, a move some are still questioning. The bus left soon afterwards through the thick fog for downtown Vernon. The promise of sunshine from the local ski report seemed distant. But the bus swayed and creaked, (so did our bodies) right through the clouds and into glorious sunshine. We were skiing in no time!

The skiing was excellent. There could have been a little more snow but in the cloudless blue sky and warm sunshine, we just tended not to mind. The 'Star' lounge was the meeting place to swap ski stories, relax and wait for the bus. There were more smiles than a Hospitality Careers Day!

There was definitely some confusion over Saturday night's entertainment. The package deal included a ticket to a supposedly 'sold out' dance. No one's to blame but the Kiwanis Club Senior Citizens Las Vegas Night just wasn't what we had in mind. Oh well. We had a laugh and a few beers. Some people even stayed for the whole evening and claimed that it wasn't too bad. Those of us doubting types moved along to the more familiar surroundings of the local bars.

Sunday's skiing was equal to Saturday's. No line-ups until the afternoon, beaming sunshine and undying enthusiasm. We even had a picnic on top of the mountain! By about 3:30 we were ready to go. We had a few drinks, got settled in the bus and took off.

The mobile party began again. There were just as many laughs but a little less energy. A few slept but most just relaxed. We arrived back at BCIT about 11:30 p.m.

There may be a return trip to catch some spring skiing, everyone welcome. About 20 of the 29 people on the last trip were from BCIT but it's first come first served. If another ski trip does materialize, I'll sign up tomorrow. For sun, fun and just a hell of a good time, there's nothing like it.

Hockey

Engineers 4, Business 0. Ron Merdt with some good saves and Engineers working on playoff defender combined to shut out the treemen. Brent Shipitka and Kerry Kogler had a goal and assist. Steve McNeil and Scott Drummond got the other goals.

Health Alumni 9, Business 2 Rob Hirsch continues to lead Alumni scorers with 3 more goals and an assist. Kevin Smith (2), Glen Anderson, John Hillis, Doug Brougham and Tim Adams had the red light on Brian Fester.

Sheldon Lee and Scott McKay were the only Business shooters to beat big Ed Jerick.

Final League Games This Friday could be a preview of championship game. Engineers will try to impress Health/Staff/Alumni.

Business and Forestry are playing to see who comes in fourth.

Don't forget folks, suspensions could keep you out of the playoff game!

Runners take note

Vancouver International Marathon '84 is less than 3 months away. Those runners interested are reminded that a meeting will be held in the SA Committee Room in the SA Friday February 17th at 12:30.

INTRAMURALS & CAMPUS REC!

CO-ED NOON VOLLEYBALL

A League: In a close scoring match Calculus Affair zapped Dynamics 15-11, 15-9. Was it a calculated win? And Finatix dampened High Ballers' hopes with a 15-10, 15-7 victory. As ref Calvin Wray called it, 'Very exciting..some long, long, long rallies..' The ha/2

As ref Calvin Wray called it, 'very exciting..some long, long, long rallies.' The hapless Fun Bunch defaulted to the New Rockets. That's no fun!

B League: Hackers and Staff hacked, rallied, bumped and served their way to a tie. 13-15, 15-11. Good efforts all round. Six Packers walloped Coliforms in the first game. But Coliforms came around and put up a good fight. Score: 15-6, 15-11 for Six Packers. Terminal Buds won their first match of the season 15-13, 15-12 over E&E Playboys. Should be lots of celebrating.

C League: Tequila Sundowns extended their hold over first place with a 15-10, 15-13 victory over Zippers. Nice try Zippers! Static Heads burnt NucMeds 15-8, 15-8. Lots of static and ions in the air, that's for sure! Tricky Noses annihilated Rekkers 15-2, 15-7. Come on Donna and your Rekkers..start rekking!

CO-ED INDOOR SOCCER

A League: Express had good control of the game. But an early goal by Tigers gave them the defensive edge. However, hard work paid off for Express with a goal by Wayne Pruner. Score 1-1 tie. Thanks Tony lampietro for being a good coach. Double Dippers lost to the Byte Squad 2-0. Excuse: Team members were injured or sick. And no scoring punch.

B League: The two power houses of the league clashed and had to settle for a tie. BSers and Boomers. Wonder which team will represent this league in the final? Prime Timers flashed their stuff with a 3-0 score over Rod Men.

C League: Rez pounded the E.H.'s 5-0. But it was a great game, according to ref, Bert Mast. Fish & Chippers and Bio-Science played to a 0-0 tie.

WEDNESDAY MEN'S HOCKEY

Mining 3 vs Gas& Oil 2. Miners go to the top of the league, Gas& Oil drops to third behind Staff Allstars. Wiseman with two and Young scored the big goals to edge out Wisemans two goals for Vapors. Really intense game with very few penalties. Fans are missing exciting games. Drop by on Wednesdays at Columbia 4 Rinks.

Marketing Maniacs 5 vs High Voltage 4. Looked like the upset of the year until Rannard, Underhill and Haggerty pumped in three consecutive goals for the Maniacs. Pete Madsen (2), Henri Germaine and Cory Parkis were all the Voltage could generate..even with the goalie out at the end.

Staff Allstars 1 vs Business Blazers 0. Five skaters just can't last a whole game. For safety sake the 8 skater rule for a game is enforced. Try to get a few more players gang.

Don't forget..top two teams playoff for trophy, (and t-shirts at banquet) on Wednesday, Feb. 29th 12-2 on Blue Rink. Who will be there?

BCIT INVITATIONAL INDOOR SOCCER TOURNAMENT

Saturday, Feb. 18th, 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Teams from SFU, PVI, Douglas, BCIT Internationals and BCIT All Stars. PVI (1983 Champs) and SFU (1982 Champs) will be meeting some strong competition. Drop by and see the games!

BCIT FUN SQUASH/RACQUETBALL TOURNAMENT

Saturday, Feb. 25th. Let's get registered by Tuesday, Feb. 21st. Novice and Open divisions for men and women. For $8.00 food, music and good games. (at least 2). Novices that were in the Business Tournament and were in consolation final or championship final can only register for Open cclass. Let's get a good turnout.

TECHNOLOGY WRIST WRESTLING

Get ready for the BCIT Invitational Wrist Wrestling tournament during Forestry Week. Weight classes posted at the Campus Recreation office. It's FREE and we'll have prizes for the winners. PVI is in training for the Invitational so let's get a strong armed representation.

BC INTRAMURAL FUN DAY AT SFU

Saturday, March 3rd. A series of fun activities against other members of the Universities and Colleges. Winds up with a dinner and dance. Labatt's is co-sponsor so some type of suds will be available. It's free and up to 15 BCIT students can register to go. Sign up in the Campus Rec Office today or as soon as you can. First come, first served. It's Co-ed so lots of guys and gals from UBC, SFU, PVI, Douglas, U.VIC, Malaspina, Okanagan etc., will be there!

MASSAGE CLINIC

Saturday, Feb. 25th, 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. A repeat of a very successful event. Come and learn how to soothe those tired muscles. Learn some great therapy for you after those late nights of cramming for exams. Come alone or bring a partner. Registration fee is $5.00. Register by Feb. 22nd.

RACQUETBALL/SQUASH CLUB NIGHT

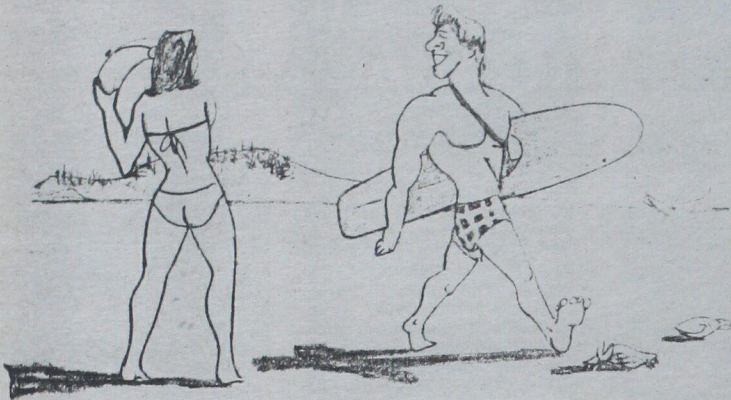

Do you want to join a group of players who would have reservations of courts for a weekly event in the evening? To date, Tuesday or Monday could be booked from 7:15 to 8:45 p.m. (approx.) for some good series of games. Cost would be determined by number registered (group of 8 for 6 weeks $8.00 each) Check it out with the Campus Rec Coordinator.
